ROME, March 13.—After a lull of several months the Italians have suddenly become intensely active along the whole front. Formidable artillery actions are now occurring on Carso Plateau, and the renewal of the Italian onslaught on Goritz is believed imminent. Advices from the front to-day reported daily infantry actions around Goritz bridgehead. Heavy fighting has occurred in the past eight days. The Italians are making daily infantry attacks against the entrenchment camp of Podgora, before Goritz. They have captured several trenches and are tightening their ring about the bridgehead position.

TORONTO, Ont., March 13.—Owing to recent disturbances, Brig.-General W. A. Logie, and Chief Constable Lieut.-Col. H. J. Grassett, of Toronto, have announced that in future one company of soldiers will be stationed down town in the evenings with a motor car patrol, and any misbehaviour of soldiers will be dealt with by the soldiers themselves instead of by the civic police thus elimnating trouble between civic and military officials regarding arrest and punishment.

A Peterboro' Boy Wounded

Lance-Corp. Chas. Dagnall of the 21st Battalion on Casualty List

To-night's casualty list contains the name of a Peterborough soldier in the person of Lance-Corp. Chas. Dagnall, of the 21st Battalion, who is reported wounded. Lance-Corp. Dagnall enlisted here in October, 1914, and left here with the 57th detachment to the 21st Battalion on Novemebr 3 of that year. He was employed as a driver with R. Denne, the flour and feed merchant, and lived at 118 Simcoe street. His relatives reside in Liverpool, Eng. He had many friends here who will wsh him a speedy recovery. He is the fourth Peterborough member of the 21st to appear on the casualty list.

SHAMROCK DAY BROUGHT $837.36

Citizens Gave Generously in Their Contributions for St. Vincent's Orphanage

Shamrock Day realised $837.36 on Saturday which forms the city's collective contribution towards the maintenance of St. Vincent's Orphanage. This sum is practically as large as last year's, and at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday Rev. Father Phelan expressed heartfelt thanks to the citizens for their charity and liberality, especially when so many urgent and appealing demands had been generously met by them. Father Phelan also thanked the ladies for their work in connection with the collections and stated that the day had brought most gratifying results.

Our programme may be seen four performances daily twice in the afternoon and twice in the evening.

Committed For Trial

OTTAWA, March 13.—The preliminary trial of C.P.R. conductors and the three others charged with conspiracy to defraud the company was concluded at Ottawa on Saturday when Silas Alexander, Mark Baker, Thomas Carter, Harry Dunham, Charles A. Merriam, Frances Nelson, all C.P.R. conductors and Clarence Bettis, Harry Mersoh and Abraham Pince were committed for trial in the High Court and will come before a jury at the nassizes to be held on March 20.

R. J. Willoughby accused of conspiracy was acquitted but he is already committed for trial on charge defrauding the railway, in the case of Pince it was urged by his counsel that there was no evidence, but owing to suspicious circumstances connected therewith he was also committed.

AN EXPLANATION FROM THE OWNERS OF OPERA HOUSE

Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons Announce That the Money Taken Yesterday Will Be Paid Back or Devoted to Patriotic Purposes

A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We have heard some criticisms on the street this morning with reference to our demanding a fee of twenty-five dollars, before allowing Mr. Wearing to speak, consequently we think it advisable to state our reasons for making the demand.

During the ordinary course of business we rented the theatre to the International Bible Students of Peterborough and surrounding country for a Sunday afternoon meeting, the speaker being announced as Pastor Russell of Brooklyn, N. Y.

We were approached on Saturday by some citizens advising us that Pastor Russell was not a proper person to speak in the city on account of his reputed attitude towards recruiting. Our reply was we knew nothing of the matter other than the theatre had been engaged. Following this visit we received letters through the Post Office (undersigned) saying dire things would happen if the meeting was allowed to be held.

When Mr. Wearing got up to speak we anticipated trouble and in order to stop it made a demand that the theatre be rented again before proceeding. This was our idea of embarrassing the gentleman about to speak and demanding an amount of money which we did not expect would be forthcoming. Our entire motive was not the amount of money specified, but to get the theatre cleared without any damage to life or property. We are holding the money in trust to be returned to those who paid it, or to be paid over to any society or the Battalion Fund as may be directed by Mr Wearing, who gave the money to us.

In addition to the splendid musical programme Mr. F. R. Jones, Organizer of the Over-Seas Tobacco Fund in Canada, will be here to explain all about this worthy Fund. A BIG CAMPAIGN TO COMPLETE THE LOCAL BATTALION

Towhships Which Have Not Responded Sufficiently to the Call Will Be Thoroughly Canvassed--Theatre Checks Not Good For Late Passes---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Another energetic recruiting campaign to complete the 93rd Battalion is being undertaken by the Speakers' Patriotic League and the officers of the battalion. Meetings will be held throughout the county and in some townships where the response to the colours has not been as good as might be expected a vigorous campaign will be inaugurated. Local committees will be asked to co-operate in the work, and good results are expected.

The 93rd Battalion is indebted to Mrs. T. A. S. Hay for the gift of a table, a flag with which to drape it, and a handsome plant for the hospital at the Armouries. The gift adds greatly to the appearance of the hospital.

The members of the 93rd Battalion who were on guard at the C.G.E. on Friday night wish to express their appreciation of the gift of pies which some kind-hearted citizens sent them.

Lieut. P. G. Might, of the 93rd Battalion, has received a very useful gift, a compass, from Chief Inspector Cowley, of Toronto. In civil life Lieut. Might is the principal of the Lansdowne School in Toronto.

It is understood that the practice of having theatre checks good for late passes is being done away with by the 93rd Battalion. Hitherto the Commanding Officer of the 93rd has been pleased to allow any of the 93rd members who wished to attend the attractions at the Grand Opera House to do so—the production of a theatre coupon to the guard being the equivalent to a late pass. This has been cancelled, and now the men will be unable to go to the Opera House without securing a late pass.

Mrs. J. A. Sharp, 537 Homewood Avenue, has received the following letter from Lieut. W. H. Blanchard, A.V.C., in France:

France, Jan. 29th, 1916.

My dear Madam,—I hope you will excuse me taking the liberty of writing in answer to your beautiful and well chosen present from the "Catholic Ladies of Peterborough." I am delighted to think that your kind people in Peterborough should remember the men and boys that are here in France and Belgium. I am pleased to say, I hear regularly from my two lads, Bruce and George. They are well and in good health and spirits.

George has not been out so long as Bruce, so he has not had letters as often. He did not get in touch with the people that Bruce did. Bruce had a good stay in England. Bruce visited my sister (Mrs. L. Sharp) and a great number of relatives, and they write to Bruce and send him some comforts by parcel post. As for me, I am well and hearty. I went over to England to see my sister (Mrs. Alice Sharp) and her two daughters at their home. I did not see her married daughter, as she was with her husband near Aldershot. He is in the Royal Engineers. He is Lieut. Eric Bayly, son of Sir W. Genl. Bayly. Eric went to France but was invalided home. He went through an operation, and is now on light duty, and may be sent back at any time, if fit. As for myself, Mrs. Sharpe, I have signed on again for the finish of the war. I could not come back to Canada and leave my two boys fighting in Belgium. I must stay as long as I have health and I hope to be able to come back when my two lads come home (D.V.)

I thank you and your kind ladies for your lovely present, and thank Bishop O'Brien, Father Phelan and a host of others for not forgetting to remember one poor soul that will come back if he can. — I remain, yours truly,

W. H. Blanchard, Lieut A.V.C., No. 1 Vety. Hospital, B.E.F., France.

Bible Lecture Ends In Recruiting Rally

"Pastor" Russell's Meeting is Wound Up by Mr. Joseph Wearing Who Delivers a Rousing Recruiting Speech—Excitement at Grand Opera House.

PTE. P. MAYNARD
C Company, 93rd Battalion.

THEATRE WAS CROWDED

The huge crowd that gathered at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon to hear the famous, or notorious as your opinion may be, "Pastor" Chas. T. Russell, head of the International Bible Students' Association, had a variety of things offered them. They not only heard "Pastor" Russell expound his curious doctrines for nearly two hours, but they also heard a rousing recruiting speech by Mr. Joseph Wearing, the local barrister, prefaced by some rapid fire financial negotiations in which the Grand Opera House was leased for 10 minutes for $25.00.

THOSE AFFADAVITS.

The association of "Pastor" Russell's name and that of the International Bible Students' Association with the affidavits against military service that have been appearing here, as well as in many other parts of Canada, was the cause of the unusual features of the meeting which, in ordinary times, would probably have finished in an orthodox manner. "Pastor" Russell opened his meeting with a reference to this matter, and was also questioned at the close by Mr. Wearing, but in both cases his statement was evasive. He took the position that he had only pointed out to students of the International Bible Students' Association what the laws of Canada were in regard to compulsory service, i.e., that men who had conscientious scruppies against warfare were exempt under the law. However, "Pastor" Russell did not enlighten the audience as to whether or not efforts were being made to increase the membership of the Association and spread the number of affidavits, such as Lt.-Col. Johnston received a short time ago from an Apsley follower of the Russelite doctrine, in this manner increasing the difficulty of recruiting and keeping men at home who should be fighting for the principles of liberty.

In his address proper, the head of the Association did not touch upon enlisting, and thereby averted trouble as there were several hundred soldiers in the house, who would undoubtedly have made a demonstration if anything disloyal or seditious had been said.

"Pastor" Russell, whose appearance bears a marked similarity to the picture that is found on a well-known brand of patent medicine, wears a patriarchal beard and has a rather imposing appearance.

The topic advertised was "The Battle of Armageddon," but the speaker during his two-hours' lecture rambled through practically the whole scope of his doctrine.

READ A STATEMENT

Before commencing the address the visiting lecturer read a statement to the audience. There was a rumour being circulated, he said, that he had come to Canada to oppose recruiting. To those who knew him it would be unnecessary to say that he would not take advantage of Canadian hospitality in that manner. The rumour in question was wholly false. He tried to follow the golden rule, and that forbid him meddling in Canadian affairs. To some of the students of his Association he had pointed out that the laws of their country exempted from service

U.S. EXPEDITION INTO MEXICO IS HELD IN LEASH

Word For the American Troops to Move is Expected To-morrow, Although Carranza's Opposition is Threatened

FEAR ALONG BORDER

Special to The Examiner:

EL PASO, Texas, March 13—Threatened with resistance by an aroused Mexico, Uncle Sam's expedition to run down Villa and avenge the Columbus raid was still held in leash along the border to-day. The hour "to go in" is now expected to arrive some time Tuesday, although Major General Funston's policy of thorough preparedness and diplomatic negotiations with the defiant Carranzista may further delay the expedition.

Carranza's threatened armed opposition to the entry of the American troops are reported to agents here, and Villa's flight toward the defenceless American Mormon colonists in Chihuahua has torn the border country between feelings of anger and fear.

The annual distribution of prizes to the sunday school pupils will be held at the Salvation Army Temple to-night when one hundred and thirty prizes will be presented to the children who attend the Sunday school classes at the Temple. These prizes are for regular attendance during 1915, have been carefully selected and should be prized by the pupils. There will be a musical programme and Mr. R. C. Braund, superintendent of the Temple Sunday school will preside. To-night's recipients of prizes do not include attendants at the Byersville and Bradley schools. On Monday night next the Browntown children will be remembered.

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1916

THERE'S A GRASP.

The Brantford Courier declares that the Ontario Provincial Treasurer "has a complete grasp of financial matters". Be that as it may, when one notes the tremendous increase in the provincial expenditure, it is plain that someboly has a pretty strong grasp on our finances — our cash.

LISTENED TO REASON.

The Hearst government has yielded to the reasoning, that showed a war-time referendum vote on prohibition as ill timed an dinjurious as a war time election would be. It is understood that the bill to be introduced net Thursday to provide for the abolition of the retail traffic in liquor during the war will be found to contain no clause providing for a referendum to the people. It is also understood that the prohibition measure will come into force on a date not far distant to permit holders of liquor licenses to dispose of their stocks on hand. This is a partial recognition of the rights to compensation liquor dealers should have if we are to be governed by fair play in dealing with the promotion of the public interests —to wrong no man in benefitting another. In deciding, as it should have done in the beginning to pass a tentative prohibition measure without a present referendum, the government has listened to reason. If prohibition as a war measure is to have any good effect it must be in force and inspire during the war.

PERSONAL LIBERTY.

Madam Roland's exclamation on the scaffold—"O liberty! how many crimes are committed in thy name, has a modern application. Yesterday, in the Opera House, "Pastor Russell justified the course of the members of the "International Bible Students' Association" in refusing to fight for their country because it was against their belief, and that it was "your British freedom that gave liberty of opinion." That expresses cardinal ignorance of the true spirit of British liberty, which only confers freedom of opinion and speech and action based thereon, when they are in harmony with the interests of others and the welfare of the state. If such a monstrous heresy as that individual opinion absolves us from our duty to our fellow men or the state, were to prevail, the ruck of cowards, self-seekers, schemers, and reprobates that abound in the world would bedevil things generally, beyond endurance. Personal liberty of opinion, speech, and action, has its bounds. It is subject to considerations of the rights and welfare of others. The great Daniel Webster truthfully said: "Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint."

THE SOLDIER'S DUTY.

The Toronto Telegram blames the temperance people for the assault on the prohibition parade—last Thursday—the temperance people should keep their views in subjection during the war. "If the procession hadn't been held on the streets, then, it would not have been disturbed.' Thus a man is to blame for being robbed, because he has something to be stolen. The blame does not rest with the victims; it primarily rests with those behind the scenes, who arranged and incited the attack. It is well to be prudent in war time, but we injure the interests of the war when we antagonize its object. No greater obstacle in principle to the successful prosecution of our share of the war can be easily provided than corruption of the morale of our recruted soldiers — making them agents of lawlessness instead of defenders of law and order. The duty of soldiers is to maintain law and order, and protect, and not hinder, the citizens of the country in the exercise of their unquestionable rights, one of which is to march through the public streets unmolested, and thereby express their sentiments—freedom of speech and of action within the law. This is just what we are fighting for and spending uncountable millions to maintain. No worse enemy to the British spirit, the spirit of law and order, and the supremacy of civil right, can be found than the journal or other influence, that champions lawlessness and condones the mutiny of soldiers against military authority and the law of the land. The soldiers who were guilty of the assault in question are not so much to be blamed. General Logie says they were raw recruits who had not yet come under the influence of discipline, who have not yet learned that even the exercise of personal liberty, that interferes with the public good is an un-British thing. That only excuses, it does not justify, their action. A soldier enlists and exists for the upholding of order, and the protection of the rights of citizens. He enlists to fight for liberty, but not the liberty to do wrong.

THE WAITING GAME.

The arm chair critics we have, as we have, the poor, always with us. They are complaining now of the inexplicable inactivity of the allied armies on the western battle front. We may have no explanation offered, but it is probable that the allied armies are doing the best thing in preparation for doing their best when the proper time comes. As to when that time is we shall have to trust the judgment of those in supreme command. We can, and must, trust Joffre, who is in charge of the allied operations in the West. He has shown himself to be a capable commander, cool, calculating, and far seeing. He will not be stampeded into doing things against a judgment founded upon a perfect military knowledge, and the full knowledge of local situations that can only come to the man on the spot. He has the great quality of patience and can wait for the moment to strike, most favourable to the success of the cause he represents. The allied armies in the western front may be inactive in a fighting sense, but they constitute a stonewall against which Germany is dashing its head, and battering itself to pieces, without accomplishing anything even approximately equivalent to the terrific sacrifice of men and waste of munitions. So far as the layman can see the Germans are doing more harm to themselves than to their enemies. The situation, as far as the allied armies on the western front are concerned is analagous to that of a stalwart Cornish miner, whose reply to reproach, for allowing his small, but pugnacious wife to beat him, was—"It pleases she and doesn't hurt 'Oi'". Battering his legions to pieces against the allied defences without corresponding gain, may please the infatuated Kaiser, but it doesn't greatly hurt the allies—on the contrary it only makes them relatively stronger for great strokes when the ripeness of preparation and favouring circumstances give the cue for striking. We might be comforted by reasonable reliance upon the spirit of the saying that "all things come to him who waits"—and keeps ready.

BUDGET IN NUTSHELL.

Tax on racetracks increased from $500 per day of operation to $1,250 per day.

Tax of one cent will be imposed upon each paid admission to amusement halls, dance halls, moving picture theatres, theatres, baseball parks, circuses and all places of amusement.

The province has a surplus this year of $271,000, as compared with a $600,000 deficit last year.

Total revenue increases for the year were $1,200,000.

Ontario last year gave a total of $11,102,000 for patriotic purposes.

Provincial treasurer announced that the courts may be invoked to force the Grand Trunk Pacific to live up to their contract with the T. & N. O. Railway.

Provincial treasurer intimated that the federal finance minister had gone beyond federal scope in his taxation and promised an adjustment after the war.

Ontario saved $502,000 by investigating the Cox estate. In future the penalty of an additional tax of 25 per cent. will be imposed when the total assets are not represented.

Succession duties revenues of $1,315,000 set a new record in Ontario's history.—Brockville Recorder.

A DUTY FOR AMERICANS.

The Congressional conspiracy against the President and against the hopeful of the Nation has failed of its immediate purpose. But the American people still have a supreme duty to perform in respect to their own patriotism. That duty is to deal drastically with every member of Congress who participated in this plot to exalt the military necessities of the German Empire above the faith and the traditions of the Republic.—New York World.

THE THREE - FIFTHS MAJORITY.

The justification given by the Ontario government for departing from the three-fifths handcap in the promised prohibition referendum is that the provincial voters' lists, rather than the municipal voters' lists, are to be used. The change, it is true, makes the task of the prohibitionists a little harder, because the woman vote is disqualified, but it does not touch the principle at stake. If something more than a bare majority is right in one case it is right in the other, and no kind of sophistry can make it otherwise.—Brantford Expositor.

MR. ROWELL'S WORK.

Ontario is to have prohibition. The statement of Premier Hearst to the deputation from the Committee of One Hundred yesterday that a straight majority vote will bring the temperance legislation into force removes any last doubt about it. The vote cast in the forthcoming referendum will undoubtedly provide an overwhelming majority for the abolition of liquor.

The Ontario government is to be congratulated for so promptly bowing to the will of the people. Of course, it saw the writing on the wall, and there was nothing else for it to do. By acting promptly it is able to take to itself a large share of the credit for the reform. Those who desire prohibition have also to thank the Committee of One Hundred, through whose efforts the government was finally made to see the light.

But, after all, who is responsible for the prohibition the province is to have some time this summer? One man more than anyone else is responsible, Mr. N. W Rowell. As leader of the Liberal party Mr. Rowell went before the province on a prohibition issue two years ago. He was unsuccessful because a large percentage of the electors would not put aside politics for the sake of reform. But he did not fail. He brought the matter before the people. He made them think about it, and he has been making them think about it since. And he showed that, although so many of the electors placed party before prohibition, there was a strong feeling in Ontario in favour of his policy.

The Ontario government is allowing the people of the province to have what they want. It was Mr. Rowell who fired the people to insist on having what they wanted. Even despite the influence of the war it is doubtful if prohibition would have been realized for years to come had it not been for the consistent efforts of the leader of the Liberal party in the Province.—Ottawa Free Press.

A BEAUTIFUL AS WELL AS RARE BIRD VISITOR

Some of us, when we notice upon the snow under trees, especially the elm, a litter of the broken terminal twigs of the higher parts of the tree are at a loss to account for what we see—what brought down the twigs? The explanation is easy and interesting. It is due to the unusual presence here this winter of the evening grosbeak, which rejoices in the formidable scientific title of Hesperiphora Vespertina. The evening grosbeak is, literally, a rara avis in this latitude. Its habitant is far nothern and western Canada, and it seldom comes so far south as this region. We should be grateful to the peculiarity of this winter's weather, or whatever cause is responsible for their presence. The startling combination of the bright yellow and black plumage constitutes a striking colour note in the monotonous flat and stale prevalence of dead white of the snow, and sombre gray of the leafless branches of our trees. The evening grosbeak, like the pine grosbeak, has an exceedingly strong bill, as is testified by the size of some of the twigs cut off from the trees, in their search for food.

A Case of Luck.

"Guess I was born lucky, all right,' remarked a man with a low comedy face at a downtown lunch counter. "Listen to this:

"Yesterday morning on leaving home I encountered a friend at my news dealer's. He handed me a paper. At the subway station he produced two tickets, and we rode together. About 12:30 my brother-in-law phoned me an invitation to join him at luncheon, which I did. He was engaged to dine at my house in the evening. He called for me at the office and insisted on paying the fares uptown. When I got home I suddenly realized that, quite inadvertently, I hadn't spent a cent all day."

"Don't see anything very lucky about that," a listener interrupted.

"Didn't say there was," continued the speaker. "But I discovered at the same time that I had left home in the morning without one cent in my pocket."

"Guess you are lucky, all right," said the other.—New York Mail.

GUNS ARE TEMPERAMENTAL

A big gun is as sensitive to the weather as a watch. Wind, humidity, temperature all affect gunfire.

At one time a group of artillerists, practicing with a 10-inch gun, had got the range of the target, more than five miles distant, and were scoring bull's-eyes neatly when they knocked off work for the afternoon.

The day had been clear and warm, with not a leaf stirring. Next morning they went at it again, using the precise elevation of the day before. The morning was raw, windy and foggy, and the first shot fell 300 yards short and 100 yards to one side of the target.

Of course, too, the carrying power of the gun charge varies. No two loads are exactly alike. So, though the skill of man tends toward remarkable precision of gunfire, there are always enough factors of uncertainty to make a sport of man-killing by war machinery.

German Writer Defends Britain

the famous German Socialist, writing to The Leipziger Volks Zeitung, delivered a furious attack on all the German papers for traducing the British character as one of hypocrisy, mendacity and fraud. When German Socialists like Liebknecht were not allowed to live in Germany they found friends in Britain.

Russia's Monster Submarine

A huge submarine, 400 feet long, 36 feet across in the widest part, and of 5,400 tons displacement, is being constructed for the Russian Government. Some idea of the size of this monster may be gathered from the fact that it is eleven times as large as the next largest submarine. Engines of 18,000 horsepower will drive this new submarine at twenty-six knots when it is cruising on the surface, and a speed of fourteen knots will be obtainable from the 4,400 horsepower motors when it is submerged. Its cruising radius is 18,500 miles; that is to say, it can run that distance without taking in fresh fuel, and it can travel 275 miles at a stretch under the surface. Sixty torpedoes, five 4.7 guns, and 120 mines are the weapons of war that this leviathan carries.

A Nebraskan after 11 years of experiments has invented a device that enables a user of a party telephone line to identify any other subscriber who may be listening to his conversation.

No waiters appear in the dining room of a new French hotel, the guests telephoning their orders from their tables, to which the food is delivered from a kitchen below by electric elevators.

The application of an electric heater to the air tube has made the spraying of varnish on furniture possible, the heat preventing the varnish turning white on the wood as it would if chilled.

A Bull's Eye.

If an advertiser could make every advertisement, and every word in it, do its best work for him, he would make a record and invariably hit the bull's eye. Perhaps such a score is not possible, but the rifle with which he shoots, may be the best possible, thus enhancing his chances for a perfect score.

The one best rifle, the nearest to perfect in advertising, is the newspaper. Others have been tried and are being tried by new and inexperienced advertisers; but as they watch results and grow in wisdom, they put their faith primarily in the newspaper. The example of these experienced ones is worth following.

BELLEVILLE PROTEST THE SARNIA CLUB

The Belleville Hockey Club have notified Secretary Hewitt, of the O.H.A. that they intend protesting T. G. Hillman, of the Sarnia Club, claiming that he did not go to Sarnia from Ottawa until after Aug. 1, thereby not qualifying under the residence rule. The Sarnia club state that Hillman is eligible and that they will welcome an investigation.

W. M. Tackaberry, a former Toronto newspaper man, now with the Ottawa Journal, has the following to say about Hillman of Sarnia, who is protested by Belleville:—"Talking about the few mistakes which the O. H.A. may or may not have made at different times, we are almost inclined to believe one was committed when Hillman from Ottawa was allowed to play with Sarnia this season. That is if the best association of its kind is as particular as ever about that August 1 residence rule. We may be mistaken, but we think not, when we say that Hillman did not leave Ottawa before August 1. Johnny Dore, who also plays for Sarnia and has done so for the last three years, was in Ottawa on the first day of August, and we are quite sure that he took Hillman back with him to Sarnia. The O.H.A. no doubt investigated the player's residence qualifications and found them otherwise than what we think they are."

FIGHT PURSE IS INCREASED

Richard Wanted Moran to Get Half as Much as Willard.

NEW YORK, March 11.—At a special meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission here, Tex Rickard, promoter of the Willard-Moran bout, Secretary Edwards of the show corporation, under whose auspices the contest is to take place in Madison Square Garden on March 25, and Manager James J. Johnston, who will have direct charge of the bout for the show corporation, were interrogated by all three commissioners. Chairman Wenck said it was desired to protect the interest of the public. It was finally agreed that all monies involved from the sale of tickets, the amount of the purse and the forfeits should be placed in the hands of a stakeholder, who would be amenable to the commissioners and acceptable to the promoters and managers of the bout, and that no money should be paid by this stakeholder until after the fight had taken place and all conditions in the contracts had been faithfully performed.

It developed that the purse has been increased from $70,000 to $71,250, of which Willard is to receive $47,500, while half that sum is to be paid to Moran. Rickard explained he believed that Moran should get at least half as much as the champion.

Gives One Hundred Dollars For Field Comforts For Soldiers

A special meeting of the Grand Trunk Employees' Patriotic Association of Districts 8, 9 and 10 was held in the Grand Trunk Library at Lindsay yesterday, March 12th, 1916, with Chairman J. D. McMillan in the chair and the following members of the Executive committees present: W. M. Thorpe, Loco. Foreman; W. J. Fee, Road Foreman; R. Heels, Supervisor of Track; E. Kingsley, Chief Despatcher; J. W. Lyons, Despatcher; W. J Cairns, Supervisor B. & B.; F. Sandy, Agent; H. Harry, Car Foreman; J. McMahon, Engineer; W. Abbott, Conductor; W. Hodgson, Conductor.

A committee of three was appointed to spend $100.00 to the best advantage in the purchase of field comforts for the Canadian soldiers at the front.

A report was made by a committee that had been previously appointed to inquire into Sewing Societys and Red Cross Associations at Lindsay, Midland and Peterborough to ascertain the work that was being done by them and whether or not they required assistance, and the information that this committee obtained from the different societies was a revelation to them and the amount of work in connection with these societies is very great and cannot be fully appreciated unless their work rooms are visited. The results accomplished by the ladies are wonderful and great credit is due them and as the keeping up of the good work depends largely on subscriptions from the public, the treasurer of this Association was authorized to donate $60.00 to the Saturday Sewers at Lindsay and $25.00 to each of the following societies—At Lindsay, Womens' Institute, Rebaccas and St. Mary's Club. At Midland, the Midland Patriotic Society and the Midland Hospital Guild. At Peterborough the Canadian-American Club.

$100 For Belgians.

The sum of $100 was recently donated to the Belgium Relief Fund and the following letter of acknowledgment has been received:

Montreal, March 3rd, 1916.

F. Sandy, Esq., Treasurer G. T. Employees' Patriotic Association, Lindsay, Ontario:

Dear Sir,—We are in receipt of your letter of the 28th ult., enclosing cheque for one hundred dollars ($100.00) as a contribution to our work from Grand Trunk Employees' Patriotic Association of Districts 8, 9 and 10, Lindsay, Ont.

We are exceedingly grateful for this splendid remittance and we beg to thank you very heartily. Kindly extend our thanks to every member of the Association individually.

We enclose herewith official receipts.

Yours very truly,

The Secretary of the Administrators,
Hector Prud' Homme.

The members of the Grand Trunk Employees' Patriotic Association are highly satisfied with the work that is being accomplished and it is the intention to continue contributing to Societies and Funds in connection with the present war.

New Laid Eggs Are Scarce

United States Product May Have to Be Imported to Fill the Gap—This Week's Market Review

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

There has been some change in situation in new-laid eggs. Supplies from country points have not been so plentiful as might be, nor as was wanted to satisfy demands, and quantities have been imported during the last few days from Chicago. Across the border new-laids are exceedingly plentiful just now, and can be laid down here at a low price, so low a price, in fact, that unless deliveries from country points in Canada become better and the price of Canadian stuff can be dropped, American eggs will go on getting the business. Reports from Chicago and New York indicate there are new-laids "to burn," and that for the moment conditions affecting the market are a complete reversal of those found in Canada. On other hand it must be remembered that for last three or four weeks preceding this week deliveries of new-laids in Canada have gone steadily better and prices have gone gradually lower. It may be only a temporary condition that deliveries from Ontario points are slow this week and next week may see reversion to better deliveries. New-laids have gone to the price recently where consumption has increased so much that it would be a pity if deliveries fell off. In United States new-laids had to be imported to any large extent to fill the gap.

Decline in Butter.

The boot is one the other foot with regard to butter. Produce men are wondering what the meaning of the low prices in butter, particularly when it is taken into consideration that receipts are small compared with those of last year. For several weeks receipts have been 50 and 60 per cent. only of what they were last year, which is a material decline. Why then are prices so easy and why is the market so dull? Presumably the answer is to be found in that there is small outside demand compared with last year; this in its turn is accounted for by fact that trade at the east and Middle West has fallen away to a marked extent. Be that as it may, receipts are exceptionally small and prices low. What is the answer? America is hard up for butter and market has been soaring upwards for four or five weeks, there having advanced almost 6c a pound during this time. Meanwhile the Canadian market has declined a cent or 1½c. Should the United States Market continue to be high and our own continue to be low with no particular reason why it should be high in the way of an increased demand, there should be a good opportunity for Canada to be exporting butter across the line. At this time last year we were doing considerable exporting to England which is not being done so extensively now. If present conditions continue for two or three weeks in both United States and Canadian markets, it is possible that exports to England from last year may be duplicated this year, only the destination will be changed to America.

Sugar Market.

Since last writing in these columns, sugar market, which was very strong, and looked due for an advance, registered three advances of 10c each per 100 lbs. It was suggested in our detailed report on sugar situation last week that an advance was by no means improbable and that weakness displayed. This has been confirmed by the actual advances referred to. The markets in New York and the raws and refiners buying has been factor in keeping the market up. There was some difference on part of refiners in paying prices which were asked for raws but these were in such strong shape that the refiners came to the point where they simply had to get raws, no matter what price was asked. Market even at advanced levels remains exceptionally strong, and no one can prophesy what will happen during next few days.

New York Stock Market

The market continued strong in the early afternoon with crucible topping the narrow list of very active issues. American Loco continued its upward movement and went ahead of baldwin. Prices held well and a number of advances were noted.

CANADIAN CAVALRY A COMPLETE UNIT

LONDON, February 18.—(Correspondence).—As if casting a shadow of coming events, the Strathcona Horse and the Royal Canadian Dragoons have lately left the firing line for a spot on the French coast, where they are undergoing a spell of cavalry exercise. In this place their steeds are reserved for them, and the men are looking forward to the day when they will be able to enter into action as mounted forces. Pte. J. Campbell, of Strathcona's Horse, from Winnipeg, when seen at the Duchess of Connaught's Hospital at Cliveden, said he had left the front before his regiment moved back, but, as they had spent more time in the trenches than any other unit, he was sure they had earned a change of quarters and of work. At one time, he said, they had a period of 63 days in the trenches, almost without interruption.

The Battle of Armageddon

Pastor Russell's discourse on the Battle of Armageddon he based upon the words of Jesus respecting the "distress of nations with perplexity." (Luke 21:25,26.) He pointed out that the word Armageddon is used symbolically in the Bible to refer to the great climax of earth's strife. He declared that it would mean the final overthrow of the powers of sin, for thereafter Messiah's Kingdom will rule the world. He declared that the Bible pictures three distinct stages of the trouble with which this age will end and the New Dispensation be inaugurated: first, the present war, weakening the nations and enlightening the people; second, following the war, a great revolution, symbolically styled in the Bible an earthquake such as never was since men were upon the earth; third, a period of anarchy, resulting from the failure of mankind to adjust themselves to a new conditions.

This anarchy is in the Bible symbolically styled fire, "the fire of God's anger," which will consume the present heavens and earth—not the literal earth, for it "abideth forever" (Ecclesiastes 1:4)—not the literal heavens, either. The symbolical heaven is the ecclesiastical system— and the symbolical earth is the social systems of the present. These will succumb to the FIRE of anarchy, which will destroy all present institutions and eventuate in the world's preparation for Messiah's Kingdom—"A new heaven and a new earth"—the desire of all nations—Rev. 21:1; Haggai 2:7

"A NEW HEAVEN AND A NEW EARTH."

As elijah the prophet typified the The earthquake represented the revoher final taking to Heaven, so these great events coming upon the earth were shown to Elijah in advance of his taking away. The wind that rent the rocks represented the present war. The erahtquake represented the revolution. The fire represented the anarchy. Then follows the "still small voice" of God, "speaking peace through Jesus Christ." This is the pure Message, in contrast with a confusion of creeds which have been preached and which have misrepresented the Divine Character and Plan. The knowledge of the glory of God will then fill the whole earth, until none shall need to say to his neighbor, Know thou the Lord; for all will know Him.—Jeremiah 31:34.

The Pastor referred to the fact that all the creeds in Christendom had mistaken this fire to be a literal one, instead of symbolic, forgetting that fire is repeatedly used in the Bible to represent severe trial. "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you"—the Church. St. Peter's words respecting the fire correspond to the words of Zephaniah's prophecy. (1. Peter's 4:12; Zephaniah 3:8,9.) There, after telling about the fire that would consume the social earth, the Lord declares that then He will turn to the people a pure Message, that they may all call upon His name to serve Him with one consent. Similarly St. Peter, after telling how the present symbolical heavens—ecclesiastical system—and the symbolical earth—the social order, will pass away in this fire of anarchy, says that there will be 'new heavens and a new earth'—a new ecclesiastical power and a new social order, 2 Peter 3:13.

Pastor Russell declared that this "new heavens" will be the Church in glory, the true Church of Christ in Millennial glory; and that the "new earth will be society reorganised on its new basis, in harmony with the Golden Rule of Messiah's Kingdom. He declared that to think of the earth as being burned up at the Second Coming of Christ would mean to forget that St. Peter elsewhere (Acts 3.19-21) declares that at Christ's Second Coming Times of Restitution and Refreshment would come to the world and that this blessing had been declared by God through all the holy Prophets since the world began.

For twenty-five hundred years God, through the Bible Prophets, has been telling His people about this great war and concerning the more terrible Armageddon which will follow it; and can we expect Him to reverse the programme at our behest? (Revelation 16:13, 14, 16.) The prayer of millions for the prosperity of the Germans and the extermination of the Allies, and the prayers of other millions for the success of the Allies and the annihilation of the Germans, and the prayers of the Pope and of our President and other good people that this awful war shall promptly cease, all go unanswered. The war proceeds and will eventuate in no glorious victory for any nation, but in the horrible mutilation and impoverishment of all. It will be followed by the Armageddon of Anarchy. After that, peace, lasting peace, may be hoped for, because God has declared it! It will be brought in by Messiah's Kingdom for which so long we have prayer "Thy Kingdom Come!"

GOD'S PART IN THE PRESENT WAR.

Doubtless many will be shocked with my declaring that this war and the resulting greater calamity are of Divine permission and arrangement, clearly prophesied in Scripture. The gathering of the nations to the present struggle is referred to in the prophecy of Joel, where the weak nations are called upon to assert their strength and were all of them are commanded to go down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat—Valley of Graves the cemetery outside of the city of Jerusalem being used by the Prophet in illustration of the terrible slaughter now going on.—Joel 3:9-13.

Surely this war has brought more to the grave than has any previous trouble; and it is far from ended. For years the nations, in harmony with Joel's prophecy, have been 'beating their plowshares into swords and their pruning hooks into spears,' in the sense that they have been spending for military purposes money which should properly have been spent in agricultural implements and developments.

WHY GOD HAS PERMITTED SIN AND DEATH.

Only as we look at the Divine Plan as a whole can we understand God's relationship with this bloody war and with all wars. To the majority it is confusing to think that God would bring about any war. There is surely something wrong or there would not be such perplexity, for the Lord tells His people concerning this Time of Trouble that they "need not be in darkness that that day should overtake them as a thief." (1 Thessalonians 5:4) God's people should have general information regarding His plans and arrangements.

Many have seen only small portions of the Divine Plan, and so have failed to grasp the great lengths, breaths, heights and depths of God's great Purpose. But whoever has an understanding of the great Plan of God will ever after be able rightly to appreciate and to locate not only the events of to-day, but also everything that is coming; for the Bible outlines the history of man. The Scriptures clearly teach that our earth is the only rebellious province in all God's fair creation. In this little planet God has permitted sin to take its course—to bud, to blossom, to bring forth its fruitage—that both men and angels may see the dire results of opposition to the Divine Government.

God foreknew just what would occur, however. He foreknew Adam's sin and fall, as well as the mental, moral and physical degeneracy which would result from the disobedience of our first parents. He foreknew our weakness and imperfection, our attempts at moral, religious, and mental reform and physical health. Yet He permitted all this to come to pass. Sin entered the world and has continued to rest upon the human family for six thousand years.

God's penalty upon man is death, and it matters not whether that death comes through war or pestilence or famine or by slower processes. Meantime, God would use all of man's experiences of the past six thousand years as a great lesson on the exceeding sinfulness of sin and on the utter hopelessness of any other help than that which God Himself has provided.

From the creation of Adam until now has been a period of six thousand-year days—man's Work Week—during which he has been permitted to try everything he could imagine for his own relief from sin and its penalty of death. After these sixty centuries humanity is still dying—mentally, morally and physically. Our only hope is in God; and He has arranged that His blessing shall come through Messiah's Kingdom, when we shall have reached our extremity. Man's extremity is anarchy will be God's opportunity.

DIVINE INTERPOSITION NEEDED.

So far from gaining life everlasting four our race, all our efforts have accomplished nothing. Our most learned physicians and specialists declare that the world is on the verge of collapse; and that at the present rate of increase there would not, if one hundred and sixty years, be enough sane people in the world to care for the insane They tell us that various diseases are increasing so rapidly as to endanger the race in a very short time; and that this is true notwithstanding that sanitary conditions are made necessary, even to the extent of individual drinking cups.

Our only hope lies in the great Seventh Day, the antitypical Sabbath. In it Messiah, associating with Himself the saintly ones of this Gospel Age, will set up the Divine Kingdom amongst men—a spiritual Kingdom, not an earthly one, but ruling amongst mankind, blessing and uplifting them. For a thousand years the work of uplift will progress, until all the willing and obedient will have attained again the lost likeness of their Creator, and the whole earth will be their Paradise.

This war and the following Anarchy of Armageddon will prove conclusively the need of Divine interposi- speaking of the present troubles and the resulting anarchy "Unless those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved." (Matthew 24:22.) Doubtless earth's great rulers have done their best. Having a false idea of what constitutes Messiah Kingdom, each seems to think it his mission to conquer the world. They also believe they foresee a general uprising of Socialism, and their hearts are failing them, fearing the things coming on the earth.

While they knew this would be the worst war ever known, they preferred it to what they were striving to ward off and have succeeded in warding off for the present. But they have lost their best blood, their best energy, money, commerce, etc., and when the war is ended, their disappointed peoples will be greatly angered at their rulers. Then will come the determination for something like Socialism. This the governments will endeavor to put down and will succeed partially. Then will come the great explosion—the Armageddon of the Scriptures This time of trouble will just precede Messiah's Kingdom.—Daniel 12:1.

SPEND YOUR MONEY FOR THE GOODS AS ADVERTISED IN THE EXAMINER

I did not spend any more money on myself when I had a fortune than I do now, but my expenses have been as high as $100,000 a year. It takes a woman to spend money. I am after big money. I want money to pay the people I owe. Anything which pays big returns will serve. I don't expect to confine myself to the dry goods business.

"No merchant should own his place of business. I lost $1,500,000 on the building we put up in New York. When we went to the wall the building, which cost $2,500,000 sold for $1,000,000 and the purchaser was handed a lemon. My fatal move going to Boston.

"I am headed West and may locate in Chicago. Any place where there is big money will do. I may have to start again in a small way and grow big, but maybe if I can get a lot of money I will start in on a huge plan.

Educational Services At The George Street Methodist Church

Rev. Dr. Workman Delivers Two Inspiring Sermons---Morning Subject: the Biblical Interpretation of "Love Your Enemies"

"But I say unto you Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."—Matt. v., 14.

Using this text, Rev. Dr. Workman sought to preach an educative rather than an educational sermon, the object being not only to educate but to remove some misconceptions with reference thereto. Besides, a sermon that treats of such a question as loving our enemies is particularly appropriate for our educational service.

Religious love, its meaning, its object and the laws governing it.

"Love" is the most misused word in the Bible. "Faith," also, is a badly twisted term, being widely used as the equivalent of credulity, while love is more frequently used as the equivalent of complacency. Because faith is used in the sense of credulity some interpret it as believing what we know is not true, and because love is used in the sense of complacency some define love as feeling what we know is not due another, or professing what we know we cannot do.

In English, "love" means to hold dear, to take pleasure in, to view with satisfaction. There there are as many kinds of love as there are emotions, such as: conjugal love, of husband for wife, parental love, of parent for child, filial love, of child for parent, or love of animals, flowers, and other objects. In addition there is the conception of religious love, the love of man for his Maker and for his fellowmen.

RELIGIOUS LOVE.

Religious love is not the same as the other types, they are emotional, whereas religious love is volitional or moral, and in that sense we love God.

We do not love the heathen because we take pleasure in them, but because we wish them well. Religious love, then, is a love of benevolence. Personally, observed the speaker, I do not like such expressions as "Dear God," "Dear Jesus," they are altogether too emotional and do not convey the proper conception. I prefer: "Gracious God," "Blessed Lord."

In Greek there are two distinct words, one meaning to take pleasure in, the other meaning to wish well. In the original there is no ambiguity, whatever; and it is the word "to wish well" that is used in the text. Love your enemies, therefore, means to wish them well, treat them kindly, endeavour to do them good. Your neighbour's character may be bad, but you must regard "him" kindly, and endeavour to render service if possible.

Religious love is not silly or sentimental, neither is it emotional, but it is a rational, moral love that wishes well to all mankind. The gospel message of love is that of goodwill: God to man, and man to man: to make benevolence real, to make righteousness, regnant in all possible relations of human life.

ITS OBJECT.

Religious love has for its object all mankind, since we can wish all well. We may not admire their character, nor approve their conduct; we may dislike and condemn their actions, yet we can wish them well. In this sense we can love those whom we dislike or loathe, because of their vicious manners, and we can pray for their welfare and do all in our power to elevate them.

The text refers to a special class of men. "Love your enemies" means love those who dislike us, those who persecute us on account of our religious beliefs.

In Leviticus xix., 18, we read: "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." This is the same as the precept uttered by Jesus in the New Testament. In the Old Testament neighbour meant a Hebrew neighbour, in the New Testament neighbour means not only a fellow Christian, but anyone throughout the world whom we can help or bless. On the other hand the Jewish Rabbis held to the interpretation of a neighbour being a fellow Jew, which is foreign to the teaching of Jesus Christ. Before the time of Christ, and since, religious bigotry produces religious hatred, and it is a most contemptible hatred.

Christ teaches that our neighbour is not necessarily the one who lives next door, but is any man throughout the wide world whom we can bless.

We must hate no man in the sense of doing evil to him. We may despise a coward, detest a liar and abhor a traitor, but any desire to injure is wrong. We may hate the sin but not the sinner.

LAW OF RELIGIOUS LOVE.

Religious love has its laws; that of common sense and rational self-control.

The command of the text is the conception of love put forth in the form of a precept, rather than in the form of a statute. A statute is a legal enactment to be observed to the letter. The criminal we try, and if found guilty, we punish. A precept is a rule of action to govern conduct. Its principle; to have a feeling of goodwill toward those who are unfriendly or hostile.

A preacher in London said recently: "We should love the Germans and try to get them to love us in return." It is irrational to think of liking them until the ground for our dislike is removed.

The method of application: The two clauses of the text must be taken together, love our enemies and pray for them. In the religious sense love applies to anyone for whom we can pray. If a man murders our wife or child the Scripture does not mean that we shall like them in the sentimental sense. "Love your enemies" means pray God to open their eyes, to change their minds and give them the Christian spirit. Can we pray for those with whom we are at war? We can pray for the country and its welfare, for its people and their welfare. We may hate their treachery, their butchery, their brutality, but we can pray God to open their eyes, as many of them were before they became affiliated with the Prussians.

The Germans disdain or think themselves superior to the French, but do not hate them; they despise the Russians, but they do hate the British with an intense hatred. However, their hatred of Britain does not hurt Britain, it curses themselves.

But there is another class of men among the Teutons: Those who have committed deeds which are beyond description. These men are not enemies, they are murderers, yes, demons. When God said love our enemies He did not mean to love murderers, instead it should be our duty to shoot, to destroy them to keep them from doing the deed; but once the deed is done then bring them to justice.

To show how to apply the principle, both in defence of others and in the defence of ourselves—aggressive war is wrong but defensive war is right—take two illustrations: First in defence of others, that story taken from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," wherein a slave pursuer is chasing slaves who take refuge up on a high rock. As the pursuer approaches a Quaker springs at him and pushes him over the rock, saying, as th man crashes to the depths below; "Friend thee is not wanted here." Second in defence of self, a story which he as a boy heard from the lips of Rev. Carswell in Oshawa, that of a British ship out on the seas, sights a pirate vessel. In his alarm the captain stations each man at his post and instructs him what to do. On board is a Quaker, a believer in non-resistance, who declines to do anything. As the ship draws nearer the Quaker shows signs of uneasiness, and as the pirates try to scale the side of the vessel the Quaker grabs an axe, and as he chops away at their hands he is heard to say: "I don't wish to harm thee, but I must keep cutting away."

We see still another example in France a year ago last Christmas, when the British, French and German soldiers fraternized and played games together on Christmas Day, showing that even men at the front can face one another without hatred; but since the perpetration of so many atrocities the spirit of the British has changed.

A man possessed of hatred is happy when the object of his passion is happy. The Lord deliver us from a state of mind like that, instead we should love our enemies, bless them that curse us, do good to them that hate us and pray for them which despitefully use us that we may be the children of our Father which is in heaven.

—Paul Penman.

ALLIES' WAR ONLY BEGINNING

PARIS, March 11.—"The best soldiers in the world," is the opinion of General Sir Bryan Mahon, commanding the British forces in the Balkans expressed to the Journal's Saloniki correspondent regarding the French army.

"Germany has finished her war, while ours is only beginning, and in my opinion no people will venture to execute criminal design as long as two such gendarmes as Britain and France are ready to defend the right."

MR. N. F. DAVIDSON OF TORONTO AT THE ARMOURIES LAST NIGHT

Another recruiting meeting was held in the Armouries last night, the speaker of the evening being Mr. N. F. Davidson, of Toronto, a brother of Major Davidson, and a member of the Speakers' Patriotic League of the Queen City. A fair audience turned out notwithstanding the storm and reaction after the immense crowd that thronged to hear Mrs. Pankhurst last Sunday night.

Mr. Daniel O'Connel acted as chairman, and gave a neat little recruiting appeal before introducing Mr. Davidson. "The 93rd wants 800 men," said he; "the citizens of Peterborough have pledged themselves to fill its ranks, therefore our honour is at stake. Our young men will have to rise to the occasion, and see that the pledge is kept." There is a terrible slaughter going on, yet we are living in a marvellously favoured country in peace and security, over three thousand miles from the battle front and from all the scenes of destruction, and fail to appreciate the need of the situation. Of all the great struggles of history none is equal to this. It is absolutely and this nation is trying to put forth every energy that is within her power, therefore it is the duty of the people to arise and do what is necessary to ensure the existence of the Empire.

This great Nation, the greatest the world has ever seen, is fighting right across the continent of Europe, across France, Belgium, Greece, Turkey and Mesepotamia, on three continents, exerting every ounce of strength to prevent her falling to pieces. We have had great conflicts in the past; the Empire has not been built up to the proud position she now occupies without struggles, and to us, the people of the 20th century, has been reserved the testing time, to meet this supreme crisis and save our country from destruction."

Mr. Davidson.

Mr. Davidson, while in the act of removing his overcoat preparatory to speaking, said: "England is taking off her coat, Australia and New Zealand are taking off their coats, and it is up to Canada to do the same." Quoting from a letter written by the great American author, Richard Harding Davis, relative to the neutrality of the United States, he said in substance: "I have not seen the letter which President Wilson addressed to his people to preserve neutrality, but if he had seen the war as I have seen it he would not have written it. It is not war against Germans, as we know them in America, but against a military aristocracy 600 years behind the times. They have perverted to their use every known invention for the destruction of life and property. Were the conflict in Europe a fair fight things would be different, but it is not a fair fight. The devastation of cities, the murdering of innocents, the levying of blackmail and the destruction of cathedrals is not fair fighting. If a mad dog dashes through a town it is the duty of every man to destroy it."

This was said before the Lusitania, before Edith Cavell, before the horrors of this last year.

Surely we have a responsibility for the seeming neutrality of our own citizens who say it is not their fight.

We should approach the subject of recruiting by thinking of what we owe to the great British Navy. What good would our harvest have been if the seas had not been in the hands of the British Navy? What need would there be for recruiting if Britain did not rule the seas and make it possible for troops to be transported? Where would we have been if German ships had overrun the oceans? Quivering by our firesides thinking of what our condition would be in the Dominion if Germany won. She might not necessarily subjugate the English Isles, but where among all the colonies of Great Britain would Germany, sooner cast her covetous eyes than on the great expanses of our fair Dominion?

The Business of the Day.

Turning from the navy to the business of the day, was it not with something of a shock that we read the statement of Baron Shaughnessy the other day, to go a bit slow in raising recruits. Going back in thought to August, 1914, the raising of 20,000 men in ten or twelve days, the sending them overseas in seven weeks, if Canada had been ready and determined that the second contingent would have followed in seven weeks, what a difference it would have made instead of waiting seven long months. Would there have been the great slaughter of St. Julien and Ypres? If we but knew that to-night our Divisions are in a desparate struggle and in need of reinforcements as they were in April last we would shoulder our guns and see that Canadian soldiers would never be unsupported again. That is sufficient answer to any great financier, who thinks that money is of more value than life.

In November, 1914, when I first began to speak to men and women of the marvellous blessings that Ontario enjoyed, and of the duties and obligations of war, I said: "My only fear regarding the duration of the war is lest it might end before every municipality had a chance of participating in the giving of men, money, and making sacrifices in order that it might change us from the gross materialism which has swept over the country the last twenty years, and which had invaded Great Britain. This awful cataclysm had to happen for the rejuvenation of mankind."

It is the business of you and me to bring home to every man the lessons of the great war. The teacher must make it known to the child. All must know that the present awful attack on Verdun, that the hundred miles to Paris, is as if the German guns were at Belleville and their booming could be heard to Port Hope; that an attack on Paris and on Britain's shores would be an attack on Toronto and Peterborough. Who knows what is to be the issue of Verdun? But we do know that now is the time to do our part.

This war is too huge to think of collectively, we must think of it individually.

First the speaker referred to Trinity College. There a young second-year man named Richards had joined the London Scottish and was the first to cross to France. In the first bayonet charge his company commander was betrayed by a traitor, and he laid down his life. His mother, in writing to his college chum, said: "I am proud of him in that he did what was asked of him, what more could he have done?"

He then, with telling effect, quoted from the letter of Major Bennett to his friend Rogers, wherein the major commented on those who stayed at home, and referred to the fact that the time to show their mettle was about to come: the real test had not yet been made, but he knew that when it did come they would make good, and Bennett made good.

While delivering an address in Mt Forest he was made acquainted with a Mrs. Campbell, a little woman dressed in black, who, with two little children, lived on a farm near the town. Her husband had been an officer in the South African war and when the present conflict broke out he dropped the farm and proceeded to the front. The townspeople rallied to the help of the ones left behind and gathered in the harvest. One item in the "Times" of June, 1914, recounted the bravery of an unknown hero who had been commander of a machine gun who, when all but himself and a sergeant had been mowed down, kept the gun going until he was riddled with bullets. In the same paper appeared a notice: "Died of wounds, Lieut. Frederick William Campbell."

In due time his widow received his Victoria Cross, one of the greatest honours that can come to a soldier.

Mrs. (Rev.) Lewis, of 421 Stewart street, is a cousin of the late Lieut. Campbell.

After alluding to the great number of Canadian prisoners in Germany, and our duty to try and bring about their release, Mr. Davidson made the customary appeal for recruits for the 93rd Battalion.

"Our artillery is good," said he, "but it is of little effect without men in the front trenches. The men of the 93rd are front liners."

SOLDIERS AS FARM HANDS

WINNIPEG, Man., March 11.—The problem of finding help to put in this year's crop is practically solved by an official order from the Militia Department, allowing non-commissioned officers and men on active service in Canada leave of absence not exceeding one month to go on farms. The soldiers will receive full pay and allowance as usual for their services as soldiers in addition to what they can earn from the farmers. The Dominion Government will provide free transportation not exceeding 300 miles.

the one who had conscientious scruples against taking human life. He, however, was engaged in the work of securing soldiers of the Cross.

Passing on to his lecture, "Pastor" Russell began by saying that the battle of Armageddon was a symbolic name described by Christ as a "time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation." It was the doorway leading to the reign of "peace on earth and goodwill among men." Wars would be followed by revolution and anarchy, and then would come the kingdom of the Prince of Peace.

From this opening the speaker went on to dilate upon the different phases of his doctrine. His theory that every person would have a second chance to repent in the life to come was exponded at length, and he grew eloquent on the subject of "Hell," the anti-hell fire portion of his address being probably the most striking feature. He did not believe in the hell of eternal punishment, "a hell with fireproof devils" to keep the fires going. Hell, according to his interpretation, was the grave—death. He did not, he said, think that the greater part of the millions who had died since the world began were writhing in anguish in a place of torment. To believe that was to misjudge God. This point was gone into at great length, and with many quotations from the Scriptures. The speaker used a question and answer style throughout, with the result that "Brother Russell" was a predominating name through the long discourse. He was given a good hearing, although half way through a number of people started to leave, and the speaker stopped his lecture and called upon the audience to sing a hymn until those who wished to go had left the Opera House.

Mr. Wearing's Question.

At the close of his address Pastor Russell announced that the meeting would be closed with a hymn.

Before this could be commenced, however, Mr. Joseph Wearing, who was seated at the front of the theatre, was on his feet with a question. It was as follows:

"The people of the British Empire are now fighting for what they believe to be the fundamental principles of righteousness. Every man who is able to go is needed at the front. Is it your opinion that under these circumstances, members of the International Bible Students' Association or any other people, are justified in trying to escape military duty?"

Mr. Wearing advised the audience to remain for ten minutes at the close of the meeting.

Pastor Russell hesitated for a moment before answering the question and then went on to say that it was a matter of personal opinion. He was not saying to recruit or not to recruit. If a man felt that his duty was to go he should go. He had merely pointed out, he said, to some of his Bible students that the laws of their country exempted them from service if they had conscientious scruples against the taking of human life.

"I am not a Canadian," he began.

"Thank God" came from somewhere in the audience;

"I am not a Canadian," continued Pastor Russell, "and I would not presume to dictate to you people what you should do."

Along came an interruption in the shape of Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., proprietor of the Grand Opera House. He strode down to the front of the house and addressed the audience.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he announced, "Pastor Russell engaged this Opera House for the afternoon, and if Mr. Wearing or anyone else wants to hold a meeting afterwards they'll have to pay for it."

"How much do you want to rent the Opera House for ten minutes?" asked Mr. Wearing.

Before he could commence, however, Mr. Turner again interrupted. "I want to say that Pastor Russell paid in advance and Mr. Wearing will have to do the same," he declared.

The money was not long in forthcoming. Bills were waved all over the house, and in a few seconds Mr. Wearing turned over a pile of bank notes to Mr. Turner.

"Get a receipt," was the call from different parts of the theatre and the receipt was written and signed. Then Mr. Wearing started in amid enthusiastic cheering.

A Rousing Speech.

Mr. Wearing began by stating that Pastor Russell had absolutely evaded the question and that the only conclusion one could reach from the Pastor's own statements with regard to the affidavits which are being circulated among his followers was that the members of the International Bible Students' Association did not believe in giving to war under any circumstances. "I do not wish to be irreverent," said Mr. Wearing, "and I believe that a soldier should first be a Christian—I will go further and say that he will be the better soldier for being a good Christian. But if I have to make my choice of either going to Paradise with the spineless sanctimonious hypocrites who will let freedom perish from the earth rather than lift the sword in her defence, I say if I have to make my choice between this and perdition with the brave heroes who have left their homes and everything they hold dear, to die if need be, to crush a tyranny which has let loose upon the world all the horrors of barbarism, if it comes to a choice between these two courses of action, then gladly will I go to hell with the soldiers." (Great cheering.)

Mr. Wearing then referred to the fact that Pastor Russell had laid special stress upon the circumstances that he was an American subject. "I do not wish to say a word against a friendly nation," he said, "and there is no doubt that we are under an eternal obligation to thousands of American citizens and many American newspapers for the support they have given to us in this time of crisis, but in all kindness what are the facts with regard to this powerful nation, a nation founded by the dauntless heroes of liberty who came over in the Mayflower, a nation which with invincible courage cut loose from the mother country when her liberties were assailed, a nation which consecrated freedom for all men with the blood of thousands of her best sons; what are the simple facts? In 1907 at the Hague, representatives of both Germany and the United States signed a convention respecting the rights and duties of neutral powers, the first two articles of which are as follows:

1. The territory of neutral powers is inviolable.

2. Belligerents are forbidden to move across the territory of a neutral power, troops or convoys, either of munitions or war supplies.

Now when Germany shamelessly broke this solemn agreement and ruthlessly violated a neutral country, did the United States immediately wire a strong protest—No. Did she break off diplomatic relations as a sign of stern disapprobation? No. Did she call her men to arms to defend a defenceless country whose homes were being desecrated and whose women were being ravished? (Voice from the audience: 'She did not.') Not for months, and until the murder of her own citizens on the Lusitania, did she so much as send a note of disapproval. Then she did send such a note—she has been sending them ever since and the murder of her citizens continues. Only last week Americans were drowned on a merchant ship torpedoed without warning. She finds the pen mightier than the sword, but the murder of her own citizens goes right on. In the face of these facts I complain of the audacity of this American coming over here and, if not openly, at least secretly disseminating ideas which militate against enlistment. (Cries of 'hear! hear!') We are fighting for the priceless gift of freedom, which has won for us bit by bit through the long centuries by the blood of our forefathers. Every man who is able is needed to fill up our battalions. Under these circumstances I resent the effrontery of this man coming into this country and spreading these ideas of peace at any price." (Loud cheers.)

The speaker then pointed out that Pastor Russell in his long discourse—and said Mr. Wearing, "if I learned anything from him this afternoon it is never to make a long speech"—had said nothin about the practical duties of a Christian with regard to honour and truth, and righteousness. He had said, "When the judgments of the Lord are abroad on the earth the people will learn righteousness." "I believe," said Mr. Wearing, "that the judgments of the Lord are often executed through human agencies, and that the only way Germany will ever learn righteousness is by prosecuting this war to a satisfactory conclusion. The Bible says, 'The devil goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour,' and my own opinion is that if the devil has ever been personified he is now personified in Germany." Here Mr. Wearing made a powerful plea to the young men and the audience to enlist in the local battalion. He said that he was not asking them to do something he was unwilling to do himself and referred to the fact that he had offered himself as a private but was unable to pass the medical examination. At the end of the appeal a lady in the audience called out, "the ten minutes is up," and a man jumped up waving a bill and shouting, "ten dollars for another ten minutes." "I believe the Bible," said the speaker, "just as sincerely as Pastor Russell, and I believe that all men will be judged for their conduct on earth. Some men in Peterborough in that judgment are going to be branded cowards. What men mythe building wish in the judgment to be stamped with that mark of infamy. How many men here will spurn the coward's place and join the 93rd to-morrow?" (Cheers).

The meeting was brought to a close in loyal British manner by the singing of the National Anthem.

ROYAL THEATRE EPLAINS POSITION.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I was interviewed by two gentlemen this morning who desired to secure the Royal Theatre for the International Bible Students' Association for the next three Sundays for meetings. I stated to them I would ot care to let them have my Theatre at any price, but would let the 93rd Battalion have the use of it for nothing if they desired. This I will do.

Yours truly,

HAS THE LIQUOR TRADE A REASONABLE CLAIM TO COMPENSATION.

Editor of the Examiner,

Sir,—We are Britons, therefore just men; bright in honour, sterling true. We must see that none are slighted. We must give to all their due. Let us ask them what these claims are. Let us render what is right and to find due compensation.

Follow reason's guiding light. (Unknown). On what grounds do the liquor men make their claim to compensation? Is it on legal or moral grounds; a matter of law, custom, or justice. We do not want to be unjust to any man or section of men, but they must prove their claim. Let us take the legal aspect first. A license has been granted for one year only, giving the licensee the privilege of doing something that other people are prohibited from doing; thus giving him a monopoly in that particular business, that monopoly immediately raises the value of the property in which that business is carried on, and as the privilege is renewed from year to year, men are willing to pay an artificial value for such property. Are they then entitled to have that artificial value protected to them; or if taken away, have they a claim to compensation? Whose action raised the value of property in the first place? The State, by creating the monopoly. Who enjoyed the benefits derived from the increase? The licensee What wrong, then, is done to the licensee when the State withdraws the license? The property will be of the same value as it was before the license was granted, other things being equal, as business men, had they any right ot expect that they would be allowed to continue in the enjoyment of such a privilege, indefinitely? I think not, the license being for one year, the licensee is in the same position as a yearly tenant whose landlord may terminate the tenancy without compensation. We find, therefore, that legally the trade has not a title of a claim to compensation; secondly, let us look at the question from a moral standpoint and we find they have even less claim if possible. The majority of them are well-to-do men; many of them wealthy and, consequently cannot claim on the score of necessity. Then, their work has been altogether baneful and vicious, doing harm to countless thousands of their fellow men, and surely they do not expect to be paid for the ruin they have wrought. Then, again, the people have already had to pay millions of dollars to alleviate distress caused by their traffic in drink while they have taken the profit; from a moral standpoint they are already heavily in our debt.

Thirdly, custom. None of the men whose licenses have been refused under local option have been compensated. Then, why should those who have held the privilege the longest and whose boast has been that as much liquor has been sold by the few as by the many, thus making increased profits. Why should they be compensated when the other fellows were not? Let them taste the sweets of honest labour and the blessing of a conscience free from the taint of a trade that debases and curses, both themselves and their fellows, and in a short time there will be no person more grateful to the temperance forces than the liquor men, themselves.

GEO. LEADER.

CYRIL MAUDE—THE DISTINGUISHED ENGLISH ACTOR.

Next Wednesday's attraction at "The Grand" will be Mr. Cyril Maude in his international triumph, "Grumpy." The reputation of both star and play is such that no hesitancy is required in saying that this will prove one of the season's most welcome offerings. The play is a four-act comedy drama by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval. It served to establish Mr. Maude among the greatest actors ever seen on the American stage. Proof of the attractiveness of the star and play, is the fact that after his long engagement at Wallack's Theatre, New York. Mr. Maude returned from a year on tour, for a limited engagement at the Empire Theatre, last fall, and played to capacity audiences at practically every performance.

Will Made On The Battlefield

Recently Mayor Duncan of Cobourg received from the war office in London, England, a copy of a will made on the battlefield by Gunner Bert Munn, who was killed in action. The will is not witnessed, but is written on a piece of paper in lead pencil and will no doubt stand in law. He leaves all his money in the Bank of Scotland, to his mother, but all other money, including $140, and an hotel property in Scotland, he willed to his fiance in Cobourg.

An Iron Horse Takes The Bit in Its Teeth

We often hear of an ordinary horse of the flesh and blood variety taking the bit in its teeth and running amuck, but we seldom read of an iron horse behaving in an unseemly manner.

However, it would appear that last Saturday the faithful monster that lugs along the 11.27 C.P.R. Express chafed at being half an hour late, and before the baggage, mail or express were taken off it started on its eastern trip across the bridge leaving behind a couple of the train crew. Consternation reigned supreme on the platform until the train was seen to stop and back up to the station, with the engineer at the throttle.

A mystery surrounds the episode but it is thought something went wrong with the throttle valve, but was promptly brought under control by the engineer who was in the cab

A system has been developed where by wireless messages may be received in safety at all times, even during thunder storms.

WITH THE ROYAL ARMY MEDICAL CORPS AT LEMNOS AND ALEXANDRIA

Interesting Description of Conditions in the Mediterranean by Lieut. Coutts---Scenes at Lemnos Form Subject of a Cleverly Written Letter

The following interesting article was written by Lieut. Coutts of the Royal Army Medical Corps, and forwarded to the Examiner by Rev. Wm. Farquharson of Agincourt, who was at St. Andrew's Church for some time this winter—

At last we are off, sweeping out to sea—a thrilling sensation. For six months we have been immured in old Lemnos—barren, arid, spiritless, dead Lemnos. I never realised the fact as I do now, restored to liberty and a new life. Every day had its duty and its allied interest. The time never hung heavily on my mind. It was simply a probationary spell, whose end I knew would come, and did not concern myself particularly, looking for it. But now it has come, and the freshness and luxury and lightsomeness of the change are very gratifying. The dust storms and the grime and dirt of tent life the poor food, and the listless environment have, I now realize, played upon my mind, and it is rebounding in the atmosphere of a new venture.

Durig the past weeks we have been wiating, expecting to hear the orders to go. Our patients are nearly all gone, and most of our tents struck and packed with equipment. There, we were teased and played with—it's a way they have in the army. We leave in two days, came the order. The two days went, but we did not "Stand by and be ready to pack in two hours," came a delightful second order. We stood by and watched the "dogs" pass by and leave us. Then we were to leave in four or five days, on the arrival of a certain ship. But one rainy morning we got definite orders that we were to board the Corisbrook Castle, next morning. The rain which had been pouring on us for 24 hours suddenly ceased. The wind sprang up and the sun shone out as though entirely for our benefit. Then sitting in our tents, at 2.30, we suddenly got the word that the Carisbrook Castle was steaming into harbour, and we were to be at the pier at 4.30. While we were one and all M. O's. and sisters, and away we went in our launch to board the Castle liner, now converted into a delightful hospital ship. How clean everything seemed! The white paint the well-scrubbed floors, the clean linen, the wholesome odours, and the well prepared food. What a luxury for the body and rest for the mind! We drank deeply of the enjoyment with some consciousness that we were a little queer, out of place, as long had we been disconnected with civilized life. Forty-eight hours we rested in harbour, and now the morning of the 7th of February we are sweeping out into the deep blue sea. One by one the landmarks have faded from our view. The Village of old Mudros, with its conspicuous Church on the height; the windmills resting on the hill tops, one of the most conspicuous features of Lemnos civilization; the dotting tents and huts of fragments of units still remaining. We have left the harbour with its ships, behind us, and all that remains to our view is the faint outline of her hills against the sky

Alexandra is our destination for the moment—two days' voyage, and then wherever the fates may lead we have not a hint of here. And so our present is full of the interest of expectancy in a new venture, the scope and direction of which is hid den from our view. Whatever it may be, no one regrets leaving Lemnos. I never heard of any one who died and yet underneath the pleasure of departing, I had the consciousness of saying good-bye.

February 8th.

What a delicious morning! We are passing the Island of Rhodes. On our left, and Karpathos, on our right. Rhodes has the benefit of the sunshine upon her, and looks beautifull indeed. Karpathos is more in the shadow, and looks gloomy and threatening. The skies are charming. Our skies at Lemnos, as I have told you, were lovely, but they will probably be still more lovely in Egypt. The air is becoming balmier as we pass southward; the difference is already marked. The sea is calm and our boat gives no sense of motion. How delightful it all is! I wish we could sail on and on. It is like dream land after the realities of Lemnos. But it lasts only till to-morrow morning. We shall be in Alexandra very early.

If you look at the map of Lemnos you will see the town of Castros on the west. It is an ancient place, built on a beautiful cove with shelving, sandy beach. We spent a day there the week before leaving. The cove is divided by a great rock projecting outward, two or three hundred feet high. On the summit is built an ancient fort, whose masonry in the distance appears intact, but in closer inspection, is crumbling away—built by the Genoese, 'tis said A cannon equally or more ancient, still rests there, and the ground is strewn with cannon balls of the same date. The gun bears a Latin inscription to Philip V. of Spain, dated 1556. A splendid view is obtained from the fort over the sea on the one hand, where the Isle of Athos rises—the home of a body of monks—and over the town up into the hills on the other. The town might shelter a population of about 1,000, perhaps. It is built of stone the houses square shaped, with cottage roofs, made of tile. A Mohammedan minaret denotes the influence of the Turk, and gives one a feeling of still greater remoteness from the spirit of the place. The day was glorious.

We went over in a Red Cross motor van. Our road is one built of stone, with no other bond than mud. It extends from Mudros, skirting the harbour, as far as Turk's Head, and then winding up through the hills to the west coast—a distance of 17 miles. We pass Thermos on the way where are the hot springs and a crowd of British Tommies, waiting to enter the baths. The water runs directly into the bath by an inch pipe, and there flows on again to join the mountain brook that trebles down among the rocks. Its temperature is higher than body heat—about 110 degrees, I would judge.

In our busy life at Lemnos the island presented a variety of activity. Most frequent and continuous by day and night was the Red Cross motor ambulance plying from pier to the various hospital units distributed over the island. Then there were continually arriving troops from the peninsula to rest camps on the island, and other bodies of troops from home en route for the peninsula or Salonika. Striking among these are the Scotch regiments with their bagpipes leading on—the shrill romantic skirl carries one back to the glens and mountainous and craggy words with their romance of story and poetry. Then the Australians, by the thousands; young giants, with faces that betoken a dauntless enemy, and the New Zealanders equally keen fighters, and perhaps of finer mould. There are also the mule and horse transport sections. Thousands of these animals tethered in long rows. And far from the least interesting are the R. N. A. S., with their bird machines. They showed us most interesting pictures, taken from the air, of trenches and submerged boats. The Turkish trenches, deeper and showing darker than the British. Then there is the quaint native life of the island. Little donkeys as high as a man's waist, most docile and obedient, kindly little creatures; strong for their size, footing it along carrying a man looking larger than the beast he rides on, or a woman with forehead and chin and mouth veiled, or a big load of materials set astride the saddle, secured to a pad fitting the donkey's back, secured fore and aft. They are beasts of burden, means of transport, or joy riders or pets. They emit the most hideous sounds I ever heard when they bray. I can compare it to nothing for I never heard anything like it.

To add to our variety, we had occasional visits from enemy Taubes who dropped bombs to impress us with their reality. These men never hit anything but land and water, and I am sure we all would have been willing to pay a good entrance fee to see their gratis performance.

February 11, 1916.

Here we are encamped two miles outside of Alexandra, in a truly African, delightful, balmy air, but dumb and silent. High palm trees surround us with very little foliage. We are said to be going to Port Said soon, possibly we are destined for the Persian Gulf. No one knows. We have been destined for many a place that we have never reached.

I got your parcels, intended for Christmas, to-day, O.K. Thank all the donors for me.

NOTHING FROM PATRIOTIC FUND WHILE SOLDIERS LIVE AT HOME

Soldier's Pay, Subsistence and Separation Allowance Amount to Over $70 and This is Regarded as Sufficient—A Recent Decision

Growing out of the proposed arrangement to billet men of the 93rd at their homes, because of the lack of sleeping accommodation at the armouries, and until the old Murray street church could be fitted up, as a dormitory, some uncertainty resulted as to the status of the men and families as regards pay and separation allowance.

Commencing from March 1st, separation allowance will be paid to all entitled to the same direct from headquarters. The allowance will be paid to all wives, whether the husbands are living at home or are quartered in barracks.

The Patriotic Fund will make a distinction. In the case of men living and sleeping at home no assistance will be given to their wives from the Fund. Such men will receive $1.10 perday wages. Their wives will have 60 cents per day as subsistence allowance and will draw a separation allowance of $20.00 per month. This means a total income of over $70.00 per month and in no part of the country should further assistance be given. Men quartered in barracks, and their wives, will be on the same financial basis as heretofore.

This rule will effect all men and families, living at Apsley, Lakefield, Norwood and other recruiting points.

Rev. Canon Cornish At St. John's

What Will the Nation Be After It Has Gone Through the Fire? It All Depends How Sincere We Are

Large congregations turned out both morning and evening to hear the Rev. Canon Cornish, who yesterday made his initial appearance in St John's church. Rev. Canon Cornish succeeds Major. J. C. Davidson; the latter having assumed the chaplaincy of the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F.

"The life eternal" formed the subject of the evensong sermon. The speaker referred to the three-fold temptation that Christ encountered in the wilderness. The Lord does not say this shall be the life but this is the life so that we might know him by personal experience as the true Christ. If belief is worth anything it must be grounded on personal experience with God. It is an easy matter to know about God without having the personal experience of being with Him.

A STRONGER NATION.

When tempted we should ask God to help us. Are we going to be stronger men and women after this season of Lent and are we going to be a stronger nation after the sacrifices we are making to-day. It all depends how sincere we are. We will find no response in God but the answer we deserve. Some people wonder why we speak to God as a jealous God. He is a jealous God because he wants all of us. Prayer, preparation and practice are essential to our spiritual welfare. We must make a spiritual inventory of our lives and the time set apart for it by the church is the lenten season.

$46 For The War Prisoners

Business Girls' Club Held a Very Successful Tea

The Business Girls' Club held afternoon tea in the Turnbull Store Saturday afternoon and realized the handsome sum of $46.00, which amount goes direct to the imprisoned soldiers in Germany. The decorations for the occasion were most effective, the young ladies with shamrock caps and aprons and the same idea carried into the table decorations, it made a very pretty effect. The young ladies are to be congratulated on the amount realised, as well as for the very handsome surroundings and the manner in which the refreshments were served.

Mrs. F. C. Neal, honorary president of the Club, poured tea, while Miss Maud Adams, President, received the people.

The committee in charge desire to express their thanks to the following who aided in the good work: The Turnbull Co. (F. Might, manager), for the use of the tea room and other privileges, the Green Music Co. for the Edison diamond disc machine, and the Daughters of the Empire for the use of their dishes.

The Man Who Has Added Millions to the Sunday Schools in the Past Ten Years is Coming to Peterboro

Mr. W. C. Pearce of Chicago, Ill., Adult Division Superintendent of the International Sunday School Association reported in February last, that during the past ten years, since the organization of Adult Bible Classes has become popular, two million men and one and a half million women have been added to the Sunday Schools of North America. This result is largely due to the influence of class activity among organized classes. Mr. Pearce is the first and only International Secretary of the Adult Class Movement.

Accompanied by Rev. E. W. Halpenny, General Secretary of the Ontario Sunday School Association, Mr. Pearce will attend the annual meeting of the Peterborough Sunday School Association on Wednesday, March 15th, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in the afternoon, and Bethany Tabernacle in the evening. 3d-60

WEDDING BELLS

McCONNELL—TINDLE.

"Sunny Dale Farm," Smith, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Tindle, was the scene of a happy event on Wednesday evening, March 8th, when their only daughter, Gertrude was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Thos. A. McConnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McConnell, Emily.

Promptly at 6 o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Mable Paul the bridal party, unattended, took their place under an arch of evergreens, decorated with red, white and blue. Rev. John Galt was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was becomingly attired in a dainty gown of white marquisette with trimmings of Valenciennes lace and white satin, and wore the bridal veil, caught with orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a pearl sunburst, the gift of the groom. The organist was presented with a dainty pearl pendant.

Following the marriage ceremony Rev. Mr. Galt, on behalf of the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church and Choir, presented the bride with an address and a handsome Morocco-bound Bible, as a token of their appreciation of her services in the choir.

After a pleasant evening had been spent in games and music, the bride and groom left for their new home, amid showers of confetti and good wishes of the guests.

WHEAT 4,000 YEARS OLD

Came From Ruins in Egypt. But Is Kept in Texas.

When the late John Cardwell of Austin, Tex., was United States Consul at Cairo, Egypt, he sent to his old friend, Col. F. PP. Holland, of Dallas, a small quantity of wheat that he had taken from the tomb of one of the ancient kings in newly explored ruins upon the banks of the Nile.

This wheat was known to be more than 4,000 years old. The glass container which holds the grain is hermetically sealed. To all outward appearances the wheat is just as sound as the day it was flayed from the head in the long ago, when the earth was inhabited by a civilization that is now forgotten. The grains are plump and large.

"I have been told that the grains would probably germinate if planted, but I have never tried any of them," Col. Holland said.

to substantiate, i.e., that 1,000 men who claim Kingston as their home are at the front fighting. So far only about one-third of the men recruited in Canada are actually at the front, so that on the basis of Kingston's claim the Limestone City must have about 5,000 of its citizens enlisted. As a matter of fact, the total enlistment of Kingston men since the war began would be about the figure the Standard claims are at the front. Of the 2,000 Peterborough men who have enlisted it is estimated that about 600 are now at the front, the balance being in England or still in Canada.

The Kingston Standard says: According to information which has just been received from England, Lieut.-Col. Munro, and a number of the officers of the 8th C.M.R., have been attached to the cavalry depot of the Canadians in England. Col. Munro and the officers of the 8th have a host of friends in Kingston, who have been wondering for some time what had become of the 8th. About four hundred of the 8th were sent over to France some time ago, and these are now in the trenches. The balance of the regiment is in all probability in France by this time, and they have been distributed among various Canadian infantry units, and many are in the 4th Battalion.

Kingston War Garrison. March 11. —An order has been issued prohibiting officers commanding units in the Canadian Expeditionary Force from attaching any more subalterns for instruction and duty. It has been customary to attach a large number of young officers to overseas units, and the attachment enabled officers to gain experience of a most valuable character before they were permanently appointed to some overseas regiment. In the organization of new battalions, attached officers who had taken the school of infantry were valuable aids to a commanding officer but there have been cases where an officer commanding a battalion has been so loaded down with officers attached for instruction and duty that it meant a great burden to him. All this will be changed by the new regulation, and the change is possibly due to the fact that in future, officers will be raised from the ranks, and as soon as they get through with a course of instruction in a school of infantry, they will return to their own units, and if officers are needed in excess of the regular strength, they will be promoted, and this will put an end to the practice of attaching officers from other units. The change is no doubt a good one, and one that will be welcomed by many a commanding officer. Under the new regulation for training officers, there cannot possibly be a surplus, as all men who have qualified will return to their units at the close of their course and will remain in the ranks until there is place for promotion. The new regulation goes into effect at once regarding attached officers.

Mr. Harold Pilling of the Bonner-Worth Co., who has enlisted with the 52nd Battery, was presented with a wrist watch and signet ring by the employees of the Company. The presentation was made in the presence of the staff by Mr. J. W. Worth, and a suitable reply was made by Mr. Pilling. This is the eighth presentation made since the war began and shows an excellent spirit among the workers. Mrs. Pilling left for Kingston this morning on the 8.10 train.

Sergt. Marshall of the Canadian Engineers who was here for a couple of days last week recruiting for the Canadian Engineers succeeded in getting eight recruits for his corps. On the past few weeks in addition to the men who have joined the 93rd, thirty men have gone to the 59th and 80th Battalions and 54 in the 52nd Battery so that recruiting although on account of the competition has not been quite so brisk for the 93rd on the whole has kept up to the pace set since August 1st. Since that time the number of recruits enlisted in Peterborough has averaged 140 a month for seven and a half months this figure not including the Peterboro men who have enlisted in other places.

Billy Read, son of Mr. W. G. Read, 561 King Street, left for Kingston this morning to join the other son, Pte. D. G. Read, who has been serving with the Princess Pats in France. He is now a sniper with the Headquarters Co., P.P.C.L.I.

TRYING TO PLACE HIM.

But He Didn't Seem Qualified to Pose for Either Role.

In "A Rambler's Recollections" Mr. Alfred Capper relates a delightful story once told him by Sir Herbert Tree.

"You remember," said Sir Herbert, "my Japanese play some years ago? Well, when I took it off His Majesty's I sent it on tour.

"Now it happened that a certain town was billed very profusely with this play and with the announcements of another play equally, if not, indeed, even more popular than my own. And both were announced as appearing on the same day at the two chief theatres in the town.

"On the Sunday before the production, the day on which the provincial companies always travel from town to town, there was quite a crowd gathered to witness the respective arrivals of the two companies, who were due to travel by the same train.

"Well, the train steamed in amid the great but subdued excitement of the waiting crowd, and as" (mentioning a certain famous and, be it added, very stately and particularly pompous actor-manager) "descended from his saloon, where he had been traveling in great state, a coquettish lady reporter stepped briskly up to him with pencil and notebook ready in her hand, looked at him pertly and said she, with the pointed and affected accent of Upper Tooting, "I beg your pardon, sir, but may I ask, are you "The Darling of the Gods" or "The Worst Woman in London?"'"—London Tit-Bits.

This Country of Bigness.

America is a quarter section, not a square foot country. It is the land of the biggest lakes, the longest rivers, the fastest trains, the tallest buildings, the land of the huge corporation and the spacious farm and the prodigious industrial enterprise. The inhabitant of this country of bigness feels the urge of these immeasurable interests; therefore his fascination for large figures and enormous scales of measurement. He feels that he must keep up to the pace of business or get out of the game or be run over. One advance step necessitates a longer stride to follow. He must always have his "next." • • • Big and swift business always fascinates the American mind.—From "American Ideals," by Clayton Hedgwick Cooper.

100,000 Additional Enemy Troops Brought to Verdun Front

THE SOUND OF THE VERDUN BATTLE IS HEARD IN PARIS

Famous French Historian Says German Defeat at Verdun Is Now Certain

Germans Will Never Get the Fortress---Less Than 13,000 Prisoners Taken by the Enemy in Verdun Fighting ---Denial of German Reports.

PARIS, March 14.—Famous French historian and war critic Heinach says it is now positive that a great German defeat at Verdun is certain. Germans will never get the fortress.

ATHENS, March 14.—A German hydroplane on Sunday bombarded British warships doing patrol duty along the Coast of Asia Minor.

PARIS, March 14.—Portugal took her place among the Allies this afternoon when formally represented at a meeting following a gathering of the Supreme War Council.

GENEVA, March 14.—A Bucharest despatch reports the refusal of Bulgaria to comply with the German request to send two divisions to the French front, owing to the uncertain attitude of Rumania.

PARIS, March 14.—Denying German claims, it is announced that less than 13,000 prisoners were taken by the Germans in the Verdun fighting and only 84 guns. Germans lost ten aeroplanes during the month to one French machine.

VIENNA, March 14.—Italian artillery activity extended to the whole Isonzo front. Attacks were repulsed. Russian attacks on Dniester and Bessarabian fronts were also repulsed.

"If There Is No Talk of Peace Nothing Else Matters"

"Are the citizens of Berlin enthusiastic about the war or not?" asked a representative of the Press Association of a lady long resident in Berlin, who has just arrived at her husband's home in Hertfordshire.

"Emphatically they are not," was the reply. "They are tired of it all—fed up, as you say—and keenly anxious for peace. But people hardly dare open their mouths to express this view, and you may guess the strength of their feeling in the matter when I tell you that I recently heard a soldier—a Prussian soldier, mind you—ask a newsboy in the hearing of several people: 'Is there any news in your paper about peace?' 'No,' replied the lad. 'Then get along with you; if there is no talk of peace, nothing else matters.'

"That anyone in a public place, and particularly a soldier, dare say such a thing as that tells eloquently of the undercurrent of public feeling. The people of Berlin, and doubtless the people of Germany as a whole, are tired of the war, with all its horrors and privations. They want peace, and nothing else matters."

Japanese Society Sees Opportunity in War For Japan to Master China

Japanese "Society of Ambitions" in Pekin Things It Time to Strike---Expects Country to Be Split in Half

PEKING, March 10.—Japanese citizens resident in Peking and organized into a body called Yu Chih Tuan, or Society of the Ambitious, have published a manifesto in Japanese papers which has provoked much comment. The manifesto demands that Japan should take aggressive steps for the immediate settlement of all moot questions between Japan and China while the European war is still in progress. It comments upon the present opportunity as one which probably comes not oftener than once in a thousand years, and demands that the Japanese government shall cease wavering and take a firm position with reference to China. The following is a translation of the manifesto, in part:—

"Peace or disorder in China affects directly the interests of the Japanese government. We can not and must not compare it with those small interests of the European and American countries. Japan, on account of her share in the happiness and sorrow of the internal politics of China, has special privileges. And this is the reason why Japan should have the first say in China.

Since the outbreak of the European war the power of Japan in the Orient has been steadily increasing. Her navy and army are sufficient to maintain the peace and order of the Orient. No country east of the Suez Canal dares to disobey the command of Japan. Even the European Powers are awaiting the pleasure of the Japanese government. This is the most opportune moment for Japan to settle once and for all the China question. This requires nothing but a scratch of the pen. Yet we are allowing the Chinese governmnet to look down upon us. The fault lies in that the Japanese government is hesitating over matters and has no fixed policy toward China.

"The Allied Powers have not come to any conclusion and are not working entirely in harmony, and China, seeing this opportunity tries to obtain the official recognition of the European countries in order to set Japan at defiance. She thinks that it would do no harm if Japan refuses to recognize the empire. She also thinks that Japan has no definite policy toward China and that if the other four Powers recognize the new empire while Japan does not follow suit, Japan will not be diplomatically supported and will follow the other Powers and recognize her too. Therefore Japan should decide to fix her policy toward China and settle the question once and for all.

"If Japan should recognize the empire for the mere privileges granted by the Chinese government as reciprocal rewards Japan will only be looked down upon by President Yuan and his ministers, because Japan is easily satisfied with such privileges. China will eventually put up some more obstacles and these privileges will become nothing but names. Not only this, but the Japanese government will be accused of selling friendly countries and her diplomatic trust will become null and void. Japan has acquired her master's position through her diplomatic relations with China and cannot afford to throw it away for no reason.

"If the Chino-Japanese friendship can be carried on in name and in fact we will welcome it. But there is no doubt that with the present chief executive, Yuan Shi-kai, for a friend, we cannot expect to do anything in fact. We must look forward for a man who has been under the true and real tutelage of Japan before we will shake hands with him. While the European war is going on Japan's position has become powerful and she must in the meantime settle what she expected to do in China in the old days and, secondly, to clear all the obstacles for our future generation. We must not miss this great opportunity, which comes but once in a thousand years, to unanimously establish the everlasting foundation for the whole nation with the officials and people alike.

"We ought to tender a third advice to the Chinese government to compel her to abandon the monarchy. When the third advice is tendered and the restoration of the monarchy stopped President Yuan's dignity and confidence the people had in him will be shaken to a greater extent. The great opportunity of Japan will come when the whole of China will be divided into two halves, or when the different provinces will each declare their independence.

"Those shortsighted people who cannot see this once in a thousand years opportunity, but on the other hand try to cultivate friendship—a friendship between a burning coal and a piece of ice—with Yuan Shi-kai, are too foolish to be laughed at."

Bad Feeling Between Bulgars and Huns

Disagreement Between the Two Peoples is on the Increase

SALONIKI, March 14.—All news received here shows that something like dismay as to the future, if not exactly direct opposition to the war, is at length gaining ground daily in Bulgaria.

M. Malinoff, who may be said to the leader of whatever opposition exists in Bulgaria, recently stated that "up to now the war has been a victorious one for us, but to-morrow it must lead to fatal disasters."

That shows that the coming clouds are not quite unobserved there, and it is clear that among the Bulgars large numbers of people are getting weary of waiting for that German victory which was to enable them to regard their as final.

Bulgar-German relations are decidedly not improving. A party of Chasseurs D'Afrique a couple of nights ago took prisoner on the frontier a German sentry who had fallen asleep. He belongs to the 71st Landwehr Regiment of the 113th division.

He declared that bad feeling between the two peoples is on the increase. All the Bulgarian troops have been withdraw from the front line owing to the differences between the two staffs.

His division left Istip a few days ago, and took over positions between Doiran and Gievgeli. At the same time there arrived at the front two regiments of artillery and a regiment of Saxon dragoons.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it formed stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

A 10 Days Flesh Building Test For Thin Men and Women Who want to Increase Weight

Report Gains at rate of Three to Five Pounds a week in Many Instances. Full Directions Given.

Most thin, run-down men and women would probably be glad to increase their weight with ten to twenty-five pounds of good, firm, solid, healthy, stay-there flesh and fat if they believed it possible to accomplish such result by merely making the flesh making materials in their daily meals do a little more work than they are doing now.

This is said to be the chief reason why most thin people do stay underweight. They are so constituted that they fail to fully assimilate the nourishment of their food, a great deal of which passes from the body as waste. Increase assimilation to normal and normal weight follows as a matter of course.

If you are ten pounds or more underweight and believe this can't be done in your case, here is a simple inexpensive, and really harmless test that is well worth trying.

First weigh yourself. Then with each meal for ten days and each night as you go to bed take a single Sargol tablet. Then weigh yourself again and let the scales tell the story.

Sargol may not increase your weight as much as a pound a day but with whatever increase in your weight may be shown you can decide what its continued use for a few weeks further may be able to do for you. Sargol does not of itself make fat but consisting of a splendidly balanced combination of assimilative aids and flesh building agents it mixes with your meals for the purpose of making it easier for your blood to accept their strength, flesh and fat-making nourishment and turn it into strength, flesh and fat upon your body.

A great many people have gladly told that it succeeds. There are many reports like the following: "I have increased 12 pounds in less than a month," wrote a man from Colorado. Another man, who said that he had been losing over a pound a week and was under 135 pounds, gained two pounds the first week taking Sargol and "been gaining ever since." Last report, over 170 pounds. Better than 15 pound gain. A lady from St. Louis wrote, "Have gained 16 pounds and am still gaining." Sargol as a rule should be taken 30 days or more where results like above are desired.

The tablets are small, easily swallowed, produce no disagreeable effect, contain no habit drugs, are harmless and not at all expensive as compared with results said to be obtained.

NOTE—Sargol, referred to above, is well known as a flesh builder to many of the leading local druggists who furthermore sell it on the positive guarantee, as found in each large package, of satisfactory weight increase or money back. In view of this liberal offer and the harmless nature of the remedy, it could seem that all who desire increased weight should be glad to give this method a trial.

Declare Germany Has Unlimited Resources

DUSSELDORF, Germany, March 14, via Berlin and Sayville, N.Y.—At the annual meeting of the German Ironmasters' Association, the President, Dr. Springorum, asserted that British hopes and efforts to defeat Germany by the destruction of industries which are absolutely necessary to supply the army and preserve the economic equilibrium have been useless on account of the self-contained industrial resources of the nation and the manner in which they have been co-ordinated.

For a long time, Dr. Springorum said, German industry has adapted itself to the new conditions, overcoming all technical difficulties with a degree of tranquility which is the result of the vigor of German organization and of the application of scientific principles, it has been possible to meet all demands of the German navy and army.

The vice president of the association, Dr. Peterson, said Great Britain had hoped to cripple Germany by stopping the importation of manganese, but that this effort had been vain because manganese had been replaced completely by a German product. Dr. Peterson declared all other supplies requisite for the production of iron and steel are abundant in Germany, "so that we can stand a war of any length."

SOLDIERS GUYED ACTORS.

Canadians Had Good Time at London Performance.

LONDON, March 14.—Newspapers here are humorously regarding the rumpus raised by 200 Canadian privates at the ragged play "The Love Thief," on Friday night. Others present declare the audience were immensely amused, the soldiers making quizzing remarks to the actors. No real harm was done and it is generally regarded as a joke, but the Canadian military authorities regret the occurrence and are investigating. The Canadian soldiers had booked the entire dress circle, guyed performers, threw coppers on the stage, and shouted to the villain to look behind the door and he would find the hero, and when the villain said in the play he thought he would send a telegram, they shouted, "Why not send a Marconi"

A Presentation.

Pte. John Battan was presented with a valuable signet ring and address on Thursday evening, March 2nd by the congregation of the Methodist church at Trent River, of which he was a member. The address was as follows:

Dear Brother,—Knowing of your enlisting and proud of you for the responsibilities that you have assumed, we meet to-night to do you honour. We appreciated much your work and example in this community and only because we feel that you are going to more pressing duties do we view your separation from family, church and community at large without positive objection. As it is we say to you, 'God speed.' We shall miss you, but we will follow you with our prayers. As a mark of our regard and good wishes, we ask you to accept this ring. May its colour remind you of the good of character which is beyond price; may its circle speak to you of the unbroken bond of friendship, and may the inscription inspire you to stand for these things that others have assailed. Signed on behalf of the congregation and choir. Rev. C. W. De Mille, Mrs. Vanvolkenburg, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. Buchanan.

DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER! THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at Tongue! If Coated, Clean Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish full of cold, bad breath, throat sore doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea give a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

DAILY RIOTS AT COLOGNE.

Nerves Overwrought by Great Number of Trains of Wounded.

LONDON, March 14—Reports continue to be published here of rioting in German cities consequent upon the failure of the Crown Prince's army before Verdun. The Express prints a despatch from Amsterdam to the effect that riots of the most serious character have been taking place almost daily in Cologne since the beginning of the Verdun offensive, and that police and troops have been called upon to keep order. The reason for the trouble is said to be the popular indignation caused by the continual passage of wounded by train from France. This is telling on the nerves of the Cologne people. For a fortnight past trains have been running constantly in such numbers that it has been impossible to confine their passage to nights.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

How They Help

ST. RAPHAEL, ONT.

Four years ago I had such pains in my back that I could not work. The pains extended to my arms, sides and shoulders. I used many kinds of medicine for over a year, none of which did me very much good. I read about Gin Pills and sent for a sample and used them, and found the pains were leaving me and that I was feeling better. So I bought one box and before I used them all, the pains were almost gone and I could keep at work. After I had taken six other boxes of Gin Pills, I felt as well and strong as I did at the age of 30. I am a farmer, now 62 years old." 28

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

The secretary was a small, slightly built man, and, contrary to the rule that renders undersized mortals rather aggressive in manner, carried himself with a shrinking air, as though he wished to avoid observation. He had an intelligent face; though its general expression was somewhat marred by a heavy chin and eyes set too closely together. He looked pale and ill; which was only natural, because his broken arm, the right one, had not been attended to by a doctor until nearly three hours after the accident. He was about thirty-five, but looked much older that morning, and Yvonne wondered if he had any forewarning of trouble, so compressed were his thin lips and so frowning his brows.

He found his late employer's wife standing at the window, gazing down into the little triangular Place, as Pont Aven calls its public square. Yvonne was passing in front of the four sycamores. She had, in fact, secured a mourning order for her friend, Le Selin the tailor, and was going to his shop on some errand connected therewith. Her mother noted the girl's free and graceful walk, and approved the proud carriage of her head, on which the white coif sat like a coronet. She sighed, and did not turn until Yvonne had vanished. Then she faced the waiting secretary.

"Ah, that you?" she said carelessly. "Pardon me if I seemed rude, Mr. Raymond. My thoughts were wandering. My niece has just left me, and, as I have not seen her for many years until she and her father saved our lives the other evening, I was minded to watch her crossing the square."

"Your niece, did you say, Mrs. Carmac?"

Raymond's voice was pitched in the right key of hesitancy and interested surprise; but this worldly wise woman was far too skilled a student of human nature to miss the underlying note of skepticism.

"Usually I speak clearly," she said, with a touch of hauteur.

"Yes, of course. I caught the word quite accurately. But may I remind you that you addressed her as your daughter in the cabin of the Hirondelle?"

"Does it matter to you, Mr. Raymond, how I addressed her?"

"No, no. I was only anxious to correct my own false impression."

Mrs. Carmac suddenly bethought herself. "My wits are still wool gathering," she cried. "Won't you sit down? I have a good many things to discuss with you. Is your arm very painful? Happily I have never suffered from a broken limb; but it sounds quite dreadful."

Raymond sank into a comfortable chair, steadying himself with his left hand. "It's not so bad now," he said. "By comparison with the torture of Thursday afternoon it is more than bearable. The chief misfortune lies in the fact that my right arm is out of action. I had no idea how little use I made of my left hand until I tried to write with it."

"The doctor seems to be a very clever man; but if you think it advisable your injury seen to by an expert—"

"Oh, it's only a simple fracture. I have every reason to believe that it is properly set. Indeed all it needs now is efficient dressing—and time."

"How did you come to break it?"

"I was flung down the companionway when the yacht turned on her beam ends."

"But the last thing I remember, and very vividly too, is that you and I were holding to a rail and looking out through the forward window of the deck saloon. We felt a curious trembling of the hull, and the vessel swung around from the wind. There was a strange lull, and Captain Popple shouted something. I asked you what it was, and you said that the shaft had broken, and we should be dashed against the rocks in ten minutes or less. Then, I suppose, I fainted."

"I had not seen the reef. Even Captain Popple thought we could clear it. As a matter of fact, we struck within a minute."

"And you were thrown over then? I must have fallen earlier."

"Yes. My recollection is hazy as to what actually occurred."

"The marvel is that either of us is living,' she said lightly. "I gather from Captain Popple that you have taken charge of affairs since we were brought ashore. Will you kindly tell me what you have done?"

"In the first instance I telegraphed to Mr. Carmac's nephew Mr. Rupert Foodyke, his lawyer Mr. Bennett, his office, and his bankers. The text of each message was practically identical. It ran, 'Yacht wrecked and total loss off Finistere. Mr. Carmac unfortunately killed, but all others rescued. Mrs. Carmac seriously ill, but may recover.' I'm sorry I took an exaggerated view of your state; but the circumstances seemed to warrant it. Then I sent to Paris for an embalmer. Did I do right?"

"At that instant her daughter's parting words rang in her ears. "Don't make an unnecessary enemy." Good advice! She must tread warily, or her sky might fall and crush her.

"Yes. As I shall receive Mr. Foodyke and Mr. Bennett when they arrive, I think I shall rest now," she said faintly. "I am greatly beholden to you, Mr. Raymond. You are so intimately acquainted with my husband's affairs that I should be lost without your help."

She had meant to dismiss him forthwith, with a year's salary, and Raymond himself was prepared for some such action on her part; otherwise he would never have hinted at his possession of a secret so fraught with possibilities as the existence of a grown-up daughter, a daughter too whose father was living, and actually resident in Pont Aven. He was taken aback now, and bowed as courteously as his bandaged arm would permit.

"I shall be only too happy and proud to give you my best services, Mrs. Carmac," he said.

CHAPTER VII.
Mischief.

Raymond felt that he had taken the step that counts, and resolved to make certain inquiries without delay. Already a cautious experiment with Tollemache had failed. Lorry had said that he knew nothing of Ingersoll's history before the last five years, and had shown some surprise at the question.

Captain Popple, however, had mentioned Peridot; so Raymond climbed the steep Toulifot, and within five minutes of his departure from Mrs. Carmac's quarters was at the Breton's house.

"As it happened, Peridot was at home, it being the hour of dejeuner, and a grateful incense of grilled haddock and fried potatoes greeted the visitor. He was recognised instantly of course, and invited to enter, and Peridot broke into a voluble expression of his pleasure at finding Monsieur so far recovered that he was able to take a little promenade. Raymond gathered the drift of this speech, as he understood French better than he spoke it.

"I have taken the liberty to call and thank you personally for the aid you rendered on Thursday evening," he said laboriously. "You and the others did a wonderful thing. The captain of the yacht has explained it to me. I was injured when the vessel struck, and knew little of what took pace afterward."

"It was lucky for you, Monsieur, that we happened to be out that day. If we hadn't been passing at that very moment, nothing could have saved you. The people at Brigneau tell me that the yacht broke in two and fell into deep water before we were well clear of the reef."

Neither Peridot nor Raymond had any inkling of Mrs. Carmac's projected salvage work by a diver, or the Breton would have added his conviction that the fierce tides racing along the Finistere coast would render the success of any such undertaking doubtful in the extreme.

"The gentlemen who owns the Hirondelle is an artist, I believe?" went on Raymond.

"One of the most renowned," said Peridot.

"His daughter was with him?"

"The prettiest girl in Pont Aven, Monsieur."

"Is there a Madame Ingersoll?"

Now, Peridot was sober as a judge that day, and his Breton wits worked quickly. He did not fail to recall his friend's distress on hearing the name of the Stella's owner, nor his avowed desire to escape recognition. True, Monsieur Ingersoll had gone to Paris; but Barbe had told him of the journey to Concarneau, and everyone in Pont Aven knew of Yvonne's close attendance on Madame Carmac. Moreover, did not Monsieur Ingersoll show terrible anger because of an unhappy reference to the likeness between his daughter and the American lady, and had not Peridot himself promised to be like a gendarme if any questions were asked? This little fox of a man, with beady eyes and cruel mouth, had come there to pry? Very well—he should go away stuffed with information!

All this required but a fraction of a second to flash across a lively French brain.

"Monsieur Ingersoll is a widower, Monsieur," Peridot was merely stepping back in order to jump farther

"Ah, yes, I have heard that. His wife died before he came to Pont Aven, I suppose?"

"Oh, no, Monsieur. Poor lady! I knew her well! Her last words to me were, 'Peridot, you were born with a soul, and will never be drowned; so promise me that when my husband and little Yvonne go to sea you will always be with them.' You see, she went off in a consumption, and—"

"Pardon!" interrupted Raymond, sorely chagrined by the immense significance of the fisherman's words, supposing he had followed their meaning correctly. "Will you be good enough to speak more slowly? What were you born with?"

"Une coiffe d'enfant, Monsieur."

Raymond knew neither the word nor the curious superstition attached to it; but he caught the one thing of vital interest. "So Madame Ingersoll lived in Pont Aven?" he went on, and his rancorous tone betrayed venom and disappointment.

Peridot, convinced that he was doing the artist a good turn, gave full pay to his imagination.

"Certainly, Monsieur," he said. "Never was there a more devout couple. Quite a romance, their courting! She was a fine lady, as anyone can see with half an eye by squinting at her daughter, and he a poor artist. Her people used to come in the summer to a chateau nearby, and one day when they met he gave her a beautiful pink rose. Her mother was angry, and made her throw the flower away; but an artist was not to be bested by any nose-tilted mamma: He knew that they went to the church at Nizon; so he made a paper rose, and borrowed a ladder, and stuck the token between the topmost stones of an arch in the church right above their heads, so that pretty Mademoiselle Adrienne must see it when she lifted her eyes to Heaven. There was a lot of talk about that rose, and no one except the girl guessed who put it there. If you care to walk out to Nizon, Monsieur, you'll see the faded leaves stuck in the arch to this day. Of course I can't vouch for the tale; but the fact that it is told of those two shows what devoted lovers they were."

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

Sympathy Versus Science.

"We boast much of our advance in science, but science is naught to the sick and wounded compared with the word of comfort and assurance," says the New York Medical Journal. "It is literally true that we would rather die than be treated successfully by certain practitioners. * * * A little sympathy outweighs much science."

Inexcusable.

Said the waiter to a noisy card party in a hotel bedroom: "I've been sent to ask you to make less noise, gentlemen. The gentleman in the next room says he can't read."

"Tell him," was the reply of the host, "that he ought to be ashamed of himself. Why, I could read when I was five years old."

Cholera Morbus.

Inflammation of the stomach and bowels caused by poison in the digestive canal is called cholera morbus. It is especially liable to occur during hot weather followed by cool nights. It is chiefly caused by eating indigestible foods, such as raw vegetables, underripe or overripe fruits and spoiled meats.

Circumlocution.

"Just what is meant by circumlocution?" asked the seeker after knowledge.

"I haven't a definition on the tip of my tongue," replied the busy man, "but if you will look in the paper I dare say you will find a very good example of it under the general heading of 'Diplomatic Correspondence.'"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A BACHELOR'S LAST CHANCE.

By ARABELLA JASON.

Aunt Mary Spooner, widow of Deacon Spooner, sat on the veranda of her house in the village of Parkville with some sewing on her lap, when there was a rattle of wheels in the road, a "Whoa!" from a man driving a one horse wagon, and she looked up to catch her breath and exclaim:

"Now, then, if that ain't Sam Bottford, whom I haven't seen for the last six years, then it must be his twin brother, though I know he never had any!"

It was Sam. He hitched his horse and entered the gate, and they were soon shaking hands and asking about each other's health. A chair was brought out for him, and after some general talk the widow said:

"Sam, you are looking worried and troubled, and I'm sorry to see it. Is there anything on your mind that you want to consult me about?"

"There is, Mary," he replied. "That's the reason why I've come over to see you after all this time. Yes, I've been worried for a good spell back and hadn't anybody to go to for advice. All at once the other night I happened to think of you, and I says to myself, says I, 'Why not go over and see Mary Spooner about it?' and that's why I am here."

"I hope you are not going to lose your farm on a mortgage."

"No; nothing of the kind, Mary, I've got to be fifty-five years old, and I've been living alone all these years. I'm the oldest old bachelor in the county. Ten years ago it kinder seemed for awhile as if you and me was going to make a match of it, but it fell through. The deacon came along, and you preferred him to me. I ain't kicking about it. He was a good man, the deacon was, and I was sorry when I heard that you was left a widder. He's been dead two years or more, but don't think I've come a-courting. I've got old and shackety and bald-headed, and I know it would be no use to begin talking about turtle-doves to you."

"No, Sam, it wouldn't," was the quiet reply as the widow breathed a sigh of relief.

"In fact, Mary, I'm sorter bound to another woman—another widder—and I'm not the man to be cavorting around after two widder women at once. She's a woman named Grimes, living about three miles this side of my farm. She owns what they call the Plum Tree farm."

"Yes; I know her by sight. So you've fallen in love with her?"

"Y-e-s; my heart's been a-throbbing for her for the last six months. She hain't no great shakes as far as looks go, and I wish her hair wasn't so red, but she's got a nice farm there, Mary—a mighty nice farm—and she can cook the best boiled dinner a hungry man ever sat down to. We agree on the Bible, on the best way to smoke hams, on having wire screens to the winders in summer—on everything but one, and that is what is bothering me and why I've come over to see you."

"And what's that, Sam?" asked the widow.

"I popped the question two months ago, but there's another feller did the same thing. He's Abe Johnson, a widower. He's about my age and no better looking, and the widder is hanging fire as to whether it is best for her to marry an old bach or an old widower. She says she's got to take time to think it over."

"And you want to hurry her up?"

"That's just it, Mary. You are understanding the situation right off. Yes, I want to harry her up, and I want the decision to be in my favor. You are a woman and a widder. You ought to know what another woman and widder would do under certain circumstances."

"Perhaps," was the doubtful reply. "What are the certain circumstances?"

"Jealousy, Mary—jealousy. I've had it all planned out for a week past, and I believe that if you will help me I can win out as easy as grease. I take it that Abe and me stand about equal in the Widder Grimes' affections. It's like balancing a stick on the top rail of a fence. Abe can drive oxen and not swear, and in case the preacher ain't there he can take the lead at a funeral or prayer meeting. I can drive a hog out of the garden without yelling to be heard a mile away, and I have made two speeches on the Fourth of July. It's about an even thing between us. The widder is balancing. She may balance for a year if something hain't done. Something is going to be done. I'm going to appeal to her jealousy. I'm going to make her think she's lost me forever."

"But just how?"

"That's where you come in, Mary. You'll set a day, and I'll drive over here and get you. I'll drive you past the farm and back. She'll surely see us. She'll see us sorter cuddled up to each other and talking confidentially. Right in front of her house she'll see my arm stealing around your waist, and we'll both be looking as happy as all outdoors. The demon of jealousy, as they call it, will bubble up in her heart at once, and she'll feel that she loves me only and must have me or die. When I pass for the third time after leaving you home she'll be down to the gate to stop me and say, 'Sam Bottford, you hump yourself and bring a preacher here and marry me or I'll show you what a desperate woman can do.' She'll say that, Mary, and within two hours she'll be mine. Come, now, wouldn't you act jest like that under the same circumstances?"

"I—I hardly think so," replied the woman after a moment's thought.

"But you hain't red headed, you see, and that makes a heap of difference. Mebbe you couldn't be made jealous, but red headed women and jealousy go together. Lord, but when she sees my arm stealing around your waist she'll grow a foot taller in a minit!"

"But I couldn't allow that, Sam."

"Oh, yes, you could, Mary. You'll allow it for old time's sake. Your conscience has always troubled you for the way you throwed me down, and I'm telling you that this is the last chance for me. If I lose the Widder Grimes I'm a gone coon. The turtle-doves will never coo for me again."

There was more talk, and the Widow Spooner finally gave a doubtful and reluctant consent. She warned Sam, however, that he was taking chances and must put up with consequences.

A day and hour were named for him to drive over again, and he went home with a smile on his face for the first time in weeks. When the day came for him to head for Parkville again he drove at a slow pace past the Plum Tree farm.

The Widow Grimes was out among the cabbages killing slugs. She saw him and waved her hand, but he looked straight ahead and never stopped. This was to make her wonder what was up. The other widow was ready, and in an hour or so the old white horse and democrat wagon came trotting back. The Widow Grimes stood in the open door. They saw that she did, and Sam chuckled and cackled and whispered to his companion:

"It's a world beater, Mary. Lean on me as if you loved me half to death!"

Mary leaned, and two minutes later, as they were square in front of the house, he said:

"Now my arm goes around your waist. The Widder Grimes sees it. Her heels are lifting up. I dasn't look at her, but I know that her face is as red as a beet. The demon has suddenly appeared, and she's saying to herself that she'll kill any woman that takes me away from her. Lord, Mary, but I shall be grateful to you all the rest of my days!"

They drove up the road two miles and then turned about to repeat the performance. This time the Widow Grimes was halfway down to the gate. She pretended to be pulling some weeds out of the bed of pinks, but it was only pretense. She saw the Widow Spooner lean; she saw an arm go around her waist; she almost heard whispers of love as the old wagon creaked along.

"Mary Spooner," said Sam Bottford as he helped her out of the wagon at her own gate, "I'm owing you a debt I can never, never pay. You've helped me through like the good woman you are. As I drive along back the Widder Grimes will be at the gate to blow me up, and after the blowing it will be the preacher and a marriage. Nobody ever had such a plan before. It has worked without skipping a cog. Don't you buy no taters this fall. I'll see to it that you have ten bushels to start the winter on—yes, ten bushels of taters and a crock of butter."

"And when shall I know how you came out?" she asked.

"Oh, you'll hear it talked of in two or three days, and you'll hear that we are off on our wedding tour. Lord, Mary, hasn't it worked beautifully—beau-ti-ful-ly!"

Two hours later, as the Widow Spooner was eating her supper, she heard the rattle of that democrat wagon again and another "Whoa!" and went to the door just as Sam Bottford reached the veranda and sat down on the steps.

"For mercy's sake, but what has happened?" she exclaimed.

"There won't be any wedding!" replied a hollow voice.

"No!"

"Nor any bridal tour!"

"No!"

"Nor any nothing!"

"But why, Sam, why?"

"Because the Widder Grimes and Abe Johnson were married three days ago! She was down to the gate to tell me as I drove back and to hope that my health was the same as usual."

The Widow Spooner turned her head to hide a smile.

"I knew it all along, Sam," said she, "but I thought you wouldn't ever be satisfied until you had tried every way you knew."

Samuel looked at her. Slowly a smile crept over his face.

"To tell you the truth," said he, "I nearly hollered for joy. Mary," he said sharply, "Mary, do you want me to remain an old bachelor?"

BRONCHITIS

NEGLECTED COLD.

Bronchitis starts with a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest. At first the expectoration is a light color but as the trouble progresses the phlegm arising from the bronchial tubes becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often of a stringy nature.

Bronchitis is usually at its worst in the morning on account of the phlegm becoming lodged in the bronchial tubes during the night, and it very often takes some time coughing and gagging before you can get the throat clear of the phlegm.

When this happens you may be sure that if the bronchitis is not attended to immediately it will sooner or later develop into pneumonia, or some other more serious lung trouble.

The best remedy for to cure the cold is DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Roy Connor, Greenwood, Ont., writes: "I must tell you what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. Whenever I got a cold I would be troubled with bronchitis, and sometimes I would almost choke to death. After taking two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I was cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25c and 50c. per bottle. See that you get the genuine.

This simple treament banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin without a blemish. Caution should be used to be certain that it is delatone you buy.

NOBLE HOUSE BEREAVED

Maudes of Hawarden Who Hail From a Tipperary Seat

The first British peer to fall in action in the present war was young Lord Hawarden, who was not in any way connected with the Gladstone family, as might have been inferred from his title. Whereas the Gladstone home, at Hawarden Castle, has always been pronounced as "Harden," the place from which the Viscounts of Hawarden take their title is situated, not in Wales but in Tipperary, and is pronounced "HayWarden," with the accent on the first syllable. The only connection that there is between the Hawarden of Flintshire and that in Tipperary is that the family of the late Lord Hawarden, killed in battle in France, namely, the house of Maude, originally came from the Flintshire Hawarden, and on settling in Ireland gave to their new Tipperary home the name of the one from which they hailed in Wales.

The name of Maude is asserted to be an English corruption of "de Montalt," borne by one of the companions in arms of William the Conqueror, and who is mentioned in records of the reign of William Rufus, still in existence, to have received lands from Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, these lands being situated in the County of Flint. In these records, as well as in those of heraldic visitations in the reign of Edward IV. and Henry VII., the name of de Montalt invariably appears with the addition of "alias Maude." One of the Maudes is the secular actor, Cyril Maude.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

AN INSECT MARVEL.

Curious and Complex Is the Tongue of the Butterfly.

Of all the marvels in which the world of insect life is so rich none is more curious and remarkable than the tongue of the butterfly.

This is always of great length. When not in use it is coiled like a watch spring in a flat spiral close to the head. But when the butterfly visits the flower on which it feeds the tongue is uncoiled, the tip inserted deep in the heart of the flower and the juices sucked up.

The butterfly's tongue really consists of two tubes. Each of these has a concave inner face, whose edges interlock one with the other, so as to form a third or central tube.

In butterflies we have the highest development of the insect race, so far as beauty is concerned. In other respects, however, they do not hold so high a place. They are outranked in intelligence by ants, bees and wasps and in perfection of external parts and mechanical excellence of the joints by beetles.

The colors and patterns on the wings which make butterflies so beautiful are due to the arrangements of innumerable scales that can be distinguished only with a powerful microscope. In some cases these scales are themselves colored, but often the effect of color is only optical, due to the reflection of light from the delicate ridges on each scale.

And So Forth.

"Willie," said the teacher of the juvenile class, "what is the term 'etc.' used for?"

"I want Bovril—not that!" No substitute will save money in the kitchen as Bovril does, or give the same nourishing value to soups and stews. It takes the beef of an entire ox to make less than two dozen bottles of Bovril. Bovril is thus so strong that it cannot possibly be put up in cheap cubes. Get the real thing—Bovril in the Bovril bottle.

DROXFORD IS PROUD OF ADMIRAL STURDEE

Little Hampshire Village Is Home of Naval Fighter—Worked Hard For High Post

For Droxford is the place where Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Doveton Sturdee, the man who sank the famous Scharnhorst, the champion shooting ship of the German navy, and the rest of the ships forming the enemy's Pacific squadron, made his home about two years ago. And, of course, Droxford feels—rightly, no doubt—that it has been immortalized.

Droxford's opinion of Sir Doveton is that he is "a nice gentleman." Written, this may not, perhaps, convey a very warm and enthusiastic summing up of the naval hero, but, spoken by these simple Hampshire folk, there is no mistaking the warmth and pride behind the words. "A nice gentleman," is a form of superlative compliment with them.

VICE-ADMIRAL STURDEE

Born fifty-five years ago, Sir Doveton was Chief of the War Staff under Lord Fisher until about five weeks before he caught and sank Admiral von Spee's ships. When he left the low old house in the main street of Droxford where he lives he said good-bye to everyone there, including the maids.

"I am going on a voyage," he said, "and I may come back." At the railway station, too, before he left to take command of the British squadron, a local inhabitant approached and wished him good-bye. "I suppose it would be too much to ask you where you are going, sir," he said.

Sir Doveton Sturdee shook hands and smiled. "Oh, I'm just going somewhere," he laughed, which was a pleasant, non-committal remark very characteristic of him.

He was only twelve years old when he entered the navy, and he passed his examination for lieutenant with exceptional distinction, coming out top of the list in three of the subjects "set." Since then he has never looked back, and his appointment in 1913 as Vice-Admiral set the seal on a brilliant career. He has "got there," to quote a friend of his, "by sheer hard work and no fancy trimmings."

Sir Doveton, however, probably owes much of his success as a sailor to the fact that he is absolutely engrossed in his work. He has no outside pursuits or hobbies—he would protest that he has never had time for them if you asked him why—and all his spare moments have been given to his profession, particularly to the study of strategy.

His "hero" is Lord St. Vincent, who defeated the Spanish fleet off Cape St. Vincent in 1797; and such an admiration for him has Sir Doveton that he actually took a portrait of Lord St. Vincent with him when he left Droxford to run down the Germans.

This, together with photographs of his wife and his daughter—who is a Red Cross nurse busy in attending to wounded soldiers—were, so far as one knows, the only "sentimental" things Sir Doveton took into action with him.

Sir Doveton has a son in the navy—a lieutenant—and it is an historic fact that the Admiralty had the Droxford village post office and telephone exchange specially opened at night in order to get a message through to Lady Sturdee telling of her husband's magnificent victory.

SHE GAINED 16 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont. writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and cramps. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 16 pounds in weight.

The World's Republics.

There are twenty-four republics in the world, including the republics and so called republics of Mexico, the Central American states, South American states, Andorra in the Pyrenees mountains, San Marino in the Appenines and Liberia in Africa as well as such republics as the United States, France and Switzerland. The oldest republic in the world is San Marino, in Italy, on the coast of the Adriatic, next to Monaco, the smallest state in Europe. It is supposed to have been founded in the fourth century.

BOGUS SOLDIERS.

Bogus Men Fooled Many Scoundrels Who Victimize Women.

A fine of $500 or six months' imprisonment is the maximum penalty which can be inflicted on that despicable type of swindler who, posing in the uniform of a private or officer, dupes tradespeople, hotels, charitable organizations, and girls, and incidentally escapes awkward questions as to why, being physically fit and of military age, he has not joined the army.

In spite of this penalty, however, London, to quote the words of the Assistant Provost Marshal, is "honeycombed with bogus soldiers," and it is possible that the penalties which can at present be imposed will be substantially increased.

A few weeks ago a case was brought before a London magistrate which threw an interesting sidelight on the manner in which bogus soldiers obtain their uniforms. Found masquerading in the uniform of a Scottish regiment, a suspected "soldier" was questioned by the police, and, as he had no identification papers, was taken into custody. He then admitted that he was not a soldier, and had never been one.

He ultimately told the military authorities that he had exchanged his clothes with a soldier, and as all identification marks on the uniform had been removed, it was impossible to trace the real owner. Other bogus soldiers obtain their uniforms from persons in the East-end, who do a good business in this direction. It is a favorite dodge of these men, when they have got a uniform, to call on the various charitable aid societies, and on the plea of distress obtain money and food.

More serious however are the swindles carried out by plausible rogues who masquerade up and down the country as officers, stay at the best hotels, and disappear without paying their bills. Giving false references, they call upon jewelers, tailors, and anyone else whom they think they can swindle, order goods to be sent to the hotel where they are staying, and vanish without paying at the most favorable opportunity. Impressed with the fact that the swindler is an officer and staying at one of the swagger hotels, while his references seem above suspicion, many tradespeople have fallen victims to these swindlers.

A common dodge is to obtain a complete officer's outfit from a West-end tailor, giving him the name of some prominent officer serving abroad as reference. The tailor, making inquiries, finds there is such an officer, and it is not until he fails to obtain the money for the goods supplied that he discovers that he was not dealing with a genuine soldier.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION AS ONLY CURE FOR PILES

Wife Objected to Use of Knife and Cure Was Effected By Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It is by the cure of extreme cases like this that Dr. Chase's Ointment has won the reputation of being about the only actual cure for piles—itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Mr. Samuel Parker, fruit grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public, of the same place: "I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding Piles and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No, get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba, and obtained a complete cure, for I have never been troubled with Piles since. I am now 70 years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from Piles. My wife has used it for itching skin and obtained complete cure."

Mrs. William Schettler, Spy Hill, Sask., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment with great success as a treatment for Piles. About 15 years ago I had this ailment very bad and suffered greatly. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment a complete cure was affected and I have never had a return of the old trouble. It is undoubtedly the best Ointment made and no family should be without it."

Put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test and it will not disappoint you. Sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Plain enough to suit the simplest taste, this dress is yet thoroughly in the mode of the moment.

The plain blouse is cut on lines which are loose and easy and is closed in front in a bias line from the neck to the belt. The opening at the neck is filled in with a small chemisette to which is attached a roll collar of moderate width.

Two styles of sleeves are provided in the pattern. The one shown in the figure is full from the shoulder to the wrist, where it is gathered into a band cuff. The second sleeve is plain and shaped to the arm. The style selected should depend upon the material used.

The skirt has three gores. These are shaped and are gathered at the top all around the waist. The closing is on the left side of the front.

Among the new materials everything is of lighter weight than for many seasons past and the new voile serge and voile and silk and novelty woollens are all suitable for this style. LUXURY IN THE BASTILLE.

It was during the reign of Louis XIII. that the Bastille became recognised as a prison, especially for notable persons suspected of treachery against the French government. Richelieu used it for the secure lodgment of troublesome opponents, and during his time the celebrated fortress became the luxurious prison of a powerful aristocracy.

Apart from the necessary restrictions, a stay in the famous prison of Paris was little more than an agreeable diversion. It seemed indeed as though the king was determined to show his kindness. He expressed great anxiety for the comfort of his prisoners.

Money could buy in the Bastille all the luxury that could be obtained outside, and should a poor man stray within the impenetrable walls the king was so eager to prove his hospitality that he at once allowed him a reasonable pension. The rooms in which the prisoners were confined were lofty and well aired; the furniture was arranged according to the taste of the occupant.

Mme. de Staël, for instance, hung her walls with rich tapestries, and many a distinguished culprit carried with him to the Faubourg St. Antoine his family portraits or a valuable library.

Nor is it in the least significant that the prison barber visited his patrons every morning with a silver basin, perfumed soap and embroidered towels. The best viands, well cooked, were furnished to the better class of prisoners, and at the close of the meals they exchanged visits, played cards and made the walls of the gloomy looking prison ring with their merriment.

One of Falb's Predictions.

In 1874 Professor Rudolph Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing happened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dispatch.

Worked the Collector.

M. Chauchard, the great French picture collector, was always adding to his pictures, and the higher the price the more anxious he was to secure the painting. A dealer one day offered him the "Vache Blanche," by Tryon. M. Chauchard was told he could have it for £1,600.

"It must be an imitation," he said. "Take it away."

The dealer told some of his colleagues, and they promised to get him £8,000 for the same picture if he would split the difference with them.

"Go ahead," he replied.

A few days later a Russian prince (?) visited M. Chauchard's galleries and remarked on leaving that he was delighted, but it was a pity the collection did not include an example of Tryon's work.

M. Chauchard, whose vanity was wounded by the remark, wrote to the dealer, "Bring me the 'Vache Blanche.'"

The reply was it was too late; it had been sold to a collector.

The millionaire connoisseur said he must have it at any price. He finished by securing it, but it cost him £10,000.—St. James Gazette.

Rare Ben Jonson.

Ben Jonson began life in the humble capacity of apprentice to a bricklayer. His father having died prior to his birth, his mother remarried soon afterward, her second husband being a bricklayer. Failing to recognize in the sturdy stepson a prospective genius of poetry and drama, he compelled him to give him a hand at laying bricks. Disgusted with this sort of toil, the boy soon ran away and enlisted as a soldier, going to the Netherlands. There he distinguished himself for his gallantry. On his return to England he went to St. John's college, Cambridge, but was so poor that he soon had to abandon his studies and turn to the stage for a living. It was in this period of his life that he fought a duel and killed his antagonist. On the accession of James I. to the throne the dramatist came into great favor at court. In 1619 the king made him poet laureate, and history tells us that the pay of the berth was raised from a hundred marks to as many pounds a year. His majesty also showed his fondness for the poet and dramatist by throwing in an annual "butt of Canary wine."—New York Times.

The fear of poison in a lacerated wound under certain circumstances is in itself quite sufficient to give a wounded man tetanus, or lockjaw, than which no more horrible complication exists. Thus for a long time it was thought that the natives of the Solomon and other neighboring islands used poisoned arrows, and many white men shot by them died in tetanic convulsions, including one very horrible case of a commander in the navy who had made a special study of tetanus.

At length the French governor of New Caledonia, noticing that the symptoms exhibited were not consistent with the use of any known poison, appointed a medical commission to inquire into the affair, when it was discovered that the arrows of the natives were not poisoned at all, although constructed in such a way that a small piece of the bone point almost always remained in the wound. The irritation produced by this prevented the wound from healing quickly, and the mental disturbance produced by fear and perhaps change of climate did the rest.

It was discovered at the same time that the natives of other islands who firmly believed in the poison theory seldom suffered much inconvenience from the arrow wounds, because they believed that the spells given them by their own sorcerers prevented the poison from taking effect.—Pall Mall Gazette.

His Vivid Imagination.

It was in Sunday school in the infant department. The teacher had just told the children something about the Holy Land and had said: "Now, children, let's just play we're taking a trip over that very place. We step into this little boat tied here at the shore, and away we go. Now we are landing at the very place where"—

She was interrupted by the sobbing and gasping of a small boy in the second row, whose sister sought earnestly to quiet and comfort him.

"What is the matter with Eddie?" asked the teacher.

"Please, teacher, he's feeling bad," explained Eddie's sister. "It always makes him sick to ride in a boat."—Chicago News.

A Kind Audience.

The tragedian had just returned from his tour and was greeted joyously by his friends at the club.

"Well, Ranter, my boy," said Tomlinson, "I'm glad to see you back. Have a good trip?"

"Fair," said Ranter.

"Did you play my old town?"

"Yes," said Ranter.

"What kind of an audience did you have?"

"I don't know," said Ranter. "I did not ask him for a reference as to his character, but he was a genial kind of [illegible] and sent me [illegible] out of town [illegible]."

Chesterfield Champion Didn't Like Title.

[illegible] Geordie Buchanan was a typical "Gleeca callant," whose mannerisms and ready repartee occasioned much hilarity, his small stature and boyish appearance retaining him his title of "boy champion" long after his years of maturity. A stormy outburst against a well known reporter who persisted in using the title is recorded. "Here, Jamie!" he exclaimed. "Drop that confounded 'boy champion.' It mak's the wife and bairns feel verra sma', and I won't have it!"

Princess Mary's Pets.

Princess Mary's tastes resemble those of the Queen, but in one she follows grandmother rather than mother. She keeps a small menagerie of pets at York Cottage.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowls and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Obedient.

"Well, my little man," queried the minister who was making a call, "do you always do as your mamma tells you?"

"You bet I do," answered the precocious five-year-old, "and so does papa."

No Use.

"You say Jones is down and out? Why, it was only a little while ago that he told me he had the key of success."

"He did, but the poor fellow wasn't able to find the keyhole."—Exchange.

Insult Upon Injury.

"And to make matters worse," complained the employee who had just been blown up by a premature explosion in a quarry, "when I claimed damages the foreman called me a blasted fool."—Lippincott's.

Musical Nots.

A thief was lately caught breaking into a song. He had already got through the first two bars when a policeman came out of an area and hit him with his staff. Several notes were found upon him.—London Mail.

A New View.

"What a nice, kind man Nero was!"

"What? Why, the wretch fiddled while Rome burned!"

"I know. He'd probably waited all his life for a chance when he wouldn't disturb any one."

Oh, Certainly Not!

John Kendrick Bangs was one day calling up his wife on the telephone. The maid at the other end did not recognize her "master's voice," and, after Bangs had told her whom he wanted the maid asked:

"Do you wish to speak with Mrs. Bangs?"

"No, indeed," replied the humorist; "I want to kiss her."

Poor Timpers!

"I have just made a valuable discovery," announced Timpers.

"What is it?" asked Twiggs.

"I'm a fool."

"Ah, the joke is on your friends."

"How is that?"

"You knew something they don't think you know."

Possible.

The tall, fidgety man hurriedly entered the depot and, addressing a bystander, asked, "Do you think I can catch the flier for Chicago?"

The man addressed casually surveyed the other's long legs and, slowly removing the cigar from between his lips, replied, "Well, it looks like you ought to, but you'd better hurry, for she's been gone half an hour."

KEEPING YOUNG.

Old Age Is Not by Any Means Merely a Matter of Years.

There is no scientific evidence to show that late youth and middle age are the periods of commencing decrepitude and "old age." Man grows old because he is injured; because his body cells are poisoned, and not because he has lived just so many years. There is no relentless law determining when a man shall grow old. The tradition "three score years and ten" is conditioned mainly on the manner of living and not by any natural law. But man has it in his power to modify these conditions either for better or worse.

Probably a greater luxury of living which is not balanced by proper physical exercises is a primary condition to be reckoned with. But temperance all along the line—in eating, drinking, working, playing and even in resting—has been suggested as a wiser principle to hold to. This avoids the possibility of rusting out on the one hand or of wearing out on the other.

Yet there is another way and a more worthy reason for retaining youth and deferring old age—cultivate health for the love and pleasure of it. The monthly letter of the Life Extension Institute says of this suggestion: "It is not a fear of illness or of death that we should encourage, but a love of health, a sense of responsibility for the care of our bodies, a desire for bodily endurance and efficiency and full achievement. If the mind is fixed on these ideals and the already known means of approaching them are utilized, heart disease, kidney trouble and the needless miseries that embitter the lives of so many may be left to take care of themselves. It is not so much necessary to fight disease as to cultivate health for the happiness, contentment and moral gain that it brings."

The Stammering Town.

There is a tiny mining village in South Wales where, for the enlightenment of the inhabitants, the local authorities pursue the curious practice of epitomising the week's news every Saturday upon a blackboard in the chief and only street. A few months ago, when the writer was passing through the village, he observed an example of rustic wit which would be hard to beat. The blackboard bore, among other news items, the following:

"The Kaiser has been presented with a grandson."

Immediately below, a waggish passer-by had added another sentence in different colored chalk. The effect achieved raised many a smile, for the whole then read:

"The Kaiser has been presented with a grandson. It has not yet been broken to the poor little chap who he is."

HEAVY FOE ATTACKS ARE STOPPED BY FRENCH ARTILLERY

Infantry Attacks on Haudremont Forest and Le Pretre Were Preceded by a Continuous Bombardment For Thirty-Six Hours---Artillery Duel Continues in the Woevre District.

A SHORTAGE OF GERMAN OFFICERS

PARIS, March 14.—(French Official).—After 36 hours of continuous bombardment, the Germans last night launched heavy attacks against Haudremont Forest, north-east of Verdun, and in the Le Petre Forest, forty-five miles to the south-east. These attacks were broken up by the French artillery, the War Office announced this afternoon.

In the Woevre region the artillery duel continues.

The Teutons continue a heavy bombardment on Vaux and also in the Woevre region, but the expected grand assault on the Verdun forts has not yet begun.

The German official statement was silent this afternoon on operations around Verdun. The only infantry action of importance mentioned by Berlin was the repulse of a British attack near Wieltje, in the vicinity of Ypres.

The clear weather brought out fliers on both sides, and air battles occurred frequently. The German War Office announced that three British aeroplanes and two French planes were brought down.

LONDON, March 14.—A shortage of officers, due to the recent heavy losses at Verdun, is causing the German staff much worry. All German officers under the rank of captain now in the Balkans have been ordered to return to the Western front.

PARIS, March 14.—Unconfirmed despatches from Rome to-day said that the Kaiser's throat is again giving him trouble.

LONDON, March 14.—Premier Asquith is ill, it was announced in a bulletin issued at his office at 10 a.m. to-day. "The Prime Minister is suffering by bronchial catarrh," said the physician's statement.

GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVING AT VERDUN

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, March 14.—Heavy German reinforcements are arriving at the Verdun front, while German artillery continues the terrific bombardment of French field positions.

Delayed despatches from Swiss cities to-day reported the closing of the Swiss-German frontier to ensure secrecy for troop movements.

The infantry assault that almost certainly will follow the thirty-six-hour bombardment of the French Verdun front is expected any hour. French critics believe the Crown Price will drive simultaneously on both banks of the Meuse, striking to capture the Goose Hill and Dead Man Hill positions north-west of Verdun and Fort Vaux and Fort Tavannes, east of the city, where the German artillery fire has developed the greatest intensity. The Germans, it is believed certain, will renew the offensive with a determined attempt to fight their way through Corbeaux and Cumieres Woods to the southern roads, cutting off the French positions on the hills.

Austrians Lost Two Destroyers

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, March 14.—An eleven-hour naval battle off the Albanian port of Durazzo preceded the sinking of the Austrian destroyers Lika and Triglav, recently announced by the Ministry of Marine.

A letter from Franz Lugano, an Austrian sailor of Italian origin, brought details of the action: "Coming out of our naval base to bombard Durazzo, our fleet encountered the Italians. We had notable successes, but lost two destroyers, thanks to Italian submarines.

"Of 110 men on the Lika about fifty were saved. Ten of us were picked up by Italian life-boats. The others were hauled aboard the destroyers."

Council May Cancel Usual Band Grant

Determined to Economize and Citizens May Feel It in This Case

It was seriously suggested at last night's Council meeting that all band grants be suspended this year. This would mean no park concerts unless the 93rd Battalion's stay in Peterborough extends into the summer. Some of the aldermen feel that the citizens could forego the weekly concerts this year. Certainly, the Council is determined to hack and hew at expenditures without considering where the chips fly. Their present attitude is to make the tax rate as low as possible. Last night they were lionhearted in their courage, if not elephantine in their wisdom. To-night the assault on Alderman McIntyre's stronghold will be undertaken, and it remains to be seen whether their courage has been screwed to the sticking point.

Still There is Good Skating

And a Crowd Enjoyed It Last Night at Brock St. Rink

A fine crowd took advantage of the ice last evening at Brock Street Rink, and it looks as if there would be skating all this week. To-night will likely see the Rink well attended as usual on a Tuesday night.

The 93rd Battalion Band will be in attendance.

MANITOBA GOES DRY BY A MAJORITY OF 25,000 VOTES

Only Two Constituencies Went Wet and Those by a Small Margin —No Case Where Soldiers' Vote Was in Favour of Booze

WOMEN DID NOT VOTE

WINNIPEG, March 14.— Manitoba has gone "dry." In the fact of a quiet but stubborn fight on the part of the liquor interests, the forces of temperance have carried the day by a majority of at least 25,000 votes. The violently stormy weather of yesterday has prevented an even larger majority being recorded against the liquor traffic. Late last night, however, with returns still to come from several constituencies, it is estimated that 65,000 votes have been polled, 40,000 for the Macdonald temperance act and 20,000 against it. When all the returns are in it is felt that the total vote will have amounted to 75,000. Roughly viewing the rural and urban constituencies together, the vote has been two to one in favour of prohibition. Only two districts in the entire Province have recorded wet majorities, and they were St. Boniface and North Winnipeg, where the act was defeated by a very small margin. The feature of the voting everywhere was the unanimous support which was given to the act by the soldiers, who were provided with special polls in the various constituencies. There is not one case where the soldiers' vote was in favour of booze, and in Brandon barracks the vote was 127 to 68 in favour of prohibition.

Women Did Not Vote.

The women of Manitoba, although possessing the franchise now, did not vote yesterday. When the question of women's votes on the temperance issue was discussed some time ago, the Norris Government decided that the temperance act would have to be passed or defeated without the feminine voters. The Government, according to its pledge, will commence to enforce the Manitoba temperance act on June 1.

Government Wholly Justified.

Hon. A. B. Hudson, Attorney-General, speaking to The Globe to-night, said that the overwhelming result of the referendum in favour of the temperance act left no doubt in anybody's mind as to the force of public opinion behind the cause of temperance. "It will enable us" said he "to act with additional assurance in the enforcement of the law as set forth in the act. I think the referendum that has been taken was necessary as a manifestation to all classes in the community that the Government was well advised when it decided to place the Manitoba temperance act on the statute books. The vote to-day wholly justifies the Government for including the temperance plank in its platform two years ago."

Winnipeg's Big Majority.

The pronounced majority for the act in Winnipeg city was one of the gratifying features of the referendum, so far as temperance people are concerned. The three electoral districts in this city piled up a vote of 14,061 for the act, as opposed to 9,645 against it. The city of Brandon also declared itself against the liquor interests.

What the Vote Means.

On June 1 under this act, 197 hotels, 40 wholesale liquor stores and seven clubs will cease to sell liquor. Provision is made in the Macdonald

COUNCIL WOULD CUT ALL CIVIC SALARIES 10 PER C'T

Ald. Langford's Resolution Adopte by Committee of the Whole and Requests All Other Public Bodies to Fall in Line.

A COMPREHENSIVE ECONOMY

A ten per cent. cut in the salaries of all officials and employees in the Council's administration was unanimously recommended last night at a meeting of the committee of the Whole, at which Mayor Duffus presided, with all the members present. It was further recommended on Ald. Langford's motion, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that owing to the war and consequent conditions all salaries are to be reduced 10 p.c. and that this be communicated to various other public bodies requesting them to take similar action. Among the other bodies were mentioned, the Board of Education, Utilities Commission, Police Commission, Public Library Board, Health Department, etc.

Under the threat of a possible 28 mill tax rate the Council apparently came to the conclusion that nothing short of a most drastic and sweeping reduction of expenditure would serve to retain the rate at or near last year's. Hence when Ald. Langford proposed the obvious method it was practically snapped up as an "easiest way" in so far as the Council was concerned. There was no discussion of details of the operation of this scheme. Seemingly it was regarded as automatic in its application and action and with Ald. Langford as the self-starter nothing remained but to sit back and smile with the glee of Jack Horner.

Not only does this proposal bearing the full support of the Council affect all the employees at the City Hall, Fire Hall etc., but the aldermen want the school teachers, Utilities Commission employees, police force and so on, and so on, to climb on to the economy wagon which Ald. Langford started so easily and thoughtlessly.

DOUBT HAS BEEN DISPELLED SAYS N. W. ROWELL

Leader of The Opposition of Ontario Comments Upon The Sweeping Prohibition Victory in Manitoba

WHEN TEST COMES

OTTAWA, March 14.—"If there ever was any doubt as to what Ontario will do when the test comes it has been dispelled utterly by the result in Manitoba," said Mr. N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition of Ontario, who is in Ottawa this morning, when questioned as to the effect on Ontario of the sweeping prohibition victory in Manitoba yesterday.

DR. WORKMAN'S SPLENDID ADDRESS

"Christian Experience in The Light of Historic Facts" Was The Subject

The address given last night by Dr Workman, before the ministers and their wives, was very much enjoyed. It was a profound and masterful pronouncement on the subject "Christian Experience and Historic Facts." It was as the speaker himself said—Constructive, not destructive. The Doctor outlined many objections that have been raised, and may be raised by skeptics with regard to the Bible, but showed that so sufficient has been the revelation of God in Christ that even if the objections raised were proved to be valid, they would in no sense rob the Christian of his priceless possession through faith. The rationality of Christian faith was made so clear that all who heard him must feel that the foundations of their belief are stronger than ever.

There were present a company of about seventy persons to whom the wives of the ministers served refreshments at the close of the address. A vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer on motion of Judge Huycke, and Rev. J. R. Webb.

Rev. R. G. Peever, President of the Ministerial Association, was in the chair.

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last Evening in St. Andrew's Church

Last evening about forty-five members of St. Andrew's church met for supper and for the express purpose of discussing the affairs of the church. It was a good meeting and the men present felt there would be no difficulty in raising the amount necessary to conduct the affairs of the church for the current year. The canvas will start this evening and all returns should be in by Monday.

Points or Discussion.

Points to be discussed in house to house visitation

No. 1. Are you feeling at home in St. Andrew's church?

2. What department of the work are you most interested in?

3. Do you attend the mid-week service on Wednesday evening? Could you not do so

4. Are there any of the members of your family who do not attend Sunday school?

5. Can you make any suggestions for the improvement of our work

6. Have you envelopes.

7. Have you sittings.

8. We require for our own work $4,000 a year. For missions we are asked to give as our share $2,500 a year. What can you give to each per Sabbath?

ARE YOU NEAR

Or far-sighted? It's just possible you may not know. Yet, for your eyes' sake, you should. Properly focussed, and fitted glasses will remove the trouble. See Dr Lacey and See Better —410 George Street.

GOVERNMENT IS FIRM UPON MATTER OF PROHIBITION

No Encouragement Meted Out to the Liquor Deputation Which Waited Upon the Cabinet To-day

"ALL AT SEA"—HAVERSON

TORONTO, March 14. No encouragement was meted out to the liquor deputation which waited upon the government to-day and for three hours urged their case. With their counsel, Mr. James Haverson, K.C. and the officers of the various associations, the delegation, to the number of thirty-three, urged that the referendum be deferred until six months after the war. "We are all at sea," said Mr. Haverson after the audience. Premier Hearst and Hon. Hanna, the Provincial secretary, replied for the government. Practically all the members of the cabinet were present. Members of the deputation said after the hearing, said that the government were committed to their plan of prohibition and that there would be a prohibition measure passed. As to when the referendum would be taken the government was noncommittal. Consideration was promised for various minor points raised by the liquor interests, but upon prohibition, the government stood firm.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1916

NAME IT "PETERBOROUGH."

Shakspere didn't think there was much in a name. Perhaps not sentimentally and poetically, but in practical things, there is a good deal in a name. Berlin, Ont., thinks so, and will move Parliament to give it a new name. We might appeal to the local authorities and local men of influence to provide for associating the name "Peterborough" with the new Hydro-Electric area—the Trent Valley area—of power production and supply. The Globe in an editorial note truthfully says—"As a source of power, the Trent watershed will be second only to Niagara." Peterborough is the geographical and commercial centre of the Trent Watershed district, the home of the largest electrical works in the Dominion, the largest development centre of electrical energy, and is designated as the natural and actual centre of the eastern Hydro Radial system, and should be also nominally—in a literal sense—the name used to indicate that system The eastern centre of electric power should as naturally and fittingly have the name Peterborough associated with it as Niagara Falls is associated with the western part of the Hydro-Electric system. Will our local authorities put their heads and their influence to work to make the name "Peterborough" predominant in connection with the eastern centre?

PARTY AND PROHIBITION.

Manitoba endorsed prohibition yesterday by a sweeping majority—by a vote of two to one, in the rural districts, and of three to one in the City of Winnipeg, where one would, rather, expect an opposite verdict. As a rule, in Ontario, urban municipalities have voted against local option; because perhaps, cities contain more "loose fish" electors, of loose morals, than the more sober and respectable country communities. If public sentiment in Manitoba, in the matter of prohibition can be used as a measure of similar sentiment in Ontario, the Hearst Government has good warrant for passing a prohibition measure without a referendum, a matter that would be needlessly expensive, and above all, destructive of popular unity in respect of war interests. There can be no doubt of the overwhelming popular sentiment in this province in favour of temperance reform. In the general elections of 1914, the result was regarded by many as a verdict against the prohibition principle. It was not; for prohibition was not a clear-cut distinct issue in this election. It was disastrously entangled with party politics. To vote for temperance in the late general election, was to vote against a party; and there were found thousands of weak-kneed temperance electors who preferred party to principle. Now the question of prohibition is less mixed up with politics. Besides, party politics are not what they were. This terrible war—the new obligations it imposes, the new view it opens—has immensely modified party sentiment. Patriotism has largely replaced party as a motive principle, and we find less and less the tendency to use party as an excuse or palliation for wrong or wrong-doing. This war has uncovered the popular conscience, loosened or removed the party cruit of it; and, though we have and must have party sentiment and party government, the real things, the things that count, honour, honesty in government, and consideration of the public and national good, have in large measure, come to their own. Their influence, rather than the narrow party spirit, are becoming the guiding principles of popular action, more and more, both in political action and private life. Popular impatience with crookedness and wrong has replaced indifferent tolerance or open sympathy with short cuts to success in politics or business. We make sacrifice of our dearest interests in the cause of country, and it naturally becomes comparatively easy to sacrifice a doubtful interest like our hide-bound partizanship to the interest of promoting the success of our share in this war; and war-time prohibition of the liquor traffic is one of the most important war measures, not to speak of its great benefit to the province and community. Prohibition and patriotism are complementary terms and things; the same can be said of party and prohibition.

SALARY CUT AND ECONOMY.

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council, last night, Alderman Langford introduced a new lutionary resolution, on which to base a report to the Council. The resolution calls for a flat reduction of ten per cent. in the salaries of all civic officials. This includes all officials directly in the employ of, and paid by, the City Council, including the members of the fire department, the police department, the employees in the civic buildings, etc. The resolution included presenting a request to the Board of Education, the Utilities Commission, the Public Library Board, and the Police Commissioners, to deal with the employees of these bodies in a similar manner. The very idea of reducing the salaries of teachers in our schools that are fixed by contractual schedule shows that the suggestion has been thoughtlessly advanced, and that mature consideration of the whole scheme is demanded.

This proposal, which passed the committee unanimously, looks very virtuous on the face of it; yet, it seems to be one that needs very careful consideration before it is finally adopted and acted upon. Economy is a very nice thing in the abstract There is economy and economy; economy that helps, and economy that hurts. There is economy that involves sacrifice and such sacrifice should be distributed, not concentrated, as it would seem to be in the case of the salary-cut proposal.

It may be, and doubtless is, necessary to exercise very strict economy and provide retrenchment of expenditure in city government. It is a question, however, whether it is fair that this economy should be concentrated, as it would be by a flat, all-round reduction of salaries. In this event, the sacrifice entirely falls upon the officials affected. The citizens at large are not called upon to share it. They are required to make no sacrifice; they benefit by a trifling reduction of taxation at the expense of their fellow citizens. Why not, rather, divide the sacrifice? If the pruning knife were applied all round to the civic service, the people would have to do without as elaborate a civic service as they get on the present scale of expenditure. The people would, thereby, have to sacrifice some of the advantages lessened expenditure would involve. But is it not questionable whether it is fair to concentrate the sacrifice upon the civic employees, many of whom do not now get more than a bare living in the way of salary.

For instance, the firemen are by no means overpaid; and a ten per cent. reduction of salary would be a hardship. It is to be considered that the cost of living is embarassingly high; it is also to be considered that in our factories workmen are getting high wages—higher than in times of peace. Some civic servants might not suffer materially from a ten per cent. reduction; others would be hit hard.

Besides, it is to be considered that to economize by reducing salaries to a point that would decrease the efficiency of service is not true economy. Money that is spent without giving efficient service is virtually wasted. In the fire department we all know that efficiency of service depends upon permanency of service—in getting good men, properly trained, and keeping them. This cannot be done if the salary list is starved, good men forced out, and replaced by inferior men, as they must be till they are trained, and as they must be, in time of plentiful employment, to take work at low wages.

It may be that some civic salaries might, in justice, be reduced; and it may be that others should not be reduced. Should there not be some discrimination exercised which would not be done by means of a flat reduction of ten per cent., irrespective of modifying circumstances, which doubtless do exist. We are fighting for the principle of British fair play. Is not home the place to begin its practice?

It may be necessary, as it is desirable, to lessen the civic expenditure; but would it not be well for the City Council to take some other plan of reduction than the cutting down of salaries on a flat rate and concentrating sacrifice upon a few?

The proposal of Alderman Langford is no doubt made with good intentions; but it is questionable whether it is in the public interests, or in the interests of fair play, and it is unquestionable that it should be very maturely considered before it is adopted.

GERMANY'S LATEST DECLARATION OF WAR-- AGAINST PORTUGAL

Germany has been a long time making up its mind to declare war against Portugal. This is rather creditable to German horse sense. There has never been any secret about the Anglo-Portuguese alliance. The little Republic has done, and is doing, the best it can to aid the Allies, and what are the Germans going to do about it? They could only attack Portugal through France or by sea. The French army is an insurmountable obstacle in their doing anything by the French route; and the British and French navies prevent them doing anything by sea. The worst they can do against Portugal is to stand in the middle of the road in Unter den Linden and, like the Scotch laird, swear at large. It would be utterly impossible for them to land any considerable number of troops in Portugal; their navy is a world-wide joke; and their submarines will find it hard to discover anything Portuguese to shoot at.

Besides, they have plenty of business on hand already. They are fighting Serbia, Russia, France, Belgium, Great Britain, Montenegro, Japan, Italy, and will soon be fighting Turkey and the United States, to say nothing about having to fight the only sane people in Germany. German shipping will lose the hospitality and protection of all the Portuguese ports, and it is altogether likely that a Portuguese contingent will be placed at the disposal of Great Britain, Portugal's faithfully ally, for service where it will do the most good. There will be no Peninsular war because the Germans cannot get near enough to the Iberian Peninsula to raise any ructions. Portugal has a popualtion of 6,000,000 at home and 8,000,000 in her colonies, which are as safe as the home-land. Her mercantile marine consists of only 630 steam and sailing vessels, of which only 17 steam and 5 sailing vessels have more than 900 gross tonnage. Her system of defence consists of an army of 150,000 men and a navy of one coast defence ship, four protected cruisers, some old gunboats, one destroyer, two submarines, 4,898 sailors; and last, but by no means the least, a British alliance which could, and would, protect the country against several Germanys.

Really the Teutons are making themselves indicrous by their humptiousness and by "spreading" themselves all over Europe while threatening the United States. Any attack upon Portguese shipping will be paralyzed in the same way that the British Navy has been handicapped in its warfare against German shipping—there is practically nothing to shoot at. It is like the great wolf hunt we had in Canada a year or two ago, which was a good deal of failure, because no wolves were seen by the wolf-hunters. A naval war of serious proportions between a country which has no ships available for attack and a country which has no shipping to defend is almost unthinkable. Bismarck's war between horses and fishes is not in it. A Berlin despatch says the action of the German Government in declaring war occasioned no surprise. We should think not. There is nothing that Germany could do now to create surprise. The biggest surprise we could hope to get from Berlin would be for some German to tell the truth; but that is not likely to be done of malice aforethought. If it happens it will be an accident and will surprise the Germans as much as anybody else.—Montreal Herald.

WILLIAM WINTER'S POEM ON THE WAR

In the Sunday edition of the New York Times unusual space and prominence are given to a poem by William Winter, entitled "My England." It is one of the most stirring things that has come from an American pen since the beginning of the war, and on that account is published at length in this column.

My England! Not my native land,
But dear to me as if she were,—
How often have I longed to stand
With those brave hearts who fight for her!

Bereft by Fortune, worn by age,
My life is all I have to give,
But freely would that life engage
For those who die that she may live,
Mother of Freedom! Pledged to Right!!

From Honor's path she would not stray,
But, sternly faithful, used her might
To lead mankind the nobler way.
Her task was hard, her burden great,
But 'round the world her edict ran
That reared and ruled a Sovereign State,
Securely, on the Rights of Man.
No vandal foot should tread her land,
No despot hold her realm in awe,
The humblest peasant should command
The shelter of her righteous law.
In vain her lion port was braved!
Her pennant streamed o'er ev'ry sea,
And wheresoe'er her ensign waved,
All fetters fell and Man was free.
To-day be all her faults forgot,—
The errors of her nascent prime,
Or wily politician's plot,
Or blunder that was almost crime.
To-day when desperate tyrants, strain,—
By Greed and Fear and Hate combined,
To blast her power and rend her reign,
She fights the fight of all mankind.
She fights for us—for this fair clime,
Our home beloved, where freemen dwell,
Columbia grandest born of Time,
That Teuton malice burns to quell.
My England! should the hope be erost,
In which she taught the world to strive,
Then all of Virtue would be lost
But 'tis not in the Book of Doom
That Justice, Honor, Truth should fail,
That earth be made a living tomb,
And only brutal Wrong prevail.
It cannot be the human race,
Long struggling up to Freedom's sun,
Is destined to the abject place,
Of vassal to the murderous Hun!
In ev'ry land that knows the ills,
Of bondage, and has borne its aches,
The deathless pulse of Freedom thrills
And Reason's noble rage awakes.
See splendid Italy advance,
And grimly issuing from his lair,
To grasp the hand of glorious France,
Stalk forth th' intrepid Russian bear!
My England!—patient, valiant, true!—
Nor foes without nor frauds within
Will shake her purpose to subdue
The cohorts of embattled sin.
The swinish horde, the gilded beasts,
In whom no touch of truth survives,
Who ravish women, murder priests,
And strow the sea with infant lives:
The Lords of War, who kill and rain
Exultant, while their people groan,
Weeping themselves in crime and shame,
To keep a despot on his throne:
That pigmy, to whose 'mildered brain
Himself an Attila appears,
Who takes the name of God in vain,
And drowns the earth in blood and tears.
My England, strike! Droop not, nor pause,
Till triumph on your banners shine!
Then take a grateful world's applause—
Millions of hearts that beat like mine.

ROWELL WITH GOVERNMENT

Special to the Examiner:

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 14.—Mr. Rowell, it is safe to say, will not only support but heartily endorse the rumoured decision of the Government to enact prohibition by immediate legislation, deferring the referendum until after the war. This, in fact, is Mr. Rowell's policy, which he has been urging for a year.

Several times within the last twelve months he has stated his position, which was that he favoured immediate prohibition, not to be repealed without a vote of the people at the conclusion of the war. Failing this, he said he would support a proposal for a referendum prior to the legislation going into force, but the former plan he always said he considered the preferable one.

In his references, at the beginning of this session to the Government's proposals for a referendum as enunciated in the Speech from the Throne, he maintained the same attitude; and as recently as last Wednesday, upon the occasion of the Prohibition deputation, he said: "I hope the Premier and his colleagues will see their way clear to provide in the bill that it shall go into effect at the earliest practicable date as a war measure, not to be repealed except by a majority vote of the electors after the war is over."

If the final decision of the Government, therefore, as appears most probable, will be to dispense with the first referendum, Mr. Rowell will naturally be pleased and inevitably would back up such a proposal.

A Bull's Eye.

If an advertiser could make every advertisement, and every word in it, do its best work for him, he would make a record and invariably hit the bull's eye. Perhaps such a score is not possible, but the rifle with which he shoots, may be the best possible, thus enhancing his chances for a perfect score.

The one best rifle, the nearest to perfect in advertising, is the newspaper. Others have been tried and are being tried by new and inexperienced advertisers; but as they watch results and grow in wisdom, they put their faith primarily in the newspaper. The example of these experienced ones is worth following.

are you aware that old sores and ulcers, that have defied all other treatments, will yield to Zam-Buk? Mr. Geldert, of Lunenburg, N.S., suffered from a bad leg for ten years. Doctors could do nothing for him, but Zam-Buk cured him. Mr. Geldert writes:

"For ten years I suffered from a bad leg caused by a broken vein, which is the most stubborn sore to heal. I had treatment from several doctors, all of whom finally acknowledged that the case was beyond them. I used many ointments, some of which did me good for a time, healing over the outer skin, but the sore always broke out again. Then I used Zam-Buk, and I could soon see an improvement. Zam-Buk penetrated to the root of the trouble, as the other ointments had failed to do. With perseverance Zam-Buk completely and permanently healed the sore."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, abscesses, blood-poisoning, piles, ringworm, chapped hands, chilblains, cold sores, cuts, burns, and all skin injuries. All druggists, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Death in Lonely Cottage Closes Long and Strange Career of Col. A. H. Rogers

SAYVILLE, L. I., March 10.—The body of Colonel Albert H. Rogers, one of the most picturesque figures in New York political history, was found to-day in the kitchen of a little house which he had occupied at Sayville since last November. The cause of death wa asaphyxiation by illuminating gas, and when Coroner J. H. Moore had investigated the case he announced that the gas was "self-administered in a fit of mental aberration.

Evidences of mental disorder were found in the home which was painted red, white and blue throughout and was piled high with refuse, papers of every description and clippings from newspapers in which the lonely old man—he was seventy-five years old—had been mentioned.

If Colonel Rogers had saved the complete paper in every instance in which his name was published, he could not have stored them in any house in Sayville. For years he was the centre of bitter quarrels on many subjects in New York, and his commitments and releases from insane asylums alone would constitute a lengthy record.

At one time in his career almost every action of his seemed to take him into court, either as complainant or defendant and his conduct at these hearings almost invariably led to an examination to determine his mental condition. Newspaper files indicate that he was almost constantly indignant from 1885 to 1899 and that his various forms of indignation and complaint led to countless court actions, misunderstandings, newspaper quarrels and official actions.

An Officer at Age of Seventeen.

Colonel Rogers served throughout the civil war with the Forty-seventh regiment Brooklyn, and had a splendid military record. He became a lieutenant at the age of seventeen years and rose to the rank of colonel in rapid advancement before the close of the war. At one time he was commander of Farragut Post, No. 75, G.A.R., and for many years held important positions in the G.A.R.

He was deputy commissioner of street cleaning for two terms in New York city, first in 1885 and again in 1899, and it was during the latter term that complications arose which led to his being dismissed. After he was dismissed he held indignation meetings, was arrested, several times and in each instance committed to an asylum. He repeatedly obtained his freedom, started a new disturbance and was sent back to an asylum. In nearly every instance in which he was committed the records indicate that he not only obtained freedom on some pretext or escaped and subsequently brought charges against the institution. He had scores of inmates taken from various institutions on the ground that they were sane and in almost all instances, after long hearings, they were found to be insane.

Colonel Rogers had his first recorded quarrel on June 6, 1885. He had stopped for two weeks with a maid and an infant at the Pavillion Hotel, New Brighton, S.I. He arranged with the proprietor of the hotel for a wedding party in which the Colonel announced he was to figure as the bridegroom, and in explaining the details stated that aside from the President and the Cabinet there would be three thousand guests. The proprietor arranged for a night boat service from New York, which was to continue until the last of the three thousand had reached the festive board. In considering the matter the entire wedding seemed a estupendous that he asked Colonel Rogers for the two weeks' board already due for himself, the maid and the child. The Colonel was indignant, but gave the man a cheque, which subsequently could not be cashed.

Quarrel with Proprietor.

A quarrel started and both the Colonel and the proprietor were taken to court. Colonel Rogers was sent to Bloomingdale Asylum and after being freed by the courts began an action to have the exemption of taxes at the institution revoked and streets made through the grounds. His action failed.

After his second appointment as Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner under James S. Coleman in 1899, Colonel Rogers temporarily in charge of the department in the absence of Mr. Coleman, dismissed John S. Bacon, superintendent. No charges could be proved against Mr. Bacon and on the return of Mr. Coleman Colonel Rogers was dismissed. He then held street and hall meetings and brought actions against Mr. Bacon and R. W. Horner, chief clark of the Street Cleaning Department, declaring that they had stolen papers from his desk. When the Colonel was in court in connection with these actions cigars were repeatedly taken from his mouth by court attendants and his hat removed every time he placed it on his head during the hearing. His habit of shrieking at the Court that he wanted justice led to his commitment to Ward's Island.

On his release Colonel Rogers's activities led to an investigation o fconditions at the Ward's Island Hospital for the Insane, and when the charges were quashed he had thirty prisoners taken to New York in habeas corpus proceedings insisting that they were sane. Most of these prisoners were returned to the hospital, and others who were freed were subsequently found to be insane and confined again.

Started New Investigations.

Three times the Colonel was sent to Ward's Island and each time that he obtained the release he started a campaign for an investigation there, usually obtaining results. He did the same at Central Islip and at other institutions to which he was committed.

His court conduct during the three years of stress which he lived in New York is illustrated by an incident which occurred in the West Side Court on September 27, 1905. Colonel Rogers in the midst of a case asked the court for twenty-five cents to go to Stamford. He explained that he had just thought of it and that if he did not go at once he would lost his interest in a $350,000 deal. He emptied his wallet into his hand and nothing came forth but a collar button.

"To-morrow," he said at the time, "I am going fishing with General Rice, General Riley and a lot of other generals, and I would like to have your honor come along."

Many of the commitments of Colonel Rogers was due to his threats against relatives. He spent a great amount of money in litigation and usually had six or eight matters pending in court between 1883 to 1899. In almost all instances Colonel Rogers made it known that the Grand Army of the Republic was with him to the finish, however, trivial the matter in hand might be. During his difficulties in the Street Cleaning Department he was faithfully attended by a driver in the department, William Christal, with whom he advised in all matters and who was referred to as his "man Friday".

Found Sane by Jury.

At one time after his escape from Ward's Island, in 1905, Colonel Rogers remained in Canada for a considerable time and on his return was found to be sane by a jury.

Colonel Rogers was proud of his family tree, which, he asserted, began in this country with John Rogers, who came to America more than two centuries ago. The subject of his family tree resulted in as many quarrels.

For nearly ten years there is no record of Colonel Rogers' whereabouts previous to last November, at which time he took the house in which he was found dead. Little was known of him by his neighbors, and his conduct here formed a direct contrast to his mannerisms of years ago. His neighbors were interested in the fine appearing old man of military bearing, but they knew little of him.

The little house at Sayville bore the sign "Dum Vivimus Vivamus" ("While We Live, Let Us Live"), and he had frequently asked neighbors in a friendly way to be sure to call the house that when they referred to it. "For," he would say, "that's just what I think and have always said."

A sister living in California and a niece Mrs. F. W. Isenbarth, of New Rochelle, are the only relatives known to survive Colonel Rogers.

Young Woman Kills Herself

Commits Suicide With Revolver at Batavia, Leaving Note

BATAVIA, March 14. — Miss Adella M. Hampton, 26 years of age, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hampton, of Portage, Livingston County, committed suicide in the home of her uncle, Herbert D. Hampton, of 30 Chestnut Street, by shooting herself through the heart. It was stated by Coroner Snow that insanity was in all probability the cause of the deed.

For some time past Miss Hampton has been engaged as a domestic in Buffalo, and had also taken care of her aunt, Mrs. Barnett J. Kingley, of 27 Doris Avenue, in that city, who died on February 16. It is thought that Miss Hampton's nerves were overwrought on account of the death of her aunt, as before the funeral she was found unconscious in the Hampton home.

It was decided that she should remain in Batavia for a rest, and on Tuesday she accompanied her aunt to see "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Dellinger Theatre, where she expressed a wish that she might die. She had also attended the meetings which are being held in the Tabernacle in Jefferson Avenue. She made the remark that at the meetings and at the opera house Free Masons were watching her, and trying to take snap shot pictures of her.

In a note which Miss Hampton had written she said that she had died for sins of her own; that she had suffered from her infancy up. She said she was told there was no God, but she knew that there was. She said she was not afraid to die and wanted her note read to the entire world.

It is not thought by any of Miss Hampton's acquaintances that she was remorseful for any act of her own, but that she was suffering from religious excitement, emotional insanity and nervous trouble.

German Reserve of Corn Doubled

BERLIN (by Wireless Telegraph to SAYVILLE, L.I.,)—Though it had been calculated that the German corn reserve would not total more than 200,000 tons, it now is stated by the official Census Bureau that it will reach 400,000 tons, says the Overseas News Agency.

It is added that the surplus is due to the fact that numerous farmers had underestimated their crops in the November census.

The age limit for old age pensions, is to be lowered from seventy to sixty-five years. The bill providing for this change, says the Overseas News Agency, already has been submitted to the German Federal Council.

The German government in proposing this measure follows the wishes indicated by the Reichstag, which, on January 15, voted in favor of a change in the age limit.

BARBER IS FINED $300 AND COSTS

The Omemee barber, who was charged with selling liquor in that village without a license, failed to turn up at an adjourned hearing of the charge by County Police Magistrate Moore, Lindsay. It is believed by the authorities that he has gone "where the woodbine twineth." A fine of $300 and costs was imposed and in default of payment three months in jail.

The accused, it is alleged, had a barrel of beer in a compartment in the rear of his barber shop, where his friends congregated to quench their thirst.

MID-WINTER NEAR THE EQUATOR

(1) Cocoanut trees by the sea side, Honolulu. (2) S.S. "Niagara." (3) Episcopal Cathedral, Honolulu. (4) Hawaiian flower sellers —a familiar street scene. (5) Surf ride.

THE eleventh annual Mid-Pacific Carnival of the Hawaiian Islands will be held in Honolulu, February 21-25, 1916, and preparations for entertaining a large army of tourists are under way by the commercial organizations, as well as by special committees, in which the war department is taking an active part. The carnival will extend throughout a week, the key note being the celebration of Washington's birthday on February 22, on which day there will be a parade of nearly 10,000 United States soldiers with six military bands in line, added to which will be the famous Royal Hawaiian Band, and possibly the band of the Royal Rosariane of Portland, Oregon.

One of the features of the Carnival will be a massed band concert, in which all the bands will be merged into one, and selections directed by each of the leaders in turn. In this massed band concert there will be about 300 musicians. Ancient Hawaiian history will be revealed in elaborate pageants undertaken by Hawaiians, while the Japanese, Koreans and Filipinos will also present bizarre spectacles based on life in their own lands. February is one of the most popular tourist months of the year, although the islanders claim that every month is the month of May. One of its important steamship services is supplied by Canada from the Vancouver port. The S.S. "Niagara" leaves for the Carnival on January 19th. Honolulu has splendid hotels, while motor cars are almost as numerous as in the large cities of the mainland.

TO AMUSE A SICK CHILD

A child recovering from an illness is apt to be fretful and peevish, demanding any amount of patience on the part of a mother or an attendant.

If the child is a boy, modelling clay will be found entertaining, and by helping him form different animals and houses many an irksome hour will be wiled away. If a girl, try paper flowers or paper dolls. Children also enjoy making scrapbooks. Cut attractive pictures from old colored magazines, for it should always be remembered children like bright colors. Young children can cut, if they are not competent to paste.

Never let a child who is just recovering from an illness sew, for it will prove tiring the work being too intent whereas paper clothes for dolly is sure to be enjoyed without fatigue.

A pair of toy scales and supplies, in the shape of rice, sugar, raisins and salt to keep shop, will please a small child, and mother, of course will do the buying.

Expensive toys are not necessary to make a child happy, for nine out of 10 will prefer some simple, home-made affair, or an amusement, they create for themselves. How many times the million-hair baby prefers and values the cheap toy to the costly electric contrivance offered by doting parents and friends.

Trent Valley Canal Will Be Open For Navigation This Spring

Matter Formed Subject of Discussion in the House of Commons---The Rice Lake Division is Nearing Completion

The appended remarks concerning the Trent Canal were made in the House of Commons a few days ago and subsequently appeared in Hansard:

Mr. Reid: I was speaking with the chief engineer about the Trent Canal, and he said it would be open for navigation this spring, but I shall probably be able to give my hon. friend more accurate information when we come to the item in the estimates.

Trent Canal.

This canal is familiar history to most of the members of this House having formed a part of the annual budget of the minister of railways and canals for a couple of generations. It is very satisfactory to know that our engineers hope to have that portion of the canal between the city of Peterborough and lake Ontario known as the Ontario Rice-Lake division, completed and open to navigation by the spring of 1917. The work remaining to be done consists of dredging out of river channels. All the structures have been completed except the reconstruction of the Grand Trunk Railway bridge at Campbellford, the completion of a few sluices in dam No. 10, which have been held back pending the execution of the bridge reconstruction and the hanging of lock gates between Glen Ross and Healey Falls. Upon completion vessels having a draft of eight feet will have access to Peterborough from the Great Lakes. This will be an event of considerable importance to the communities along that section of the canal. The total estimated cost of the Ontario Rice Lake division is $2,889,000, of which about $70,000 remains to be expended.

Negotiations have been concluded with officials of the railways for an agreement whereby the bridge will be reconstructed as a high level structure instead of a swing span, as originally proposed, and the work will be proceeded with this season.

On the Georgian Bay end of the Severn division, the Port Severn lock and the approaches thereto have been completed, giving access to Gloucester pool from Georgian Bay. Good progress has been made upon sections Nos. 2 and 3, which provide for the canalization of the upper reaches of the river. Owing to the war we have held back the letting of section No. 1, which will be necessary for through navigation. The total estimated cost of the Severn divisions is $3,575,000, of which work to the value of about $1,350,000 has been done.

The construction of the Trent canal has resulted in the development of a large amount of water power, which will be of very great assistance in the industrial upbuilding of Eastern Ontario. In fact, this electrical development is the key to the situation. Unfortunately, some years ago these powers were leased to parties at nominal rentals on the understanding, as I am informed, that they were to be developed and the people would enjoy the benefits of this development. Now these powers have been alienated but the people are not obtaining the benefits they expected. For instance, some of these powers have now been under lease for ten or fifteen years and no development whatever has taken place. The people of Eastern Ontario must have electrical power, and I understand negotiations are on at the present time and the leasees of these water powers, and the Ontario government is trying to arrange that these powers shall be developed. If these negotiations do not succeed, and should it become necessary, I shall recommend that a bill be brought down cancelling these leases and returning these powers to the Crown so that the people may have the benefit of a new deal.

HUSBAND ALWAYS TOOK HATCHET TO BED WITH HIM, SAYS WIFE

ROCHESTER, March 14.—Queer household pranks of a husband and wife were unfolded in testimony before Justice G. A. Benton Equity Court in the suit of Maria Mixner against Michael Mixner for a degree of separation, alimony, counsel fees and custody of one child.

Mrs. Mixner testified that her husband burned her new sewing machine which cost about $50 for no cause at all. "Whatever I cooked he put in the garbage pail" she said. "He always carried a hatchet to bed with him and used to put it under the mattress." She averred that he destroyed everything in the house.

Mixner, who is a tailor, about 50 years old, and who says he was married to the plaintiff in 1885, asserted that when she saw him coming home she would "dump the fire in the stove and leave him no meals or fire on which to cook them. He said they had a joint account in the bank but that when she left him she drew $800 out of the bank, leaving him $5. "When she left the house she moved away all the furniture except an old couch and a broken clock, added Mixner.

Four months ago she had him arrested for non-support. Justice Beaton refused to grant the woman a decree or alimony or council fees. No disposition of the 20-year-old son was made by the court. Andrew Sutherland volunteered to defend the suit for Mixner, who claims he has no funds.

BISHOP OF MONTREAL APPEALS TO THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC TO GIVE UP ITS MEN

Little Difficulties Between Provinces Can Wait Until After the War—If We Lose There Will Be No Difficulties to Settle—A Stirring Letter

MONTREAL, March 11.—"The lull which has occurred in the recruiting of the various regiments in the Province is serious. It concerns every one of us. It should arouse every citizen to renewed efforts.

So begins an appeal to the citizens of the Province of Quebec, issued by Bishop Farthing yesterday morning.

"The Province has done well in the matter of giving money for patriotic purposes and for Red Cross work" he continued. "For this we are thankful and proud. But more than money is needed to win the war, and the winning of this war is the first thing of this moment. It must have the right of way over every other consideration at the present time. Time is all important, for the enemy won't wait for us to adjust our grievances or to settle our disputes. The enemy is now, at this moment, hammering at our very doors.

"There is no question which devides the citizens of the Province; we are united in the desire to preserve our present liberties. The figures given out by the Minister of Militia show that this Province has given fewer men in proportion to our Dominion. We are involved in the war as much as any other Province. It means as much to us if the Germans win this war as it does to any other part of the Empire. Surely then we must unite in taking our part in the fighting, and have the same privilege as others in sacrificing for the principles of righteousness.

WAR HAS FIRST PLACE

"It is said, that the dispute about bilingualism in Ontario schools affects the question. That is a dispute between members of the Dominion, and can be settled after the present distress has passed. Minds will be clearer when men can give undivided attention to the matter. At the present moment that is difficult as the war occupies the first place. If the Dominion at large sees that this Province has thrown itself into the war with earnestness, and has done as much as any other part of the country in winning, then we will be in a far better position to discuss differences which may exist. If we hold back it will only prejudice the case, as there will not be the same willingness to grant concessions, of there should be the feeling that the Province was held back in the nation's hour of need. To hold back as both French and English are now doing, is to lessen our influence in the councils of the Dominion after the war.

"Further, it seems to me that it is unjust to those who have already gone forth. They are now in the fighting line. They require to be reinforced, and they have surely a right to expect that we will send them men enough to enable them to win. Not to do so will be a base desertion of the men who have brought such credit on Canada. If we fail and other sparts of the Dominion help, we cannot be surprised if these who have done their part should resent our inactivity.

IF WE ARE DEFEATED

"Our people do not seem to realize the issues at stake. If we are defeated, there will not be any need to discuss our differences on the bilingual question or any other for the German Government will settle all those things for us in its own drastic fashion. If we do not do to the full our part, then we will be responsible for the defeat. If the Empire is victorious without our fullest co-operation, then we will have little moral influences in the greater Canada that is to be. If, on the other hand, we come forward now and do to the full our part as a province in this crisis, then we will have an honored place in the councils of the Dominion, and even of the Empire, and whatever differences there may be can be settled, as such have ever been in the spirit of fairness to all concerned.

"To me it seems that our very religion is at stake. We here in Quebec may differ in religion somewhat, but we all believe in the Christ and in the Redemption which He affected for us men. Germany has foresaken this Lord of Love; and if they win their influence will be felt to the injury of the Faith of Jesus Christ. Their leaders tell us that they will give the world a new religion which will be actuated by the spirit manifested in this war. That will mean for us who believe in and love the Savior a time of suffering and trial.

"Now is the time to sink everything else and give our undivided attention to winning the war. When it is won, and we have nobly done our part, we can then in a spirit of fairness and brotherliness discuss with our brethren in other provinces whatever differences there may be, and we may be sure that full justice will be done in the future as in the past. Only strengthen our position by throwing ourselves into this fight which is ours as much as theirs."

"The Winning of Barbara Worth"

A Splendid Version of Harold Bell Wright's Popular Novel to Be Seen at "The Grand"

However interesting the story of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth" may have proven, the stage version by Mark E. Swan, which will be presented at the Grand Opera House for matinee and evening performances next Saturday under the direction of L. C. Yeomans, will prove far more fascinating.

The beautiful love story of Barbara Worth, together with the thrilling incidents, the magnificent, massive and picturesque scenic equipment, and painstaking portrayals of the absorbingly interesting characters of the story, will appeal to all classes of theatre-goers.

Those of us who have read Mr Wright's novel will delight in the way that Messrs. Rubens and Swan have dramatized the [illegible] and will see in the play a life-like picture of the scenes and people of the book that cannot fail to recall the pleasant hours spent in reading the novel.

Those of us who have not read the book will see a wonderfully interesting play of the west with a principal character, Barbara Worth, a type of American woman that is absolutely new to the stage. Barbara is a woman for whom two men—both really worth while battle—and the winning of her love is the sweetest story ever told.

INTERESTING FIGURES ABOUT HOTEL BUSINESS

Value of Real Estate and Buildings Occupied is $43,333,256.56---36,953 Rooms in Licensed Hotels of Ontario While There is Stable and Shed Accommodation for 42,593 Horses.

TORONTO, March 13.—The executive of the Ontario Licensed and Allied Trades Association is in session this afternoon, giving final consideration to the statement to be presented to Premier Hearst and his Cabinet setting forth the views of the 1,430 licensees of the Province with regard to the proposed enactment bringing prohibition into effect throughout the Province.

Premier Hearst to-day advised the association that he and his Cabinet would receive a delegation to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Claim No Mandate Given.

The deputation will contend that the only correct method of determining sentiment throughout the Province for or against prohibition is by the recorded vote of the people. Petitions in themselves, they will claim, as undependable; as many people will sign a petition who will not vote as they sign. Until the people pronounce upon the question by a referendum, the Government the liquor men urge, have no mandate to introduce direct prohibitory legislation, wiping out a business for years legalized by the Government of the Province and from which the Province has collected over $17,000,000 in license fees.

The statement will also show that only a little more than one-third the population of the Province has by vote chosen to reside in "dry" territory. The population within the Province under local option and the Canada Temperance Act, including those municipalities which will go dry on May 1st next, on account of local option by-laws carrying last January is, it is claimed, but 923,534 out of a total Provincial population of 2,519,902. This is equal to but 37 per cent. of the whole population.

It will also be claimed that the petitions of the Committee of One Hundred, even accepting that every voter who signed it will also vote for prohibition, does not equal half the voters of the Province. There are 792,473 names on the Ontario voters' list, while the number who signed the voters' petition of the Committee of One Hundred is 326,423.

Losses of Licensed Trade.

The most important feature of the deputations presentation will be a comprehensive detailed statement of the effect the introduction of a prohibitory measure will have upon the licensed trade of Ontario. This information, it is claimed, was compiled from statistics gathered by the Ontario Licensed and Allied Trades Association within the last few weeks as a result of a questionaire sent out to every license holder throughout the Province. It is alleged to be the most complete and authentic ever compiled.

It shows that there are 1,430 licensees in the Province, 1,219 holding hotel and 211 shop licenses.

The families of licensees represent 6,296 individuals.

The total number of employees is 12,630.

Licensees pay out $5,647,092.80 annually in wages and board to these employees.

There are 36,953 rooms in the licensed hotels.

The classes of trade which these hotels accommodate are: Commercial and farmers', 671 hotels; commercial only, 271 hotels; farmers only, 85; miscellaneous, including general transients, tourists, lumbermen, railroad men, miners, prospectors, fishermen, sport-men, hunters, theatrical, sailors, laborers, soldiers, drovers, sailors, river drivers, [illegible] 192 hotels.

Of the 1,430 licensees, 860 are owners of the building in which they do business, while 570 are tenants.

The total taxes paid last year on premises of all licensees was $742,[illegible]85.97.

In connection with the 1,219 hotels, stable and shed accommodation is provided for 42,593 horses, while garage accommodation is also provided for 23 automobiles.

The total value of real estate and buildings occupied by licensees is $43,333,256.56.

The value of furniture and fixtures is $7,311,448.27.

Licensees have contributed 2,100 men to regiments for overseas service from the members of their families or staff of employees.

The amount of mortgages and loans on the properties and holdings of licensees totals $8,688,832.95, divided as follows: Real estate and buildings, $4,524,157.54; business license and furniture, $4,164,674.51.

It is also figured that the indebtedness of licensees to banks will exceed a million and a half. The introduction of prohibition will, it is claimed necessitate the prompt settlement of over $10,000,000 in obligations by licensees and cause a financial crisis of no small importance.

BROOMS AND SAPOLIO ALONE ESCAPED COUNCIL'S KNIFE IN CUTTING FIRE DEPT. ESTIMATES

Appropriations Reduced From $18,317 to $15,000— Firemen Will Be Asked to Go Without New Uniforms This Year—Aldermen Not Only "Cut to the Bone" But Scraped It.

SOME OF THE FIGURES

The Fi. Water and Light estimates went home in a barrel last night after being stripped to the hide by the Committee of the whole council. Originally they had appeared at the ambitious sum of $18,317.71, which provided for all the usual requirements, including new rubber boots, suits, etc., and the Chief's expenses to the annual convention. There wasn't much overlooked except motor driven chemical engines and things like that. All the ordinary supplies seemed to have been included in the $18,317.71. But the Aldermen were determined to retrench, and after a preliminary session some nights ago had cut the original appropriations down to $17,500 But this did not satisfy, they wanted to get down around 15,000, and with a battle cry of "to the bone" they pared or rather hacked and gouged the proposed estimates for this year down to $14,473. Ald. Evans, chairman of the committee, attempted a defensive movement, but it was futile. The Aldermen had tasted blood, so to speak, and proceeded to revel in an orgy of slashing and pruning, never witnessed before in these parts. Ald. Evans tried to make a stand here and there, but finally gave it up saying "you aven't pared to the bone, your's cut to the marrow". Ald. McIntyre was amazed at the night's business. He had never witnessed anything so drastic by any Board or Aldermen and probably there arose before him the manhandling his Board or Works could expect.

NO NEW UNIFORMS.

The following are examples of how the committee went to work. Uniforms, overcoats, shirts, caps and rubber boots for the firemen were estimated at $685 but this was cut to $500. Ald Stratton said that the men were well supplied with boots, uniforms etc., and should be asked to try to get along this year with what they have.

Then came fuel. "They must feed it to the horses", someone remarked when Ald. Stratton said the city had put in $550 worth of coal in the Fire Hall last year. There are about 25 tons in stock now; the 375 opposite this item in the estimate was cut to $150.

Horse feed was pruned from $800 down to $600. Ald Dobbin told the council it would be just as cheap to maintain motor driven vehicles. Ald. Stratton produced figures showing the average cost per horse in 1914 was $149.97 per year or 39½ cents per day.

Ald. Stratton emphatically asserted that a bushel of oats was a sufficient daily ration for any horse.

Ottawa, said Ald. Stratton pays 34 cents a day for the upkeep of its Fire Department horses.

NO FIRE HOSE THIS YEAR

"Cut out all hose this year," said Ald. Dobbin of the $300 estimate.

"Ald Edgar—leave $100 anyway.

Ald Stratton—That will only buy two lengths. Cut it all out.

Last year $615 was spent for new hose.

Telephone—$70 passed by the Board of Censors.

Brooms—$15—Ald. Edgar figured out that $12 would be sufficient and he ought to know.

New Alarm boxes—$350. first cut to $225 eliminated last night. Going going, gone.

Hardware supplies—$125 cut to $25.00.

General repairs—$100 cut to $50.

Incidentals—$100 cut to $50

Freight, cartage—$25 cut to $10.

The firemen will have to have their own freight.

Paint and varnish—$15 cut to $10.

Expenses to conventions—$250, This sum was previously erased.

The Aldermen couldn't cut the $115 for horseshoeing or they would have.

Horses—$700, cut to $550.

Sapolio, bon ami, etc.,—$50. cut to $40.

Incidentals—$100, cut to $50.

Electric lamps—$25, cut to $20.

Repairs to roof—$75, cut out.

Ald. Stratton—We can ask the city Trust to do this work for us.

RAISED SUM TO $15,000

Having thus accomplished their pruning designs on the estimates for the Fire Department Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders that $15,000 be the total appropriation for this department. In other words, having affected a reduction to $144.73, the city fathers felt they could be generous to the extent of the difference up to $15,000.

Two English scientists who are experimenting expect to solve the problem of producing electricity directly from coal without using a steam engine and dynamo.

Studebaker Factory at Walkerville Model Plant

B. W. Manning, 388 Water Street is Agent and Expects Good Demand This Year

That Canada is fast taking a place of leadership among the world's manufacturers of motor cars is the observation of J. E. Grady, Canadian sales manager of the Studebaker, whose Canadian factory is located in Walkerville, Ont.

"There are a number of manufacturers of automobiles that have established or have announced ther intablished or have announced their in-Canada," says Mr. Grady. "I believe that within five years every important builder of motor cars will be operating a factory in this country.

"Among manufacturers the Studebaker Corporation was a pioneer in appreciating the advisability of locating a factory in Canada. We have gone into it on a large scale, too, and the result is that the Studebaker plant in Walkerville is second to none in Canada in size and equipment.

"Our Walkerville factory is a big four-story building with plenty of light all around so as to make working conditions ideal. We have spared no expense in securing the highest type of automobile experts and the best of equipment to insure that the Studebaker product will maintain the Studebaker ideal of high quality cars at attractively low prices.

"Canada has found itself as a market for quality automobiles at prices that are moderate. This country has been blessed with great natural resources and the energetic type of men who make the most of those resources. Prosperity, therefore, has been the logical result. And with prosperity generally comes the abijity to buy automobiles as well as the desire to own them.

"The greatly increased sales of Studebaker cars in Canada has been a reflection on the prosperity of Canada, and at that we have only just made a beginning. Our factory output at Walkerville is being taxed to capacity in order to supply the demand for our series 17 cars."

The Man Who Has Added Millions to the Sunday Schools in the Last Ten Years is Coming to Peterboro

Mr. W. C. Pearce of Chicago, Ill., Adult Division Superintendent of the International Sunday School Association reported in February last, that during the past ten years, since the organization of Adult Bible Classes has become popular, two million men and one and a half million women have been added to the Sunday Schools of North America. This result is largely due to the influence of class activity among organized classes. Mr. Pearce is the first and only International Secretary of the Adult Class Movement.

Accompanied by Rev. E. W. Halpenny, General Secretary of the Ontario Sunday School Association, Mr. Pearce will attend the annual meeting of the Peterborough Sunday School Association on Wednesday, March 15th, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in the afternoon, and Bethany Tabernacle in the evening. ad-60

SIEGEL TO TRY TO MAKE $10,000,000

ROCHESTER, N.Y., March 11.—Henry Siegel returned to Rochester yesterday from Geneseo, where he was taken on his release from Monroe county penitentiary. Siegel said to reporters: —

"I expect to make $10,000,000 before I die; and why shouldn't I? I was worth $5,000,000 five years ago, and what was my experience then to what it is now? Practically all the money I had was tied up in business.

Federal Prohibition Demanded.

A large meeting of the temperance people of the city gathered in Grace church to-night to hear the election returns and rejoice over the result. An important resolution was moved by Mr. Ashton Andrews, and seconded by Rev. Dr. Eber Crummy, urging Sir Robert Borden to introduce in the House of Commons a Dominion prohibitory measure. The resolution was as follows:

"Manitoba by an overwhelming majority joins the sister Provinces in the closing of the barrooms, and this meeting of electors and citizens calls on you, as the Premier of Canada, to introduce a Dominion prohibitory measure for the whole of Canada."

Enjoyable Banquet For Anglicans of 93rd Battalion

Last night about 160 soldiers, comprising a large portion of the Anglicans of the 93rd Battalion, were entertained at a banquet given by the Anglican Young People's Association in the schoolroom of All Saints' church, Mr. J. W. Worth, president, in the chair.

The method of "attack" of the fellows was much admired. They certainly charged" the tables with a royal will and did justice to the various dishes.

After the "spread" the orderly officer for the evening, Percy Luther, inquired at each table if there were any complaints and judging by the response all were well satisfied.

With "lightning" speed tables were cleared and chairs placed ready for the musical programme, which opened with a wonderfully concerted item given by the cooks, entitled, "Sweet Chiming Bells." The chimes of these bells was a marvellous effort of their vocal powers creating a most discordant effect. It is hard to say whether the noise that followed was an applause or a "bowl down." The cooks were apparently satisfied, for they did not appear again.

Master Percy Luther in his usual form gave two rousing recitations which were well received.

Songs were given by the Misses Timm and Melton, Corp. D. G. Melton and Pte. W. Farr.

Pte. Cole, ventriloquist, caused some fun with his little chum, Mac McGregor. McGregor certainly spoke up for himself.

Sergt-Major Hartshorn with his brother Fred gave some of their funny dialogues. Fred's face (when contorted) is a wonderful specimen of contortionism and is a comedy in itself.

At this stage Chaplain Major J. C. Davidson, who was present, spoke a few well chosen words concerning the spirit of the invitation which was extended to the men.

He said Peterborough should be proud of the boys of the 93rd, their general behaviour was above reproach.

With some lusty cheers and the singing of the National Anthem, the evening was brought to a close.

Capt. Birdsall Is Progressing Slowly

Col. Birdsall has received the following letter from Major William Beatty, Senior Chaplain of the Second Canadian Division:

Dear Colonel Birdsall,—I am sure it is a relief to you to have Everette "safely wounded," as the boys say here. The wound did not seem to cause him much pain, and he was in good spirits when I saw him. It was a close shave. He was not born to be killed in this war. There are miracles wrought by prayer, and this is one—the oft repeated escapes of officers and men. I may get a chance to see Everette next week if he is still in France. I expect to go on a tour of the base hospitals with the A. D. C. S., and if I do I may get a chance to see him. One can't find out where hospitals are very easy.

I hope Mrs. Birdsall is not worrying about her boy. He is a brick, and every inch a soldier and a man, and has won a fine place in the hearts of his men and his brother officers. He is slowly improving after six critical operations, and it will be some time before he is able to return to duty. With best wishes.

Yours truly,
W. BEATTY.

WILL CELEBRATE THE PURCHASE OF POWER

Ald. Stratton and Capt. Burnham Both Agree And Differ On Proposed Jubilee

A proposal to hold a public jubilation here on March 31, celebrating the water power purchase in the Trent Valley district, was the subject of an informal conference between Captain J. H. Burnham and the City Council last night. Hon. Dr. Reid and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson have promised Capt. Burnham to speak at a public meeting, and Hon. Adam Beck will also be invited. The suggestion will be further elaborated to-night.

Ald. Stratton agreed that it was altogether desirable to celebrate the acquisition of these power units for the people, but if Capt. Burnham were sincere in his wish to make the event non-political the city should invite Hon. Geo. P. Graham and Mr. N. W. Rowell.

Capt. Burnham replied that the gentlemen mentioned would come here not as Conservatives, but as representatives of the Government which bore the responsibility of effecting this plan.

Mayor Duffus said one thing was certain, namely, that Sir Adam Beck should be pressed to come down here for the occasion.

Capt. Burnham paid tribute to Mayor Duffus' efforts and agreed with Ald. Stratton that the Government had been supported by Liberals and had to overcome strong Conservative opposition to the power purchase.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that Sir Adam Beck, Hon. Dr. Reid, and Hon. W. G. Ferguson be invited here on March 31st. Ald. Stratton moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Weir, that invitations be also sent to Hon. G. P. Graham and Mr. N. W. Rowell. The motion carried by 7 to 3.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, March 14.—Bethlehem led the market in a rush of early buying on the stock exchange to-day, opening at 5.50, up 25 1-4. There were other marked advances in war industrials, Crucible at 95 showing a gain of 2 1-8. Later Crucible receded to 93 3-4. Baldwin Locomotive at 80 1-4, up 1-4; American Locomotive at 80 1-4, up 1-4, and Republic and Lackawanna Steel were each up fractionally. U. S. Steel was up 1-2 at 86. Mexican specialties were strong Petroleum at 106 3-4 showing an advance of 7-8.

Crucible shortly rebounded to its opening price and other stocks which were up in the intial trading continued their rise. American Locomotive went to 81 and Baldwin to 112. Westinghouse was strong.

Fears that the upward movement might not be entirely healthy developed toward noon, but the heavy buying continued, and there were no notable reactions. Trading was brisk in U. S. Steel. Baldwin Locomotive continues to advance and Westinghouse rose more than a point.

Railroad stocks which had been sluggish through the morning turned early in the afternoon and became very active. They advanced with the war Industrials and Mexican specialties. Penna. went to 77, and Reading advanced to 87¼, the highest price for Reading since the outbreak of the war. Erie, New York Central, Great Northern and St. Paul were strong.

RAID FINANCED IN U. S. ?

One-Time Envoy Says Interests Sought Mexican Intervention.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 14.—That Villa's incursion and the Columbus massacre were "inspired and financed by interests on this side," was charged by John Lind, recently confidential representative of President Wilson in Mexico. His intimation was that the "interest" involved are trying to force intervention. The Lind charge was made in a statement given in answer to a request for an expression of opinion on the present border crisis. His statement says: "Villa's incursion can hardly be said to be border trouble, strictly speaking. He was, undoubtedly inspired and financed by interests on this side. But if there had been a neutral zone, with adequate police protection co-operating from both sides, even his incursion could have been prevented."

Mr. Lind declined to elaborate on his statement.

A burial casket has been invented that is made of two pieces of heavy glass, held together by metal bands, that is proof against chemical action of the earth.

WEDDING BELLS

DICKSON—PEARSON.

In the Immaculate Conception church, Galway, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, Feb. 22nd, a very pretty wedding was solemnised by Rev. J. J. Guiry, when Miss Laura, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Pearson of Galway, became the bride of Mr. Leo Hickson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hickson of Lindsay, Ont. The bride who was attired in blue silk and black hat, was assisted by her sister, Miss Margaret Pearson, who like wise wore a blue dress with black hat, while the groom was assisted by Herbert Clarke, cousin of the bride.

The wedding party then returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts.

Amid a shower of rice the happy couple left for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Lindsay.

LACE AND FLOUNCES PROMINENT IN SPRING FASHIONS

Many of These Give a Spanish Effect and Are Most Graceful

Spanish Lace Scarfs Favoured

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Spanish influence, they call our tendency this season toward ruffles, flounces, laces, full short skirts, and basques. This note was first mentioned at the introduction of the bolero, a little earlier in the season, and since the 'premiere' of Goyescas at the Metropolitan Opera House some weeks ago—the first time, by the way, that America has been honoured with a first performance of a new opera—this Spanish note is being talked of more and more. Whether it will really be an important issue in the summer fashions is yet to be seen; so far it is being noticed only in a strong leaning toward the deep Spanish flounce of lace on dance and dinner dresses, an on lingerie summer frocks.

In the fascinating Fandango, danced in the second act of Goyescas, the dancer wears a charming little frock of yellow, with two deep black lace flounces joined to veil the skirt from below a deep yoke depth; the frock is so dainty and graceful that it should incline us all to Spanish lace flounces.

The Spanish Lace Scarf.

All through the brilliant audience on opening night, as a delicate attention no doubt to the composer, one saw the Spanish lace scarf in both black and white, draped about gleaming white shoulders. Here and there in true Spanish fashion, too, a high back comb was seen, often in the shining black hair of a true Spanish beauty; and there were any number of them, keenly appreciative of their countryman's offering. There has never been anything more graceful and useful than these scarfs and any one possessing one should be more than grateful. They are a charming accessory to the formal evening gown and serve the dance frock equally well.

The Vogue of Lace.

Much lace is being used on dresses aside from flounces. One of the favourite methods is to veil a deep band of lace in the bodice, as shown in our first illustration, and another use is shown in the sleeves and front panel effect on the other frock. The metal laces, rather heavy in weave are especially effective for veiling purposes. The gold and silver bandings are most attractive. Often in the costume blouse the lace is attached to a flesh-coloured lining, or is veiled first with pale pink chiffon and the pink in turn veiled with the dark blue, black, or other shade of the blouse.

PITIFUL SCENES FOLLOW RAID

COLUMBUS, N.M., March 14.—During the late afternoon a number of the more timid women were sent from here to interior points by automobiles and during the night the bodies of those killed by the Mexicans were being prepared at improvised morgues for burial. While J. J. Moore lay dead his wife, herself seriously wounded, was calling for him piteously. She was told that her husband was safe and well. It is feared that the shock of her husband's death will be fatal.

In the little schoolhouse a baby girl cried herself to sleep in the midst of pain caused by injuries inflicted by the glass of a window shattered by a Mexican bullet in the room where the child and her mother cowered in terror.

HAD WEAK HEART HAD TO STAY IN BED

Many women are kept in a state of fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to their household, social or business duties, on account of the unnatural action of the heart.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief. They do this by their calming, strengthening and invigorating action on the heart causing it to beat regularly and naturally, and in addition to this they tone up the whole nerve system.

Mrs. J. Day, 234 John St. South, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was so run down with a weak heart that I could not even sweep the floor, nor could I sleep at night. I was so awfully sick sometimes I had to stay in bed all day as I was so weak. I used three and a half boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am a cured woman to-day, and as strong as anyone could be, and am doing my own housework, even my own washing.

"I doctored for over two years, but got no help until I used your pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25. They can be had at all druggists or dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THIS is a problem that for centuries have engaged the attention of the world's greatest thinkers. Sportsmen's Battalion To Play the 93rd

Peterboro' Soldiers Will Clash With the 180th in Toronto on Friday Night With the Return Game Here on Monday Night

Through the visit of Pte. "Billy" Breen, manager of the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion team, and formerly the coach of the Electrics, the 93rd Battalion have arranged the biggest series of the season in a two-game clash with the Sportsmen's Battalion team. The 93rd team will visit Toronto on Friday, and will meet the Sportsmen's seven at the Arena. The Toronto soldiers will be here for the return game at Brock Street Rink on Monday night, and the 180th will likely run an excursion, and be down here with a bunch of supporters and their battalion band. The 93rd team will have a battle on their hands, as a look over the calibre of the sportsmen will show. In goal the 180th have Sergt. Mitchell, goalkeeper of the T. R. and A. A. seniors this year. On the defence are Lieut. Ken McLaren, reckoned one of the best defence men in senior O.H.A. hockey, and one of the T. R. and A. A. mainstays during the past two seasons, and Pte. Russell, last season with Riversides. On the forward line the Sportsmen have Pte. Reg. Noble, the sterling rover of the Riversides, senior O. H. A. champions; Lieut. Harry Watson, the sensational scoring machine of St. Andrew's College; Lieut. G. Applegath, the star right wing of the Riversides; Lieut. Molyneux, of the Parkdale Canoe Club; Pte. John Dowd, of last year's Toronto Rowing Club; Pte. Nicholls, of Midland, and other good men to select from. The visit of the Sportsmen to Peterborough should be the big event of the season.

The Mail and Empire says: The defi of the 93rd Battalion hockey team of Peterborough to play any soldiers' seven in Toronto has been accepted by the Sportsmen's Battalion and the game will be played at the Arena on St. Patrick's night.

"Billy" Breen will muster a formidable crew, and the "cocky warriors" from the East, who have made a great record this season, will not have a picnic. The 180th team will be chosen from Mitchell and McLaren, late of the T. R. and A. A.; Applegath and Noble, Riversides; John Dowd, T. R. C. two years ago; Watson, the great scoring forward, St. Andrew's College; Molyneaux, Parkdale C.C. juniors, and Nicholls, late of Midland. All the seats will be of the rush variety, excepting one section, which has been reserved by the Sunshine Club. It will be a big night all round. Several skating races are carded between Toronto's best and several bands will be in attendance.

Electrics Beaten In Overtime Game By Lindsay Team

A team representing the Electrics and including Montgomery and Windsor of the 93rd Battalion, journeyed to Lindsay last night and were beaten by the Lindsay Athletic Club, City League winners, by 9 goals to 7 in an exciting overtime game. It was a good battle all the way. As long as they lasted the Electrics had a margin on the Lindsayites and were ahead at the end of the first period by 5 goals to nothing, but the majority of the players have been out of the game for weeks, and they faded away. Lindsay closed the gap in the second period and it was 5 to 4 at the close of the session. In the third period, Lindsay scored twice and the Electrics found the nets once, leaving the score tied at 6 all when the period ended. In the overtime the Athletic Club scored three times while the Electrics were getting one and it wound up 9—7. The Electrics were all in by the time the third period started and they had nothing left for the overtime.

Windsor starred for the Peterborough bunch, his work in the first period being particularly brilliant. He hung up four goals in the first twenty minutes by nice work around the nets.

Legros played a fine game in the nets, tearing off some brilliant stops. Two or three of the goals were caused by his defence backing in on him.

The Lindsay team had a good outfit in line, including Art Carew, Griffis and Welsh of this year's juniors, Sandercock and McElroy of last year's junior O.H.A. team, and Primeau, who was the spare goaler with the champion Victorias last year. Carew was the pick of the bunch and led the scoring brigade, while McElroy was good all the way.

Alf. Gamble, the old Lindsay goaler, refereed the game. The teams lined up as follows:

Lindsay.		Electrics.
Primeau	Goal	Legros
Richmond Sandercock	Defence	McMartin Hamilton
Carew	Rover	Evans
McElroy	Centre	Windsor (Cherrett)
Griffis	Right Wing	Montgomery
Welsh	Left Wing	Graham

Cherrett played centre in the second period for the Electrics. The Lindsay Club did not change their line-up.

The only disagreeable feature of the game was a scrap in the overtime period. An Electric played and one of the Lindsay team got into a mix-up and Sandercock took a hand in the argument by chopping the Peterborough man over the head with his stick.

RIVERSIDES ARE NOW SENIOR CHAMPIONS

BERLIN, March 13.—Riversides are senior O.H.A. champions. They not only defeated Berlin at Toronto by the score of 8 to 1 but repeated here to-night by the close score of 4 to 3, thus winning the round and honors of 8 goals, or 12 to 4.

To-night's game was anything but good hockey, but then there was a reason, as the mild weather made the ice very slow and sugary, thus hampering the carrying of the puck or stopping any combination that might be tried. It was hockey under the worst possible conditions, but Riversides, despite the fact that they were unfamiliar with this kind of going demonstrated that they are without doubt the better team of the two.

Berlin made a determined attempt to reduce the lead in the first period, but the visitors were just as determined, the result being that the pace in this session was the fastest of the game. Incidentally it was at the end of this period that the Berlin team showed their nose in front for the first and only time during the two games, as at the end of the first twenty minutes they were ahead by 3 to 2. This was their last stand, as Riversides evened it up in the second stanza, and scored the only counter in the get-away period.

A packed house greeted the gladiators. A special train from Toronto brought six well filled coaches, which the afternoon train brought along fans from Georgetown, Acton and Guelph. The surrounding towns were also well represented. The receipts were $1,154.

Riversides had to overcome two things when they went on the ice to-night. First, the small rink and the other was the soft condition of the ice. Both were entirely foreign to the Toronto team, and it took them twenty minutes before they got going. After this they had periods, especially in the last when they rained shot after shot on Hainsworth, but nobody was waiting in front for the rebounds, and the locals had little trouble in relieving.

Berlin stuck to the old game of trying to play combination on ice that was impossible for them to play it on. On the other hand, Riversides, led by Dopp, soon adopted the tactics of banging the puck down the ice ahead of them and then skating after it. Naturally this style of play did not appeal to the Berlin supporters, but, then, the visitors were not attempting and grand stand work, but were playing for results.

The game, considering the nature of the ice, was a very clean one, although Trushinski was hunting for trouble a lot of his time on the bench. In the last period Hainsworth, no doubt peered at the way things were going, began swinging with his stick. Once he hit Crane over the back, and then getting away with that, took a swat at Applegath.

On the play of the two games, the Berlin aggregation are not to be compare to thed Toronto east-end team. To-night they played a better game than they did in Toronto, but even then they didn't show senior calibre. Had the ice been hard the visitors would have swamped them worse than they did. No one player stood out above another this evening, perhaps the exception of Siebert, who was even slower than the ice.

The game did not commence until after 9 o'clock, but Referee Whitehead soon had them play out the full 60 minutes. In this he was aided by perhaps something that never happened before in a senior final, namely, not a stop for injuries.

Less Than a Pound of Potatoes Daily For Berlin People

Cards To Be Issued to Distribute the Supply

Shortage of Bread Brings a New Regulation for Use of Flour.

BERLIN, March 14, via London—Potato cards, the issuance of which has been made necessary by the shortage due, it is asserted, to speculators holding out for higher prices, will take their place alongside the bread and butter cards in Berlin, on March 20.

The first cards will cover a sixty-day period, and allow the holders to purchase eleven English pounds of potatoes every twelve days, probably at the uniform price of 65 pfennige. The general potato situation during the sixty days will determine whether the plan must be continued.

In announcing this step Burgomaster von Wermuth said that the population had of late been living, so far as potatoes were concerned, from hand to mouth. He anticipated, however, that all the difficulties would be over in a few days.

Owing to the recent shortage in bread, the military authorities today forbade the production of all cakes between March 13 and March 19, inclusive, made of white, rye, or potato flour, and their sale between March 15 and 19. This step was taken on the complaint of many bakers that other bakers, who are not short of flour, were using it for cakes, rather than for bread. The shortage is due to unequal distribution, which is expected to be remedied within the week.

ONLY ONE HAT CROP.

Peroxide Famine Will Curb Output of Straws.

NEW YORK, March 14.—"Repeaters" will be at a premium this summer. Hats will be passed but once, and there will be no seconds, according to a warning sent out recently by the straw hat manufacturers and bleachers. "Pick a good one while you are picking," is their advice, "for there will be no second crop."

The reason is simple. The war shut off the foreign peroxide supply, cutting down the bleaching concerns to three-fifths time and leaving the Niagara Electric-Chemical Company the only source of supply. Wednesday a fire and a series of explosions put the Niagara concern so completely out of business that it will not ship another pound of peroxide before the beating rays of a summer's sun have come.

Will Hold a Toy Conference

OTTAWA, March 14. — It is a curious fact that the nation whose soldiers used little Belgian children as shields to protect them against the fire of British and French guns, the nation which rejoices when bombs dropped from Zeppelins kill innocent English children, the nation that exulted when the bodies of murdered children from the Lusitania floated on the ocean, is the one which before the outbreak of the war made toys for children all over the world. There was no sentiment in it. The Germans knew that every child throughout the world delighted to play with toys and every little girl desired a doll. It was a matter of business to supply the universal demand.

In almost every Canadian household children played with German dolls and toys. Once a year the great Canadian department stores and the wholesale houses that supplied small retail stores with toys sent their buyers to Germany to purchase toys. Since the outbreak of the war German goods of all kinds being excluded from Canada the large department stores and the wholesale houses have found it exceedingly difficult to get toys to supply the Canadian demand and similar conditions prevail in every country of the British Empire.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has recently received several inquiries from England as to whether Canadians can supply toys to take the place of the German toys now excluded from the United Kingdom.

With a view to encouraging the manufacture of toys in Canada both for the home market and for export Sir George Foster has arranged for a Toy Conference which will take place in the Royal Bank Building at the corner of King and Yonge Streets, Toronto, on the 28th of March, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. A large number of samples of German toys such as were formerly imported into Canada will be on exhibition to show Canadian manufacturers what the Germans supplied and there will be a collection of American toys to show what our neighbours in the United States have been doing to replace German toys. It is hoped that all Canadian manufacturers of toys will send exhibits so that the exhibition will be thoroughly representative. There has been a surprising development of toy manufacturing in Canada since the outbreak of the war and there are known to be not less than twenty-four toy manufacturers in Canada at the present time. There may be others. All manufacturers of children's playthings and games are invited to send exhibits. Most of those now manufacturing toys in Canada are making them as a side line, using waste materials, but there are a few concerns that are devoting their entire attention to the manufacture of toys. While the Toy Conference will not open until March 28, it is desired to have the exhibits in place not later than March 21, in order that everything may be well arranged. It is proposed to keep the toys on exhibition for about a week after the day of the Conference. Exhibits should be addressed, Toy Conference, Royal Bank Building, corner King and Yonge Streets, Toronto.

All the large department stores and a number of wholesale houses in Montreal and Toronto have promised to send their toy buyers to the Conference and as most of these toy buyers have been accustomed to visit Germany every year and are acquainted not only with the requirements of the Canadian market but also with German methods it is expected that they will make practical suggestions of value to Canadian toy manufacturers and those who contemplate the manufacture of toys in Canada.

All Canadian toy manufacturers, all department stores, wholesale houses and retail merchants who handle toys are invited to send representatives to this Conference, and any others who may be interested in making or selling toys will be welcomed.

As one of the objects of the Conference is to interest capital in the development of toy industries already established it is hoped that capitalists willing to investigate the possibilities of the industry will be present at the Conference. It is believed that many of our large industries might make use of waste materials in the manufacture of toys and it will be well worth while for such industries to send representatives to the Conference.

Sir George Foster will take the chair, and deliver the opening address.

BANS "PASTOR" RUSSELL.

NORTH BAY, Ont., March 14. — Mayor McIlvenna has issued instructions to the Police Department not to allow "Pastor" Russell to deliver any address in North Bay. "Pastor" Russell is billed to speak here on Tuesday night.

The Mayor states that from information he received the speaker's address is detrimental to recruiting and cannot be allowed under the circumstances.

Studebaker

Representing the supreme effort of the GREAT Studebaker factories at Walkerville, the GREAT resources of the Studebaker Corporation and the long, long years of Studebaker's successful manufacturing experience, these new SERIES 17 Studebakers are the biggest values that Canada has ever seen.

In POWER, the new Studebakers are absolutely without rivals at such prices. No other 7-passenger, 4-cylinder car on the market offers FORTY Horse Power at any such price as $1225. And no other FIFTY Horse Power SIX is priced as low as $1450.

Both are SEVEN-passenger cars—big, roomy and inviting and finished as few cars at any price are finished. And both exhibit a series of new refinements in finish and mechanical design that have made these new models the sensation of 1916.

See the car before you decide on any. Note
—DIVIDED and adjustable front seats;
—tank in rear with Stewart Vacuum Feed;
—FULL-floating rear axle with complete equipment of Timken Bearings;
—overlapping, storm-proof windshield;
—deeper crown fenders;
—upholstery of the finest straight-grain, semi-glazed leather;
—more conveniently arranged instruments on dash with indirect illumination;
—Studebaker-Wagner Starting System;

And THEN, decide if any other car on the market offers you more REAL value for the price.

Cupid Released By The War

PARIS, March 14.—Genuine courtship—real love-making—as an incident to marriage is one of the innovations that war has brought to France. It may develop into a revolution of the marriage system, and is almost certain in any case to be the death of much of the red tape that has entangled, and more or less strangled cupid.

Marriage was hard hit during the first months of the war, but by reason of the authorization of unions by proxy and the infusion of war romance it is rapidly recovering.

In Paris there were only 768 marriages in January, 1915, as against 2,341 in January, 1914. In December 1915, there were 1,289, showing a remarkable recovery under the circumstances.

In a great many of these war marriages, it is noticed that girls without fortune are for the time being running their more favored sisters a close race, since in a great proportion of the marriages celebrated since hostilities began the marriage contract has been dispensed with; no mention of dower nor talk about money; romance has taken the place of finance.

Wounded heroes have in hundreds of cases fallen in love with and married their nurses: nearly every day the story is told of some man in a fighting regiment corresponding with an unknown sympathizer who has come home on leave to find that his "godmother" is worth marrying for himself.

Women and girls acting as "godmothers" to unknown correspondents at the front have developed what is lightly called "the flirt at the front" into formidable proportions, and this is at this moment perhaps the most efficient marriage agency in the world. The sacrifices made by some girls marrying soldiers who have been blinded or maimed almost to the point of total helplessness have spread the contagion, and love affairs are born at every hand by the close communion of sympathetic minds centred on great events, and through the constant movement of soldiers coming in contact with new faces, every one of which under present circumstances is bound to be sympathetic.

Prisoners of Fate—those behind a "Measles" sign.

* * *

One day last week a cab, decorated with white ribbon, threaded its course down George street, bearing [illegible] and without three signs. One read: "Good-bye Girls. Good-bye Boys," which meant that in future they would be dead to the world, another had: "Your King and Country Need You Now," which is self-explanatory; the other, the plant word "Measles." This should not be interpreted that they were having a measly time, but that they would be in quarantine at least three weeks, which is the usual period for honeymoonitis.

Indigent Patients Will Get Less Money

W. J. Henry, city assessor, whose salary of $1,700 last year was by previous agreement reach its maximum of $1,800 this year, will, under the proposal to per cent cut in civic salaries, if it materializes, receive his increase of $100 and then be set back $180 as sacrifice to Alderman Langford's economy collection.

Not only does the Council gouge deeply into the salaries of City Clerk and Treasurer under the Langford measure, but they also cut an item of $25 for the selection of jurors to $15, $5 apiece to the Mayor, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Adams.

Indigent patients' item was cut from $4,000 to $3,000. Last year $3,180 was actually spent. Hence, Mr. F. W. Miller will have to tighten up even more than last year, and refuse or shorten the hospital periods.

Charity incidentals of $134 was cut out entirely.

Dog tags estimated at $25 was cut to $00 because only $10 was spent last year.

COST HIM $5 A WORD.

County Constable Heavily Fined at Berlin for Seditious Remark.

Berlin, Ont., March 14.—Five dollars a word comes pretty high when making a speech, but the significance of the statement is what counts. County Constable Beiss, on coming out of the American Hotel on Saturday night, was heard by several witnesses to make the remark: "I've no use for the King," and he was found guilty by Magistrate Weir in the Police Court this morning and fined $25 and costs $34 in all or twenty days in jail.

Beiss replied: "I'm not guilty of it, and I will fight it. I will appeal."

During the march-past of the Galt soldiers on Saturday, Charles Kercher, a patriot, said to a number of [illegible] standing on the street corner, "Now boys, let us give them a good cheer." With this a man named Steinburg, for the past 33 years a resident of Canada and for 25 years a naturalized Canadian, said: "Shut your mouth. I'll cheer later. You ought to be in a detention camp." He was arrested, and was this morning found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined $20 and costs, $25 in all, or thirty days. He paid his fine.

INFANT DIES.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barbour, 380 Westcott street, will sympathize with them in the [illegible] sustained by the death of their infant child, aged three months.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon to St. Peter's Cemetery.

LILLIAN RUSSELL AS MAYOR.

Famous Blonde Beauty May Run in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, March 14.—It was in 1888 that Cynthia Leonard ran for Mayor of New York, the first and only woman who has actually gone before the voters of the metropolis and asked their suffrage for the highest office in the gift of the municipality. In 1917, twenty-nine years after this interesting event, Cynthia Leonard's daughter may be a candidate for Mayor of Pittsburg. She is Helen Louise Leonard, yclept Lillian Russell, yclept Mrs. Alexander P. Moore.

Miss Russell has the mayoralty germ in her blood. She is a Pittsburger, and as her mother had back of her a newspaper—for her father, Charles Leonard, was editor and owner of the weekly Herald, of Clinton, Iowa —so the daughter to-day has back of her her husband's newspaper, the Pittsburg Lader. Besides, Miss Russell has well defined ideas on what a mayor should do.

McKENNA GIVES UP AUTO.

LONDON, March 13.—Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is the first member of the British Ministry to give up his motor car to set an example for the community in the interest of economy. The Chancellor is now seen ally walking to Parliament and to the Council meetings.

No other member of the Cabinet has yet followed this example, though David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, uses an automobile sparingly.

What About The Teeth?

Statistics show that only about 14 out of every 500 New York City school children have sound teeth. Probably similar conditions prevail elsewhere.

There's a Reason! And it lies to a great extent in the demineralized foods that make up the usual diet of children. The body must have its quota of mineral elements—lime for the teeth, iron for the blood, phosphate of potash for the nerves, etc.—or disaster is pretty sure to follow. Many foods —especially white bread—are wofully lacking in these vital mineral elements.

Grape-Nuts

(Made in Canada)

is rich in these elements. It is made of whole wheat and malted barley, retaining the mineral salts so abundantly stored in the grain by nature.

Grape-Nuts is easily digested, appetizing, and highly nourishing. Along with other food, a daily ration of Grape-Nuts does much towards correcting dietetic faults in both children and adults.

The German Onslaughts Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses

GREAT UNREST REPORTED AMONG BULGARIAN TROOPS

All German Attacks Except Two Have Been Repulsed By The French

Crown Prince, it is Believed, Hopes by One Brilliant Stroke to Break the French Front North-west of the Citadel --Movement if Successful Would Mean Surrender of French on East Bank of Meuse.

LONDON, March 15.—German troops have driven a wedge in the French front between Bethincourt and Dead Man Hill, according to Berlin despatches, transmitted through Amsterdam to-day.

Bethincourt, Berlin asserted, is nearly two-thirds surrounded and a slight German advance will force its evacuation. The French positions on Dead Man Hill, according to the German report, have again been put in peril in the resumption of the Verdun fighting.

ARE MAKING HEAVY ATTACKS.

PARIS, March 15.—The French War Office admits the Germans are making a heavy attack on this sector following an intense bombardment, but claims the repulse of all German attacks except at two points between Bethincourt and Dead Man Hill. The Crown Prince, it is now believed here, hopes by one brilliant stroke to break the French front northwest of the Citadel. This movement, if successful, would trap the French army on the east bank of the Meuse, and mean the surrender of enormous supplies of artillery and munitions, and probably a large number of prisoners, but the French are quite awake to this danger.

AUSTRIAN VESSELS SEIZED.

GENEVA, March 15.—Austria has recalled her Minister to Lisbon and has handed the Portuguese Minister his passports, according to despatches received here to-day. Several Austrian vessels have been seized by Portugal.

French Hero of the Air Brings Down in Flames 8th German Aeroplane

PARIS, March 14.—Sub-Lieutenant George Guynemer, successor to Pegoud, Garres and Guilbert, is again acclaimed the ehro of the air. For, according to to-night's official communique Guynemer has accounted for his eighth enemy aeroplane and has made more secure his title "The Fokker Killer."

The part of the communique relating to the latest daring exploit of Guynemer and "le Vieux Charles," as his splendid war aeroplane is called in France, reads as follows:

"This morning Sub-Lieutenant Guynemer brought down a German aeroplane, which fell in flames inside our lines near Thiescourt. This is the eighth aeroplane brought down by this pilot, six having fallen within our lines and two inside the German lines.

"Another aviator similarly brought down an enemy aeroplane inside our lines near Dombasle, in the Argonne. The passengers of the two destroyed machines were killed. The same day out battle aeroplanes fought eighteen aerial engagements in the region of Etain, in the course of which the adversaries were put to flight."

CAN IMITATE FINGERS.

Feature of Artificial Hand Invented in France.

PARIS, March 15.—Two new types of artificial arms with hands are shown at the Academy of Sciences. One is for heavy work, with fingers like claws of a lobster. The other has articulated fingers, enabling the hand to reproduce closely the action of natural fingers. Successful experiments were made by two men, each of whom had lost an arm. One of them sawed through a beam of wood without difficulty, and the other played a violin.

Many of the sports suits are of soft wool velour in vivid-coloured checks. Shoulder capes and waist-coats are among the most novel and pretty models.

Make Your Body Tingle with life and energy for the day's work by eating foods that contain real nutriment—that do not use up all the vitality of the body in an effort to digest them. Shredded Wheat Biscuit supplies the greatest amount of body-building, energy-creating material with the least tax upon the digestive organs. It is a real whole wheat food, ready-cooked and ready-to-serve, containing the life of the wheat grain—nothing added, nothing taken away. Start the day right by eating Shredded Wheat with hot or cold milk. Serve it for luncheon with sliced bananas or other fruits.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My boy, Frank, seemed weak chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

URGES GERMANS TO HOLD

Cologne Paper Begs People Not to Lose Courage.

BERLIN, March 15.—The Koelnische Volkszeitung urges the Germans to maintain courage, saying

"The last part of all wars is always the most painful. We are ready for peace, but in making peace we cannot be alone. As long as our enemies will not admit that their attempt to crush us is futile we must go on. We can only win by sacrificing everything and using every means to the utmost limit. If we do we shall win."

Why Tolerate Catarrh?

You have noticed, no doubt, that any cold aggravates nasal catarrh, and the flow of mucous amazes you that such objectionable matter could find lodgment in your head. To ignore this catarrh when the cold subsides is wrong because it continues to slowly injure the delicate linings of the nasal passages and clog them up.

To correct catarrh, cleanse the nostrils frequently with a solution of warm water and salt, insert vaseline on retiring, and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month. Scott's acts through the blood to feed the tissues, and contains soothing glycerine to check the inflammation and heal the sensitive membranes.

Scott's is pleasant to take.

French Defence of Verdun Leads London to Look For End of War This Year

Betting at Lloyd's One to Two That Hostilities Will Cease in July or August But Consensus in Best Informed Circles is That Winter Will See Allied Triumph.

LONDON, March 15.—The glorious fighting of the French at Verdun and the victories of the Russians in the east have inspired an undeniable feeling throughout Great Britain that events now are foreshadowing a triumphant end of the war for the Allies within a period which only a few weeks ago would have seemed impossible. At Lloyd's there is some betting at odds of one to two that the war will be over in July or August, but the consensus of the responsible membership is that the end of the year will see the end of the war.

The head of a great shipping house said yesterday:—"Germany can't long continue to exhaust her men, money and munitions at the present rate. Her wonderful military machine is beginning to rattle, and a smash should soon follow."

In the big houses of the West End optimism is wisely tempered, with caution the prevailing note. Arrangements for the summer and autumn are being made on what is termed a 'modified peace scale.' The head of a great house in Regent street, asked if he expected peace in the autumn, replied:—"No, but I think that the end will be in sight then. Even France, with the terrible conflict raging on her soil, is extraordinarily confident the end will come much sooner than the most sanguine dared to hope three months ago. Our Paris clients are eagerly preparing for autumn—so much so that London houses are unable to accept all the orders offered to them".

"All circles now are discussing the approach of a triumphant peace, the only peace," according to the Pall Mall Gazette, "whether the war ends soon or late, that can be accepted."

Unsightly Pimples
Covered His Face.

All diseases and blemishes of the skin are caused by the blood being in an impure condition.

You cannot make a good complexion from the outside; you must get to the seat of the trouble. You must make the blood pure and rich by taking a medicine that will drive out all the impurities and poisons from the blood; one that drives out everything from the system that is the cause of these unsightly skin eruptions.

The best blood cleansing medicine on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters; a medicine that has been used with the greatest success for the past forty years; a medicine you don't experiment with when you buy it.

Mr. Lennox D. Cooke, Indian Path, N.S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Last winter my face was covered with pimples. I tried different kinds of medicine, and all seemed to fail. I was one day to a friend's house, and there they advised me to use B.B.B., so I purchased two bottles, and before I had them taken I found I was getting better. I got two more, and when they were finished I was completely cured. I find it is a great blood purifier, and I recommend it to all."

OUR SERIAL STORY

"Flower of the Gorse"

BY LOUIS TRACY

"Is Madame Ingersoll buried at Nizon?"

That was Raymond's last desperate effort. The fisherman's story tallied accurately with Mrs. Carmac's version of a sister's marriage and a family quarrel.

Peridot thought he had gone far enough; his next effort showed less exuberance. "No, Monsieur," he said, with a solemn wagging of his head, "when she died she was taken back to her own people, somewhere near Paris."

"Was she a Frenchwoman, then?"

"French and American. I believe. Monsieur spoke both languages like a native."

Utterly disheartened, Raymond made off. The fortune he had seen within his grasp had melted into thin air.

Peridot gazed after him, and pursed his lips. "Now I wonder what mischief that fellow is up to?" he mused.

"Jean," said his mother, "come and eat; but first ask the good Lord to save you from choking."

"Why, mother?"

"Because of the lies you told that gentleman. And that yarn about the rose at Nizon!"

"What business is it of his who Mademoiselle Yvonne's mother was, or where she lived, or when she died?"

"But everyone in Pont Aven knows that Monsieur Ingersoll came here from Paris with the little one. And we women have often said to one another it was strange that never a word was uttered about his wife, whether she was alive or dead."

"Then it is high time someone spoke of the lady and I gave her an excellent character to-day. All I hope is that it suffices."

It did nearly suffice. But for the tongue of a garbulous woman, Harvey Raymond would have given his close attention to matters that he might rightly deem of more pressing and immediate interest; the salving of the Stella's belongings, for instance, which came to his knowledge almost accidentally.

The more he reflected on Peridot's scraps of history the more he was convinced that he had found a mare's nest, despite Mrs. Carmac's extraordinary outburst in the Hirondell's cabin. Exhausted and pain-tortured though he had been, he could still distinguish between the raving of dementia and the ungoverned cry of a soul just snatched from death and startled beyond measure by the apparition of a long-forgotten daughter.

Nevertheless he must have been mistaken. Mrs. Carmac had given way to a delusion. He knew that the absence of children had provided the only sorrow in the lives of a most devoted couple, and the thought had evidently taken a subconscious form in the mind of a woman whose faculties were bemused by cold and fear. Reviewing matters in the new light vouchsafed by the garrulous Breton, he saw that nearly every circumstance bore out the theory that Mrs. Carmac and the late Mrs. Ingersoll were sisters. Ingersoll's thoughtfulness in sending Tollemache with a message concerning the peculiarities of French law (the legal procedure with regard to the dead man had been intrusted to a local notary), the fact that the niece visited her aunt, and now the crushing discovery that the girl's mother was actually remembered in the village, seemed to put completely out of court any wild theory of an invalid marriage following an American divorce.

Of course if such a thing could be proved, if Carmac's English will could be upset in favour of Rupert Fosdyke, above all if Harvey Raymond alone knew the whole truth, and could wring stiff terms from Fosdyke before the latter so much as guessed at the grounds for a successful claim, then indeed a new era would open up before the eyes of one who hungered for wealth without having a spark of the genius that might create it honestly.

He was of that large and increasing class which is in many respects the worst product of modern social conditions. He had little to do, was well paid, and travelled far and wide, because Mr. and Mrs. Carmac were restless beings, and seldom lived more than three months of each year on the delightful estate they owned in Surrey. Nevertheless a canker of discontent had eaten into his moral fiber. He was a disappointed man, unscrupulous, greedy, a potential blackmailer.

Mrs. Carmac disliked him, he knew; yet she was retaining his services. That was a puzzle. He must be wary and alert. If not a prior marriage, then was something. He must probe and delve into the past. Somehow, somewhere, he would unearth a guarded secret.

Luck would have it that he met Captain Popple, standing on the "terrace," with his hands in his pockets and a pipe clenched between his teeth, gazing up at the sky.

"Good day, Sir," said the sailor. "Glad to see yer movin' around. Now if I could only figure out the lingo they talk in Pont Aven, I'd swap ideas on the weather with any old character I saw at anchor."

"What is it you want to know, Captain?" said Raymond, hailing the other's presence as a relief from somber thoughts.

"Well, to my thinkin', the weather's goin' to clear. The wind's a trifle steadier, and gone round a point to east-ard. At this time o' year that means a risin' glass an' frost."

"A frost would be more cheerful, certainly, than a gale howling about the chimneys."

"The sea will fall too. A couple of tides should iron it out, an' I'll have a peep at that reef."

"But why?"

"Mrs. Carmac's orders, Sir. I'm to spare no expense in searchin' for some boxes an' other oddments."

Raymond turned abruptly, and walked to a garden seat beneath the window of the hotel dining room. He moved with a curious swing of the legs, as though his knees were unequal to the task of supporting his body.

Popple followed hastily. "W'at's up?" he cried. "Are ye feelin' bad? Been doin' too much, I s'pose."

"No. It's nothing. Could you — call a maid? If I have a sip of brandy —and rest awhile—the weakness will pass."

The skipper bustled into the hotel and found a waitress. "Cognac — queek!" he said.

The girl smiled. She understood fully.

"Oui, Monsieur," she said.

But Popple deemed the matter urgent. "Gentleman eel—vare seek," he insisted.

"Yes, Sir," said the man, to her hearer's profound surprise. "I've got you. I'll be along before you can say 'knife.'"

"Sink me!" roared Popple. "Here have I been spittin' French all this time, an' you can sling the right stuff at me in that style!"

He received another broad smile, and the linguist vanished. Thenceforth the two held long conversations when they met; but some days elapsed before Popple realized that the chat was rather one-sided. The girl had been taught a few slang phrases by an American artist, which, together with a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the average tourist's requirements, completed her vocabulary.

"Lord love a duck, but it's a treat to hear honest English once more!" he said, returning to Raymond, whose pinched face was a ghastly yellow. "How are ye now, Sir? Gettin' over it?"

"Yes. I'm not what you would regard as robust, Captain, and Thursday afternoon's experiences placed a severe strain on my powers of resistance. Did you say you expected a frost? The weather is quite mild to-day, don't you think? Sit down, and join me in a drink when the brandy comes."

"Don't mind if I do, Sir. But are you sure you oughtn't to be in bed?"

"Quite sure. I walked a little too far, and I find these hills trying—that is all. Ah, here comes Marie with the medicine."

"Is that your name—Marie?" inquired Popple, eying the girl admiringly.

"Yes, Sir," and a pair of fine Breton brown eyes sparkled.

"An' very nice too!" said he. "Mighty fetchin' rig the gals have in this part," he went on, pouring out some brandy for Raymond, which the latter drank neat. "They look like so many dandy housemaids got up for a fancy ball. Now, if my old woman could see me makin' googoo eyes at a tasty bit like Marie—well, there'd be a double entry in the family log."

"What's this nonsense that Mrs. Carmac has got into her head about salving certain articles from the Stella?" said Raymond, whose voice had regained its normal harshness of tone. "Small men usually have strong voices. Your giant of a fellow will pipe in a childish treble."

"Why do you say it's nonsense, Sir?" demanded Popple sharply.

"What else can it be? Salvage, in relation to a yacht pounded to pieces on an exposed reef two days ago! I don't think 'nonsense' too strong a term."

"It wouldn't be if every mortal thing had been bangin' on those rocks ever since. But the Stella was partin' amidships afore we were clear of her. She'd slip over into deep water within a few minutes, an' lie there quiet enough. Anyhow, them's my orders."

Raymond might be cantankerous because of his disablement; but Popple had suddenly remembered that Mrs. Carmac had resented the secretary's earlier interference. Raymond, however, helped to smooth over the difficulty.

"Of course I am only expressing an opinion," he said. "I admit it is not worth much. A little while ago I was speaking to Larraidou, the fisherman whom people here call Peridot, you know, and had I known then of your project I should have asked him what he thought of it."

"The sea is one big mystery, an' that's a fact," said Popple, refilling his pipe, and nodding his head to emphasize a bit of sententious philosophy born of experience. "It'll gobble up a ship, an' you'll never find a scrap of timber or a life belt to tell you what's become of her, an' in the next breath it'l show a thing as plain as though it was writ in a book. A friend of mine, skipper of a Hull trawler, missed a deckhand one day, and no one knew what had become of him. That night they shot the trawl in sixty fathom o' water, an' brought up the man's body. That's w'at the sea can do, Sir. Talk of women bein' fickle—they ain't in it with the most changeable thing on this earth."

Raymond poured out a second glass of brandy. "At any rate, you'll not recover a dead body from the Stella's wreckage," he said, with a ghastly grin.

"You never can tell," said Popple. "But surely, Captain, you don't pretend that the finding of a drowned sailor in a trawl net was other than an accident?"

"That's as may be. S'pose some poor wastrel had been charged with knockin' a mate on the head an' chuckin' him overboard. The doctor's evidence would clear him. Then it 'ud ha been providential."

"I shall refuse to believe that you will retrieve any of the Stella's contents until I see them. Of course I know why Mrs. Carmac is so anxious that the effort should be made. There were thousands of pounds' worth of pearls and diamonds in her jewelcase. One pearl necklace alone cost ten thousand pounds many years ago, and would fetch far more to-day."

"Queer you should mention that, Sir," commented Popple.

"Why?" The question came with strange eagerness. The prospect of salvage was either fascinating or highly distasteful to Raymond.

"Because that's the one thing I shouldn't expect to come across."

"You are speaking in riddles, Man. What have you in your mind?"

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

FIFTH MEXICAN INVASION.

United States Has Had Much Trouble With Mexico Since 1846.

There have been at least five armed invasions of Mexico by the forces of the United States since 1846. The first of these was when the American forces crossed the international boundary line and landed in Vera Cruz to begin the campaign in the war of 1846, commonly referred to as the Mexican War. The next time American troops entered Mexican soil was during the border troubles and Indian depredations in 1877. The third was when Captain Lawton, at the head of United States cavalrymen, pursued Apache Indians under Chief Geronimo, into the Sierre Madre Mountains in 1886 and captured him, putting an end to the Apache troubles.

United States forces then kept out of Mexico until April 21, 1913, when President Wilson ordered the capture of Vera Cruz.

The fifth invasion of Mexico by American soldiers occurred early Thursday morning, when Colonel Herbert J. Slocum led two troops of United States cavalry in the pursuit of Francisco Villa.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE REJECTED STORY

By MAUD MACMILLAN.

Some young ladies decide to become literary only after having given the matter as much as half a day's serious thought, but Miss Nina Harper saved eleven and a half hours by deciding within thirty minutes after reading a certain sketch of Ouida's.

As soon as pen and ink and paper could be procured she began work on a story, and before sunset on the same day it was finished and sent off to the waiting editor of a magazine.

Like Ouida, Miss Nina didn't start out to write for money. Her widowed mother had been left a fair competence. Like Ouida, she had a sudden desire to uplift sentiment and improve the social status of the world around her. Like Ouida again, she had thoughts and she wanted the millions to share those thoughts with her and profit by them.

This, in a way, was praiseworthy in a girl of twenty who had half a dozen admirers and nothing to do but to be entertaining and handsome and wait for the right man to touch her heart. Unfortunately for her, the various publishers didn't share in her object or enthusiasm. They were out for the dollar instead of sentiment, or for the sentiment that brought in the dollars. The literary effort was returned with thanks.

If that greedy publisher chuckled over the idea that he had nipped a literary career in the bud by sending back that manuscript he was very much mistaken. Some young ladies would have stopped right there and turned to crochet work, but Miss Nina didn't belong to that bunch. She shut her lips tightly and determined not to be killed off. At the same time she determined to kill that editor if ever opportunity offered.

In this determination she was backed and encouraged by Fred Waterman, one of her admirers, to whom she showed the manuscript and related how it had been chucked back at her as if it had been copy for a family almanac. Fred was a lisper in his speech, but that only made his voice more tender as he said:

"Miss Harper, take my word for it that you have gone beyond Ouida even in your first attempt! It is glorious! It is grand! It is ennobling! I feel the better man for having heard it read."

"But they didn't publish it!" protested the girl.

"I see, but it was too high class, don't you know. It's beyond the editor. He isn't up to the sentiment of it."

This declaration mollified Miss Nina, and she selected another publication and another editor. Mr. Waterman's generous offer to call on and punch the head of the first editor was declined on the ground that the said editor might already have regretted his haste in returning the manuscript.

The story came back from the second publication just as a request for charity would have been returned—"not just what we are looking for." It hurt and humiliated, but it did not quench. Ouida's first delicious little sketches went begging. Miss Nina shed one tear, doubled up her fists and consulted Mr. Horace Elkins.

Mr. Elkins was another admirer, though he didn't lisp. He had on many occasions written the menu cards for entertainments and therefore was admired as a literary man. He read the manuscript with the utmost care, looked at the back of each page as he laid it down and then announced his solemn verdict:

"My dear Miss Harper, it is grand! It is a gem! Indeed, the only fault possible to be found is that it is too gemmy. The modern magazine editor is not up to it. It is as far beyond him as Shakespeare is beyond the average farmer's hired man. For no other reason was it returned to you. What! A gem like this crowded among the mawkish love stories in which the heroines cannot talk ten words without making a grammatical blunder! Heaven forbid!"

"But if they won't publish it how can I get it before the people?" asked the author, with anxiety in her tones.

"I could call on those editors and call them ignoramuses and scoundrels. I could prove to them that they were suppressing the brightest and most charming thoughts of the century."

"But that would anger them."

Mr. Elkins picked up the manuscript and carefully studied the backs of the pages again and then sighed and raised his eyes to heaven. He didn't say so in so many words, but his attitude plainly betokened that he was out of it.

Two days elapsed, and then the story was sent away again. There surely must be one editor in the country who could rise to the sentiment of it. In due time, which was about a week, it came back for the third time. There was a cold blooded type written notice inclosed to the effect that its rejection did not signify any lack of literary merit, but there was no consolation in this. Indeed, if it did not lack literary merit, why not publish it?

This question was asked of young Sanger, a third caller and admirer, and he promptly replied:

"Because it is Ouida over again, and you know the jealousy against Ouida. All these magazine editors are a trust. They won't permit a new writer to enter the field and make a reputation. Why, Miss Harper, I once wrote a story and sent it away and had it come back on me twenty-four times. But for this jealousy I might have been a Wilkie Collins in time. Have I got the name right? Was it Wilkie or Tom Collins? Have you spoken to Mr. Granger on the matter of the story?"

"Why, no! And that's funny, because I've heard that he was a literary man. He hasn't called here for two or three weeks, however."

"He is the editor of the very magazine that sent it back to you for the third time."

"Then—then—when he calls again"—

And Miss Nina's eyes flashed, and she flushed up, and she didn't have to finish the sentence to make young Sanger understand that there would be something doing.

Mr. Granger had been an acquaintance and a caller for a year or more. He had made a pleasant impression at least, and if he had not talked shop during his calls and brought in his literary connections it was a tribute to his sense and modesty.

Nothing more was to be done with the story until he called but Miss Nina made a memorandum and kept it before her. It read:

"Never read another copy of the —— Magazine.

"When Mr. Granger calls have it out with him. If he cannot arise to you in intellectually it will be better if he remains away."

In the course of a couple of weeks Mr. Granger dropped in. He arrived at an opportune moment—that is, Miss Nina was reading her written thoughts over again for the hundredth time and realizing the loss to the world by their not being published.

She had not armed herself with any deadly weapon. A woman doesn't have to in such a case. This one entered the drawing room with manuscript in hand. She made a frigid bow and extended a cold hand. It was as if she were greeting a man who held a second mortgage on the mansion.

Of course Mr. Granger noticed his reception, but not being conscious of any social dereliction he exerted himself to thaw out the atmosphere. He had come to believe he was succeeding when the manuscript was thrust into his hands and an icy voice commanded:

"Sir, read that, if you please!"

"Certainly! With the greatest pleasure. U'm! U'm! This seems to be a story."

"It is a story!"

The question was treated with contempt.

"U'm! U'm! Seems to be a combination of essay and moral lecture. Written by some young lady to read at commencement or before a club. Two or three beautiful thoughts. I can't have seen it before, and yet it reads familiar."

"It ought to, sir!"

"But—but I really believe I have read parts of it somewhere at some time."

"You have. It was sent to your magazine for publication."

"Ah, that is it, and I sent it back, of course?"

"Yes, you sent it back."

"You see, Miss Harper, it isn't a story, nor a sketch, nor an essay, but please say to the young lady that she is to be complimented on her beautiful ideals. I am sure she must be a lovely and charming girl. Indeed, I would very much like to know her."

"But, Mr. Granger, if she is to be complimented on her ideals why did you send the story back? Why throttle her aspirations and ambitions at the very start? As a first effort it may lack in plot or construction, but couldn't you have remedied that with a little trouble and felt the pride of bringing out a new authoress?"

"I—I think," he answered after a moment, "that I was a bit selfish about it, and I hope you will forgive me. I sent it back because I preferred to bring out a wife rather than an authoress!"

A day or two later young Waterman, who had heard that Miss Nina was going to give Mr. Granger "fits," called to see if he had got what was coming to him yet. On leaving the house he shook hands vigorously and effusively and said:

"No, isn't it lovely to be in love and engaged? I came around to pop the question myself, but it has been popped, and so I will say no more except that I am sincerely thine."

Afflicted with Lame Back

THREE YEARS AGO

COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer so much excruciating pain and agony are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The kidneys are overtaxed—given more work than they can do, and when the back aches and pains it is hard for a woman to look after her household duties, for no woman can be strong and well when the kidneys are out of order.

On the first sign of any weakness in the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak, aching back, and prevent any serious kidney trouble liable to follow.

Mrs. L. Goushaw, 683 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep the floor. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and before I had used one box there was a great improvement, and my back was completely cured. I highly recommend 'Doan's' for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SIR WILLIAM ROBERTSON

From Bottom to Top of Military Ladder After Forty Years

There probably is no man in the British army with a more romantic military career than Lieut.-General Sir William Robertson, who from being a trooper in the Sixteenth Lancers rose to the distinguished position of Chief of the Imperial General Staff at home. In France he was the Commander-in-Chief's right-hand man, the "general manager," if such a term may be used, of the British army in France and Flanders. Sir John French was the man who battled, he was the fighting man, but he looked to Sir William Robertson for everything necessary to make the fighting machine run smoothly.

Sir William enlisted in 1877 when he was seventeen, and rapidly went through the non-commissioned ranks, with the result that he was selected for a commission. Transfer to the Third Dragoon Guards, then stationed in India, followed. The young officer occupied himself industriously in acquiring the various Indian dialects and quickly qualified for promotion. His first taste of warfare was in the Miranzai Expedition, a difficult enterprise carried out against mountain tribes in the region of Kohat in 1891. He also distinguished himself in the relief of Chitral, where he was badly wounded, and in the South African war.

Two Kinds of Cannon

Kitchener is possessed of a grim humor which he sometimes displays to great advantage. During the Boer War, at a time when military discipline was somewhat lax, he once walked into the billiard room of an hotel where a number of rather young officers were engaged in a heated discussion over a game.

"You didn't make a cannon!" shouted one youthful officer.

"I tell you, I did, man!"

"I tell you, you didn't!" cried a third.

Suddenly the voice of Kitchener, who had entered quite unperceived broke in upon the noise.

"Gentlemen," it said icily, "a cannon on the table appears to interest you much more than a cannon on the field. You will report at headquarters in fifteen minutes."

It was a long time before any of those officers took up a cue again.

Lord Reading's Trench Story

The mixture of optimism and pessimism which afflicts us at the present time reminds one of a good story that Lord Reading told not long ago about pessimists and optimists in the trenches.

"Two soldiers at the front were smoking under a tree somewhere in France," said his lordship.

"'This war will last a long time yet,' said the first soldier. 'Our company has planted rose bushes in front of our trench.'

"'Oh, you jolly optimists,' said the other Tommy, 'we've planted acorns in front of ours.'"

Paper Shirts Very Warm

Paper shirts, made in Japan, are served out to the Russian soldiers for use in cold and wet weather. A number of these paper shirts have been used by the Russians, and at once proved to be much warmer and cheaper than ordinary shirts. The paper used is made from the bark of the mulberry tree. It has been used by the Japanese army and people for many years, its only drawback being that it cannot be washed.

A Vast Line of Trenches

There are twenty miles of trenches to every line of front, so that between Switzerland and the North Sea the British and French armies have at least 10,000 miles of trenches to guard and keep in order.

MISS MARSH

chauffeur to Mr. Lloyd-George. She was given this position when her male predecessor enlisted and went off to the war.

Water-Boats.

Every drop of water consumed by the Allied Forces in the Dardanelles had to be brought to the peninsula in water-boats. There are, of course, many old Turkish wells on the peninsula, but they are nearly all dry, and the small supply obtainable from them was not even enough for the transport horses and mules. A huge fleet of tank-ships and water-barges worked continually, bringing water to Gallipoli, and French Army engineers have built several big underground cisterns, each holding many thousand gallons, so that there was always a supply of water in reserve.

These cisterns were roofed with bombproof coverings, made of a thick layer of cement, a six-inch network of thick, pliable olive-tree branches, and then some six or eight feet of stone and sand. On the whole, water was handled in the crudest manner. There are no pipe lines through which the water may be pumped ashore. When the sea is calm, the small lifeboats of ordinary merchant ships are scrupulously cleaned and towed alongside the water-barges. They are then filled to the gunwales and towed ashore. The water was afterwards bailed out with buckets and carried to the shore tanks in giant Greek wine casks lashed to carts drawn by four mules.

Up-and-Down Danger.

An old lady who lived alone outside a small village in England was nervous about Zeppelins, so she made careful inquiries as to her best course.

"I don't think there's much to worry about," said the vicar in answer to her questions. "But, if you like, you can do as some folks are doing—sleep in the cellar."

With profuse thanks the old lady went off to alter her domestic arrangements. But in half an hour she was back again, anxiety once more wrinkling her brow.

"The cellar's all right for Zeppelins, sir," she said, "but suppose one of them submarines comes instead?"

DYSPEPSIA OF WOMEN

Special Treatment Required.

Many women suffer from a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms are similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines usually prescribed do not restore the patient's normal condition.

There seems to be a kind of dyspepsia caused by derangement of the female organism. While this appears to be the same as ordinary indigestion it can be relieved only by a medicine which, besides acting as a stomach tonic, is good for female ailments. Read what such a medicine did for Mrs. Williams:—

She says:—"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with dyspepsia and bearing down pains in my back and sides, and after my meals my stomach would bloat up till I could scarcely get my breath. At times I was so weak I could hardly stand on my feet and I looked hollow-eyed and my skin was yellow. Now I have a good color, have gained in every way and can do my work without any pains. I think it is the best medicine on earth for stomach troubles of women."—Mrs. NELLIE WILLIAMS, 31 West 3d Street, New Albany, Ind.

"OBJECTIONS" CONSCIENTIOUS

By A.H.A.

Fight on, brave comrades, and do your bit,
Aye, and do a bit for me;
For although I'm young and strong and fit,
I must not fight because you see
I've objections conscientious.

The Huns are ferocious, vicious foes,
Go, then, slash 'em hip and thigh,
There's priceless comfort when one knows,
That you are never hindered by
Objections conscientious.

Fight on, good chums. At all costs defend,
Our mothers and our sisters;
For on you, of course, they must depend,
Not on peaceful non-resisters
With objections conscientious

Ah! How wise of nature to provide,
Some men with conscience—some without;
We've aims and tastes diversified,
You're built to fight; I'm raised devout
With objections conscientious.

When you're in battle, pray think of me,
Left in England and sore distressed;
Yearning to help, if only free,
But cabined, thwarted and oppressed
With objections conscientious.

It will solace you to bear in mind,
When in slush and blood your swimmin',
That I'm cheering those you left behind,—
The children and the women—
With objections conscientious.

Buck-up and conquer, ye sons of Mars,
And get back soon; then you and I
Will talk and count your wounds and scars,
You'll love to chat concerning my
Objections conscientious.

Pneumonia Finds Its Victims Weakened By Colds and Grip

This Letter Tells How to Gain Strength After Colds by Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food—Pneumonia is Prevented.

Epidemics of colds and grip are almost invariably followed by much loss of life from pneumonia. When the body is worn down by colds and the lungs weakened from coughing, pneumonia finds an easy victim.

Careful inquiry into many thousands of cases of pneumonia shows that this disease usually attacks the person who is tired and worn out, and who is therefore lacking in resisting power.

In this letter is described a case in which the patient was in the greatest danger of contracting pneumonia or some similar disease, but fortunately she sought the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and was soon restored to health and strength.

Miss E. J. Buswell, Centralia, Ont., writes: "Last winter my mother contracted a bad cold. She was bothered with shortness of breath, wheezing, fevered and too sore to cough. Our doctor prescribed treatment, which brought relief from these symptoms, but when she got up she was tired, always tired and weak. I got her three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and she soon improved. Her eyes became clear and bright, the ashen hue left the face and she began once more to take up the reins and look after the household duties."

It is always wise to keep the vitality of the body at high-water mark in order that the attack of disease may be resisted. Rich, red blood is the greatest of germicides, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms rich, red blood it is a most effective means of preventing germ disease such as grip, pneumonia and consumption.

Every day we are learning more and more the value of preventive treatment. That is one reason why the sales of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are increasing so enormously. People are coming to realize how much wiser it is to keep well than to try to obtain cure after some serious disease has gained a foothold. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7804

In this practical design we have a frock which is suitable for either school or home wear. It has a plain blouse, with the closing at the left side of the front. The overlapping edge of the front is cut off on a bias line at the top from the edge to the centre of the neck. The finish at this point may be either high, with a straight standing collar, or round, with small, flat collar. The sleeve is plain and is finished with a cuff at the wrist. It may be shortened to the elbow, and a second cuff is provided in the pattern for use in this case.

The skirt has four gores. The front and back are arranged in a wide box plait panel, with the closing at the left side of the front panel. A wide belt joins waist and skirt.

So simple in this little frock that it may be made of practically all materials. It will be very pretty in a gay plaid cheviot or in plain color serge. Equally well will it appear in striped or plain color poplin, and it may be also made of washable corduroy and of wash materials in general. It will be very pretty in ordinary gingham, with collar and cuffs of plain white.

The dress pattern, No. 7,804, is cut in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Medium size requires 3¾ yards of 44 inch material, with ¼ yard of 27 inch contrasting goods to trim.

TERROR RULED THE PEOPLE.

Bell, a Lunatic, Had the Entire Population in a Frenzy of Fear Awaiting the End by Earthquake in 1761—The River Thames Panic of 1524.

Men, it has been well said, think in herds. It will be seen that they go mad in herds, for innumerable instances can be given of a whole people suddenly shaking off the trammels of reason and running wild under the delusion of some impending calamity.

A panic terror of the end of the world spread over London in 1736 by the prophesy of the famous Whiston, who predicted that the world would be destroyed on Oct. 13 in that year. Crowds of people went out on the appointed day to Islington, Highgate, Hampstead and the intervening fields to witness the destruction of London, which was to be the "beginning of the end."

Again in the year 1761 the citizens of London were plunged into excitement by two earthquake shocks, and the prophecy of a third, which was to destroy them altogether. The first of these shocks was on Feb. 8 and threw down several chimneys; the second was on March 8. Public notice was directed to the fact that there was exactly a month's interval between the two shocks, and a crack brained fellow named Bell was so impressed with the idea that there would be a third in the forthcoming month that he completely lost his senses and ran about the streets predicting the destruction of London on April 5.

As the awful day approached the excitement became intense, and great numbers of credulous people resorted to all the villages within a circuit of twenty miles, there to await the doom of London. Blackheath, Islington, Highgate, Hampstead and Harrow were crowded with panic stricken fugitives who paid exorbitant prices for accommodations in these secure retreats. Such as could not afford to pay for lodgings at these places encamped in the surrounding fields.

As is usual in panics, the fear became contagious, and hundreds who had laughed at the prediction a week before packed up their goods and chattels when they saw others doing so and hastened away. The river was thought to be a place of great security, and accordingly all the available merchant vessels and barges were packed with people, who passed the night between the 4th and 5th on board, expecting every moment to see St. Paul's totter and the towers of Westminster abbey rock and fall amid a cloud of dust. But on the following day the greater part of the fugitives returned, convinced that the prophecy was a false one. A few months afterward Bell was confined in a lunatic asylum, where he died.

Great consternation was caused in London in 1524 by a prediction that on the 1st day of February the waters of the Thames would overflow the whole city of London and wash away 10,000 houses. The prophecy was implicitly believed, and many families packed up their goods and removed into Kent and Essex. As the time drew near the numbers of these emigrants increased. In January droves of workmen might be seen, followed by their wives and children, trudging on foot to the villages within fifteen or twenty miles to await the catastrophe. People of a higher class were also to be seen in vehicles bound on a similar errand.

By the middle of January at least 20,000 persons had quitted the doomed city, leaving nothing but the bare walls of their homes to be swept away by the impending floods. Many of the wealthier class took up their abode on the heights of Hampstead, Highgate and Blackheath, and some erected tents as far away as Waltham abbey on the north and Croydon on the south of the Thames.

On the fateful morning the wondering crowds were astir at an early hour to watch the rising of the waters. It was predicted that the inundation would be gradual, not sudden, so that they expected to have plenty of time to escape as soon as they saw the waters rise beyond the usual mark.

The day grew older, and the Thames flowed on quietly as of yore. The tide ebbed at its usual hour, flowed to its usual height and then ebbed again, just as if twenty astrologers had not pledged their word to the contrary.

Blank were their faces as evening approached, and as blank grew the faces of the citizens to think that they had made such fools of themselves. Night set in, and the obstinate river would not lift its waters to sweep away even one house out of the 10,000. Still, however, the people were afraid to go to sleep. Many hundreds remained up till dawn of the next day, lest the deluge should come upon them like a thief in the night.

On the morrow it was seriously discussed whether it would not be advisable to duck the false prophets in the river. Luckily for them they thought of an expedient which allayed the popular fury. They asserted that by an error they had fixed the date of this awful inundation a century too early. The present generation of cockneys were safe and London would be washed away, not in 1524, but in 1624.—London Family Herald.

HUMOR IN TRAGEDY.

Tree's Literary Friend Experienced a Change of Heart.

In a recent address at Birmingham Sir Herbert Tree, the eminent actor, related the following personal recollection:

"I had," he said, "constantly relieved the importunities of one who claimed to be a literary man on the grounds, I subsequently discovered, that he addressed envelopes for an advertising firm. His constant plea with me was that he wanted to get a glass eye out of pawn. I received a letter couched in these terms:

"'Sir,—Unless I receive 10 shillings this evening by 10 o'clock my body will be floating down the Thames. On your head be it! I will call at the stage door.'

"I told my secretary that he had better send out the 10 shillings. At the end of the evening I thought of my friend.

"'Did you send out the money to that deserving suicide?' I asked.

"'No,' replied my secretary, 'I did not.'

"I felt myself guilty of manslaughter at the least and was much relieved on leaving the stage door to find the importunate literary man outside.

"'Good evening, my friend,' I said in cynical revulsion. 'I thought you were in the Thames.'

"'Don't be flippant, sir!' he said. 'I did mean to submerge myself, but on gazing on the dark river my better feelings [illegible], and I've come back—for [illegible] shillings!'"—London Chronicle.

HYMN WRITERS.

Many of Them Have Lived to an Extreme Old Age.

It would seem that a good recipe for long life is to write hymns, and especially if you happen to be a woman. Fanny Crosby, the blind author of "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," one of the most popular hymns ever written, lived to be ninety-five. The number of copies of her hymns sold on both sides of the Atlantic is said to reach a hundred millions.

Mrs. Jemima Luke, who wrote probably the best-known children's hymn in the world, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old," reached the age of ninety. The author, a man this time, who wrote its nearest rival, "There's a Friend for Little Children," died a year or two since at eighty-nine, and the authoress of "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," lived to a great age.

Charlotte Elliot, who wrote "Just as I Am," and Mrs. Cousins, who penned "The Sands of Time Are Sinking," both lived to be eighty-two. Mrs. Alexander, the famous author of "There is a Green Hill," reached seventy-seven, whilst Harriet Auber, the authoress of "Our Blest Redeemer," died one year short of ninety.

Whittier, who has enriched real literature with some splendid hymns, died at eighty-five; Charles Wesley, the author of "Hark the Herald Angels," at eighty; and his still more famous brother, John, who made some of the finest hymn translations in the language, at eighty-eight.

James Montgomery, who wrote "Sow in the Morn Thy Seed," died at eighty-three; Thomas Binney, who composed "Eternal Light," lived to be seventy-eight; Cardinal Newman, whose splendid hymns, "Lead Thou Me On" and "Praise to the Holiest," have a world-wide reputation, reached the age of eighty-nine; and Dr. Bonar attained his eighty-first year.

It is said of Albert Midlane, the author of "There's a Friend for Little Children," already mentioned, that he wrote hymns at such an early age that his father and mother and all his uncles and aunts prognosticated his early death, on the maxim that the good die young. Yet he attained to eighty-nine birthdays!

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

AN ARCTIC DELICACY.

Eskimo Soup Would Hardly Tickle Refined Palates.

Kane and Dr. Hayes, the first white men—apart from an occasional whaler—to visit the Eskimos, found some difficulty in accommodating themselves to local customs. In "The Toll of the Arctic Seas" D. M. Edwards quotes Hayes' account of his first visit to a native hut. After a cordial welcome he was pressed to eat.

"This," says Hayes, "was an invitation which I feared, but now that it had come I knew that it would be unwise to decline it. The expression of thanks was one of the few in their language that I knew, and I made the most of this. They laughed heartily when I said koyeauk in reply to their invitation, and immediately a not very beautiful young damsel poured some of the contents of the pots into a skin dish, and, after sipping it to make sure, as I supposed, that it was not too hot, passed it to me over a group of heads. At first my courage forsook me, but all eyes were fixed upon me, and it would have been highly impolite to shrink. I therefore shut my eyes, held my nose, swallowed the dose and retired. I was told afterward that it was their greatest delicacy—a soup made by boiling together blood, oil and seal intestines."

She Had Been Told.

A rector in South London was visiting one of his poorer parishioners, an old woman afflicted with deafness. She expressed her great regret at not being able to hear his sermons. Desiring to be sympathetic and to say something consoling, he replied, with unnecessary self-deprecation: "You don't miss much."

"So they tell me," was the disconcerting reply.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

HE FINALLY GOT WARM.

A Writer's Indoor Experience on a Cold Night in Bordeaux.

What beautiful sunshine we had at Bordeaux, and how nice and warm it was in the daytime! As long as the sun kept out it was lovely; but, oh, when the sun went down!

They gave gave me a beautiful, large, lofty room at the hotel with doors and windows all over it. After dinner I went up to try to write, and then I found that Siberia had come again. I put great logs of wood upon the fire and blew them with the bellows till the flames soared up the chimney, but still I shivered in the icy blasts that blew through every crevice. I put on my ulster, I dragged the blankets from the bed, I ran races around the room and practiced the Indian clubs with a heavy portmanteau in each hand, but still I felt my blood congealing, and the horrors of the early morning came back again.

In this dilemma my companion's Sudan experiences stood us in good stead. He was with Gordon in the expedition of 1876-7. He took our walking sticks and umbrellas, and with these and the blankets and the rugs he rigged up a nice, comfortable tent in front of the fire.

Sitting in this tent in our big room we at last got warm, and my fingers were able to hold a pen.—George R. Sims in "Dagonet Abroad."

The Mistletoe.

The mistletoe is a Druidical contribution to Christmas. It was held in great veneration by the Druids in ancient England, and the cutting of it was attended by sacrificing and feasting.

With weird incantations the priest climbed the tree on which the mistletoe grew and cut it away with a knife of purest gold, no base metal being allowed to touch it. As the twigs fell they were received below in a mantle of spotless whiteness.

GOATS' MILK FOR COUGHS

"Go to the Hills and drink goats' milk" was the prescription given by Hippocrates more than 2,000 years ago for coughs, colds and bronchitis, but nowadays our local druggists, McDermid and Jury and E. L. Payne have a non-secret constitutional remedy just as certain which can be taken right at home. It is Vinol,—composed of the healing, medicinal extractives of cod livers, without oil, peptonate of iron for the blood and the nourishing properties of beef peptone. It goes to the seat of the trouble, removes the cough and cures the cold. Vinol is very reliable preparation.

ALLIES' AVIATORS ATTACK ESSEN

PARIS (French Official Communique) March 15.—French troops, by an effective counter-attack, have captured several enemy trenches on Hill 265, northeast of Verdun, the War Office announced this afternoon. The Germans made no new infantry attacks against Bethincourt, and on the west bank of the Meuse during the night. The French troops hold Bethincourt, Dead Man Hill and Cumieres wood. Violent cannonading continues on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre region. Elsewhere calm prevails.

BERLIN CLAIMS GAINS IN REGION OF BETHINCOURT

Examiner Special:

BERLIN, March 15.—The War Office claims Silesian regiments have made further advances southeast of Bethincourt, capturing 1,925 French prisoners. Four French counter-attacks on the west bank of the Meuse were repulsed.

A POSSIBILITY OF NEW BRITISH DRIVE FOR LILLE

Special to The Examiner;

LONDON, March 15.—The possibility of a new British drive for Lille, and a new French offensive in the Champagne, are indicated by a section of the statement this afternoon from Berlin which says: "Near Neuve Chappelle we blew up an advanced British defence position with its occupants. The British artillery directed a heavy fire on Lens.

The French artillery is very active opposite our new positions near Ville Aux Bose, and opposite various sectors of Champagne.

LONDON, March 15.—Allied aviators have raided Essen, the home of the Krupp Gun Works, according to despatches from Amsterdam to-day. Other air squadrons have attacked Munich, the capital of Bavaria, and the City of Gladbach.

The Allied aviators destroyed six sheds at Essen.

LONDON, March 15.—Reaffirming the story that Enver Pasha, the Turkish War Minister, has been assassinated, it is reported to-day that Ismail Haki, President of the Commercial Administration, has been named Enver's successor.

ATHENS, March 15.—Large German detachments are moving from Macedonia and Serbia to the western front, according to reports received here to-day.

AMSTERDAM, March 15.—Austria has broken off diplomatic relations with Portugal, a Vienna message announced to-day.

LONDON, March 15.—Unexpectedly early calls on married men to join the army have created such grave dissatisfaction through the country that the Government is considering a change of policy. Earl Kitchener and the Earl of Derby will speak in the House of Lords to-day, and probably will make important statements. A strong feeling of the country as to the unfairness of the existing system of recruiting has compelled the Government to reconsider its position.

ROME, March 15.—Austria has declared war on Portugal, according to despatches received here to-day.

AMSTERDAM, March 15.—Many depleted German regiments are arriving in Flanders from Verdun, fresh troops being sent from the Flanders front to replace them.

SALVATION ARMY BAND WILL PLAY ANYWAY

Adjt. McElhiney stated to-day that while the Council had cut off the customary grant the Salvation Army Band would do its best to hold together and provide a number of concerts during the summer.

GRATEFUL TO THE NEWSPAPERS

The members of the Peterborough Overseas Tobacco Club wish especially to tender their thanks to the Press of Peterborough for the assistance and valuable space they have given free, to aid in the procuring of "smokes" for the Peterborough boys fighting in the trenches. All three papers, The Examiner, The Review and The Times have lent their aid freely and have been and are giving the space required in their papers without stint to this good cause.

They are vying one with the other in seeing which can do most, and their spirit of unselfish loyalty to this cause is deeply appreciated by the members of the Overseas Tobacco Club.

Peter Conway Was Removed to the Hospital, Suffering From a Broken Nose and a Severed Artery

STRUCK BY RING

A constable immediately took him in charge and had the man removed to the General Hospital in the police ambulance. There it was ascertained that the nose was broken and an artery severed. From the nature of the injury it is believed by the doctors that Conwy was struck a severe blow by some person wearing a signet ring. Conway's home is in Peterborough.

Dr. Amys was given authority to keep and dispense a supply of anti-toxin according to the requirements of the local medical fraternity.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW RECRUITS WILL BE VIGOROUS ONE

93rd Battalion and Speakers' Patriotic League Will Co-operate in the Work--Pay Day For the 93rd Battalion To-day--To-day's Orders and General Military News

The campaign to recruit the 93rd Battalion up to full strength will soon be under full headway. Meetings are being held in all parts of the county and local committees will be asked to co-operate in the work. The city itself will not be neglected. A house to house canvass will be inaugurated and all possible information gained about men of military age. Yesterday afternoon Adjt. McElhiney, who is one of the joint committee of the Speakers' Patriotic League and the 93rd Battalion, addressed the battalion, asking the men to co-operate in the work. He advised them to talk recruiting wherever they went, and to fill the air with recruiting talk. The advent of other units into the recruiting field here has interfered with the 93rd and during the past couple of weeks the enlistment has fallen off considerably. It is expected that the new campaign will speed up the recruiting.

Mrs. P. Taylor, 45 Ware street, has received an interesting letter from her son, Driver Alf. Taylor, former City League ball player, who left Canada with the 33rd Battery and is now at the front with the 33rd Battery, 6th Canadian Artillery Brigade. He writes:

"We went into action on the 4th of February and we have been going along fine so far. I have been up to the guns a couple of times and it is certainly fine to be in the artillery. Well, mother, things out here are better than a person would imagine. We have had a couple of days rain lately and there is lots of mud, but we don't mind that, as we are used to it now. I have run across a lot of Peterborough fellows over here. I have seen Billy Row, Bob Rose, and you can tell Mr. Campbell I was talking to Lorne and he is getting along fine. He is on one side of a creek and we are on the other. I am writing this in my little hut, and we have a nice warm fire."

Pte. Jack Donnelly of No. 5 platoon, 93rd Battalion was the recipient of a very handsome wrist watch from the members of the platoon.

J. H. EASTWOOD, Lieut.
Asst. Adjt. for Adjutant 93rd O.S. Batt., C.E.F.

OTTAWA, March 15.—It is officially announced that the troop ships Missanabie and Scandinavian have arrived safely in England with the tenth and 11th field artillery brigades and various drafts aboard.

Here are some questions that have been asked and will be answered at the recruiting meeting in the Armouries on Sunday night:

There is a family on Reid Street, between Nos. 500 and 550, with five young men, all brothers. None enlisted. Why?

Are those young men employed at the freight sheds and express offices doing the right thing by their country. If not, why not.

Why do the postal authorities employ men to sort and deliver mail who are fit for service? Why not put the men who have been rejected in their places?

Are there no physically fit members of the City Council or Police Force?

The hardware stores on George street employ a number of apparently physically fit young men. Why are these men not in khaki?

I notice a number of ladies have offered to take the places of young men employed in different stores in order to allow these young men to do their duty. When are these ladies going to have their chance.

MAJOR M'GILLIVRAY TO SPEAK HERE

Major McGillivray, one of the oldest and ablest officers of the S.A. in Canada, will conduct a very special meeting on Tuesday night at the Temple, Simcoe street. For a number of years the Major had charge of the Imigrant Children in Canada, and he will tell some splendid stories of how the young people have got on in Canada. He will also have a supply of S.A. uniforms with him.

Everybody is welcome.

More Tobacco For Our Boys at Front

Mr. F. R. Jones, Organizer of Canada Tobacco Fund, Makes Eloquent Plea For Adequate Supply For Peterborough's Fighting Force.

A SPLENDID ADDRESS

The intention of the Peterborough branch of the Overseas Club to commence an aggressive campaign to see that the 600 Peterborough boys now in France or Belgium are provided with a package of tobacco each every week was announced at the concert in the Collegiate Assembly Hall last evening when Mr. F. R. Jones of London, England the organizer of the Fund gave an eloquent address.

The mail carriers of the city will cooperate with the club in the collection of the necessary funds.

The Collegiate Hall was crowded to capacity and Mr. Jones' thrilling address was listened to with rapt attention.

A pleasing facile speaker with a pleasing voice and the ability to turn a neat phrase, Mr. Jones made a powerful impression upon the big audience and a greatly increased interest in Canada's Tobacco Fund will follow.

Mr. Jones said that he had been called upon so after lately to give speeches at recruiting rallies as well the Overseas Club generally, that the cruiting speech was mixed into his remarks about the tobacco fund. On explaining the objects of the Overseas Club Mr. Jones stated that it was one of the most wonderful clubs in the world with a membership of 140,000 scattered throughout the world and composed of Britishers who believed that the British Empire stood for the highest class of justice and good order and good government.

In discussing the war, Mr. Jones said "don't think the British people have made all the mistakes. The Kaiser has made many of them and his greatest was when he thought that the British Empire would fall to pieces. The speaker aroused great enthusiasm as he described the British Empire as united with a silk thread which immediately war was declared became a band of steel In a few weeks after the first shot was fired the ports of England and London itself were invaded by men with the proud name "Canada" on their shoulders, followed a little later by men from Australia and New Zealand. The Kaiser knew then that he was beaten. It was not the numbers of men who come but it was the fact that they had rallied to the defence of the Empire, instead of falling away that had made the difference. "We don't know when the war will end, said Mr ones, but we do know that how it will end and the Kaiser knows too."

In connection with the Tobacco Fund of the Overseas Club, Mr. Jones lucidly explained the details of the scheme. For the Canadian Soldiers it had been arranged to provide Canadians tobacco and by means of buying large quantities and through the generosity of the manufacturers coupled with the fact that many other details in connection with the plan were taken care of without cost it was possible to provide 50 cigarettes and a package of tobacco for 25c which in the ordinary course of events would cost 75c in the stores.

Mr. Jones eloquently dealt with the desire of the men for tobacco. It was not a luxury but a necessity. The first thing a wounded man asked for was a cigarette and it was a preventative against disease.

There was no question about the need. He had talked with wounded men back from the front and with officers and had found that the men would rather have tobacco than food.

Mr. Jones said that he was a non-smoker himself but he had no hesitation in asking for tobacco for the boys at the front "I believe we should give them what they want" said the speak-

SIX HUNDRED CASES OF MEASLES IN PETERBORO'

Sixty Cases Have Been Reported During the Past Two Weeks—Epidemic is Spreading—Meeting of Board of Health

NO REPORT

"We are resting on our oars," remarked Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Health. This statement may have some connection with Dr. Amys' recent intimation that the city would have to be content with eight hundred dollars' worth of service unless the Council saw fit to grant the increase in salary that was asked for. As it was, yesterday's meeting was featured by the absence of reports of any kind that might tend to throw light on questions of public health.

Sixty cases of measles have been reported since the first of March, while one hundred and fifty cases were reported during the month of February. Since the first of the year over six hundred cases have been reported, and the end is not yet.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1916

OFFICIAL TREASON.

One member of the Dominion Cabinet, will have the doubtful honour of having one of his speeches read and applauded in Germany. Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, as reported, declared in the House of Commons a day or two ago that he—

"Was not sure Great Britain and her allies would win this war. * * * No one knows when the war will cease, nor how it will end."

Such pitiful pessimism, uttered by a Minister of the Crown, at a crisis like this, is little short of treason, and seems to come within the scope of the crime of giving "aid and comfort to the enemy." No doubt before this the report of the minister's utterance will have been sent to, and published in, Germany, where the most will be made of the fact that a cabinet minister of a British dominion has deserted the British cause; that he throws up the sponge and encourages the Hun hope that his declaration is an indication that behind this official surrender the country — Canada—is a seething mass of disaffeceion.. Minister Crothers may be a man of good ability, but he evidently hasn't enough good sense to be a minister of a loyal British Dominion. Balaam's ass could not have made himself any greater by the most bizarri employment of his miraculous vocal gift. Mr. Crothers' resignation would be the most graceful and grateful asknowledgement of his being a ministerial misfit.

A LITTLE PREMATURE?

It would seem that the friends of temperance reform in Ontario have been a little premature in their rejoicing—a little rash in trusting to the bona fides of the Hearst Government to introduce a prohibition measure. Such a bill was promised in the Speech from the Throne and the Premier recently gave intimation that the bill would be brought in on Thursday or Friday of this week But the sub-premier, Hon. Mr. Hanna, stated yesterday that ten days would elapse before the bill would be ready. There seems to be a difficulty in drafting the bill which should not exist if simple good faith were the animating motive. When the decision of the government to introduce a prohibitory bill was announced, the press in the confidence of the government intimated that the Manitoba Act would probably be as closely followed as circumstances would permit, for the reason that the Manitoba measure had passed the constitutional test. If this is the case why should there be the delay of a month in introducing important legislation? It is assumed that the Hearst Government feels itself to be a difficult position. It is admitted that it has promised prohibitory legislation, with none too much good will, being forced to it by the pressure of public sentiment and demand. The situation is difficult for a Government that has any inclination to follow any other path than the path of duty and the leading of overwhelming public sentiment. It is hinted that the government is playing a waiting game, waiting for the Dominion Government to enact war-time prohibition a thing that would relieve the Ontario Government from the necessity of taking action. It is known that pressure is being made upon Sir Robert Borden to take such a course. It seems hardly possible that the Hearst Government, after the declarations it has made, after the evidence it has given that it had screwed its courage to the sticking point should now seek delay, seek to evade the responsibility for prohibitory legislation it has specifically assumed by a specific declaration in the speech from the throne. It would be unfortunate if the high hopes entertained, in the face of justifiable encouragement, by the friends of temperance reform should be dissipated, or at the least, a regrettable delay ensue in the fulfilment of such hopes. For delay seems inevitable. If the Ontario Government takes the course of waiting for a Dominion measure to relieve it from the dilemma of the responsibility of keeping its promise in the matter of prohibitory legislation; and if it takes as long to bring the Dominion Government to the point of action as it has done to bring the Ontario Government to action, there is bound to be delay.

If the Hearst Government does not promptly bring down a prohibitory measure it is fair to argue that they do not wish to do so—that they are seeking in some way to evade the responsibility of taking the action they have committed themselves to. There is no other excuse for failure to do something at once. They have the example of Manitoba strongly endorsing prohibition legislation, as well as palpable evidence in this province that public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favour of prohibition, and will stand behind any government that takes its courage in both hands, and does the thing the people desire done. It knows that its opponents in the legislature, normally against the Government on its general policy, will be a unit in supporting a prohibitory measure. In fact it has in the premises nothing to fear but its own weakness and indecision.

UNDINIFIED JUBILATION.

The City Council did well, last night, to "call off" the proposed jubilee over the water power purchase. Without disparaging or minifying for one moment the importance of the purchase by the government of the Trent watershed waterpowers and incidental enterprises, the proposal to hold a jubilee over the matter, may stand a little hesitation. In the first place, while one admits the intrinsic value of the possession of these water powers in the public interests, are we fully assured that the bargain was a good one in a commercial sense; are we fully assured whether or not we have paid too high a price? In the second place, is it not possible to regard a "jubilee" like that proposed as undignified, smacking rather too much of the country village attitude towards things. When we installed a few magnetite lights on our streets, and turned on the current, the then mayor, and some aldermen, called out the village brass band, and made a rather undignified fuss over a comparatively simple matter which after all, involved as the chief element, spending so much money to get a certain commodity. The pith was taken out of the occasion by the fact that it soon became evident that the jubilation was premature. We had spent too much money on something that however good it was, cost too much to maintain, and the lights were reduced by half. This was the proper thing to do; but it tended to make the jubilation over the event rather ridiculous than otherwise While Peterborough should show itself appreciative of large benefits, it should also have a care for its dignity, and the fitness of things. It's all very well to be grateful, but there is a dignified way of showing it. Peterborough is proud of its just claim to be the foremost of the minor cities of the Dominion, and thus has a reputation to live up to. A country village might properly hold high jubilee over the installation of a new town pump; but for a city of 25,000 to become unduly and childishly excited over the successful completion of a simple business transaction, no matter how beneficial, would not add to our dignity and reputation for civic soberness and sanity. We shall get all the benefits of the purchase without making ourselves the ludicrous objects of personal, and other protagonism. We shall have in the course of, it is hoped, a short time, something to rejoice over in the victory of our armies in this war and should save our enthusiasm and conserve our capacity for rejoicing for some such momentous occasion.

OTTAWA'S UNBRIDLED EXTRAVAGANCE.

The fact that, in an increase of the public debt during this year of 345 millions the war is only responsible for 116 millions cannot long escape public attention. The significance of the Finance Minister's speeches during recess is now clear. He has, apparently assumed, not only to finance the war, but to finance business as well, on a scale of great extravagance. This he has accomplished mainly by borrowing, and partly by the imposition of taxes which bear heavily on the primary industries. The operation of the natural checks and warnings has been interrupted, extravagance has been encouraged, as the report of imports shows, and the turning of the people to the land under economic pressure has been unfortunately delayed. Readjustment after a long period of unproductive industry, which a prudent statesmanship would have distributed over the period of the war Mr. White defers to the end. At the end, with its supreme difficulties, it is to be feared that he will be powerless. By this resort now to extravagance and paternalism to please business, and what he sometimes terms unemployment, he will exhaust domestic taxation and the public credit abroad. In that case, how will he, at the end, redress exchange and, if he is still paternal, prosper the business and employment which now subsist on borrowings and war supply, aggreating probably four hundred millions a year?—Weekly Sun.

BROADER POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

That Ontario will not settle down to struggle over the time-worn class antagonisms after the war is made clear by the course of debates in the Legislature whenever any subject related to or bearing on the distribution of wealth is under discussion. Disappointment was not confined to the Liberal side when the Government measure uniting several offices under a Trades and Labour Deputy Minister was brought down, with no accompanying intimation of attention to the pressing economic problems of the day and no promise of needed progressive legislation A disinherited public, selling such labour as the country's owners may choose to buy, taking such prices as are offered or as can be forced by the self-sacrifice of unionism, affording a perpetual residue of involuntary idleness to meet the elasticity of the demand for labour, is no longer accepted as an established ideal. The system that induces, by the possibility of profit, the holding of land idle, and, consequently, the holding of men idle, will no longer be protected by mental laziness and caste prejudices Established institutions that stand in the way of democratic progress will be subjected to criticism. All systems will be forced to justify their existence, and proposed changes will be required to assure material and far-reaching improvement.

Mr. Rowell, in a thoughtful and earnest address, dwelt on the altered outlook of the public and the urgent need of meeting the new demands. His impatience with the old habit of handling inconsequential details and ignoring or avoiding fundamental issues is a reflection on the spirit that is gaining the ascendant throughout the Province In asking radical and far reaching changes that would secure to the workers an opportunity to produce wealth and a fair share of their products, he led in a demand that will soon be made with a determination that cannot be denied This is not a determination that can not be denied. This is not the aroused demand of a deprived class protesting against the successful, but a general awakening of all classes, to higher ideals and broader conceptions. Honour and duty are assuming the place in public thought till recently held by interest and advantage. The most promising feature of the advancement outlined by the Liberal leader is the keen economic discernment that is guiding the higher impulses toward definite and effective aims.—The Globe.

SHELL COMMITTEE CULPABILITY SHOULD NOT BE KEPT CONCEALED

Were the facts as to the gross mismanagement, neglect of duty and favoritism shown by the Shell Committee understood by the public the demand for a thorough investigation could not be resisted. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. F. B. Carvell, and other members of Parliament who have brought specific charges against the members of the committee, have ample evidence to prove the truth of their allegations. The excuse put forward on behalf of the Government is that no charge has been made against a Minister of the Crown, and that even in the case of the members of the Shell Committee who are responsible to the Imperial Government, there is no suggestion that criminal acts have been committed.

There are blunders which are worse than crimes. Some of the blunders of the Shell Committee were made upon a scale so vast, and have had consequences so far-reaching, that the men responsible for them ought not to be entrusted with any public office. If behind the blunderers the Minister of Milita is found moving the puppets under the hypnotic influence of his friend, Col. Wesley Allison, Sir Sam Hughes, by that sinister action, places himself in a position wherein he must take his share of the condemnation meted out to the members of the committee.

The fuse contracts of which Mr. Carvell spoke in the Commons on Thursday very well illustrate the methods of the Shell Committee and the role played by the familiar friend of the Minister of Militia. In the spring of 1915, as a result of negotiations carried on, it is alleged, by Col. Allison, the Shell Committee awarded two great contracts for fuses to the American Ammunition Co., and the International Arms and Ammunition Co., of New York. The order to the first company was placed at $4.50 per fuse and to the second at $4, and the contracts aggregated over $22,000,000 The prices were known to be excessive but were given because the Allies were dangerously short of projectiles, and the fuses were the most difficult part of the shell to manufacture. Not only did the Shell Committee agree to pay prices far in excess of the usual, but a marked cheque for $3,750,000 was turned over to the two companies wherewith to finance the fitting up of plants which would enable them to make prompt delivery.

In face of these prodigal favors, Mr. Cervell stated in the House that the companies in question had not up to Thursday last delivered a solitary fuse acceptable to the Inspectors of the Imperial Munitions Board. Had the success or failure of the armies of the Allies depended on the contract made by the Shell Committee, and on the operations of the companies to which the committee gave such unprecedented terms, the Germans would have overrun all Europe without meeting adequate artillery opposition.

Why was this amasing contract given? What part was played by Col. Allison in the transaction? Was there a rake-off for someone as yet undiscovered, and was it so great that the firms which actually tried to manufacture the fuses were forced to do the work on the cheap, and so came into conflict with the Inspectors of the Imperial Government These are questions that will not down. All the sophistries of Mr. R. B. Bennett will not prevent the electors from demanding that they be answered. The fuses could have been made quickly and satisfactorily, and made at a factory cost which would have yielded a profit or not less than four or five million dollars to the makers. This has been proved conclusively during the past three months by Mr. T. A. Russel of the Russell Motor Company of Toronto. General Bertram did not believe fuses could be made in Canada. To representatives of Canadian firms who asked for fuse contracts, Sir, Alexander declared emphatically that they could not be produced. Some four or five months after the letting of the prodigal New York contract, when no deliveries were forthcoming, and vast quantities of uncompleted shell cases were piling up in Canada, General Bertram's Shell Committee let a contract for fuses to the Russell Motor Co., of this city at a price about a dollar per fuse less than the rate allowed to the New York companies.

Mr. Russell at once arranged for floor space elsewhere than in the motor factory, installed over a quarter of a million dollars' worth of special automatic machinery, scoured the country for competent male and female workers, and early in the month of January began to turn out the fuses without which Canadian shells were useless. Between January 15 and March 1, Mr. Russel produced 55,000 contact fuses which stood all tests, and the factory is now producing 4,000 a day, and will untimately turn out 5,000 a day, Time fuses will also be manufactured.

The sinster influence of Col. Wesley Allison upon the Minister of Militia, and through him over General Bertram, prevented for months the manufacture in this country of vital supplies. Had the marked cheque for $3,750,000 entrusted by the Shell Committee to Col Allison for the fitting up of factories in the United States been spent in Canada—where it should have been spent—it would have provided for the fitting up of ten fuse factories like that of the Russel Motor Co. Had the excessive price of $1 or more per fuse paid to Col. Allison's associates been used in fitting up Canadian factories fifteen more might have been provided, and the Dominion might to-day have been producing from 125,000 to 150,000 fuses daily.

The incredible folly of the Shell Committee in awarding the first huge contract to people who have not yet delivered a satisfactory fuse is paralleled only by the folly of Sir Robert Borden, who knowing what loss and peril have resulted from the committee's actions, refuses to permit an inquiry into its transactions, upon the flimsy pretext that the committee though appointed by his Government was responsible to the Imperial authorities. The electors of Canada will make short work of the Premier's hair-splitting when the Shell Committee scandal is exposed, as it will be, on the public platform at the next election.

A Bull's Eye.

If an advertiser could make every advertisement, and every word in it, do its best work for him, he would make a record and invariably hit the bull's eye. Perhaps such a score is not possible, but the rifle with which he shoots, may be the best possible, thus enhancing his chances for a perfect score.

The one best rifle, the nearest to perfect in advertising, is the newspaper. Others have been tried and are being tried by new and inexperienced advertisers; but as they watch results and grow in wisdom, they put their faith primarily in the newspaper. The example of these experienced ones is worth following.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

UPS AND DOWNS OF THE GIANTS

The Team's Biography is by No Means Lacking in Variety.

The New York Club has had a checkered career of ups and downs in the thirty-three years it has been a member of the National League. It was a great ball club in the early days when it first became famous as the Giants. Then came a long period when the club enjoyed little success. The Giants again rose to their old supremacy with the coming of John J. McGraw as manager.

During the past ten years the team has made a great record. It has won five National League pennants and one world's series in that period. In the thirty-three years the Giants have won the pennant seven times. New York has become the centre of the baseball world and up to the time of the building of the new stands at Braves Field in Boston the Brush Stadiumat the Polo Grounds held the record for attendance, 39,281 witnessing the world's series game between the Giants and the Athletics on Oct. 11, 1911.

Some of the greatest players in the history of the game were members of the Giants, among the stars of the earlier days being John M. Ward, Buck Ewing, Tim Keefe, Amos Rusie, and Roger Connor.

The New York Club has had only five Presidents during its long career, John B. Day, C. C. Van Cott, Andrew Freedman, John T. Brush, and Harry N. Hempstead.

In this period, however, the Giants have had a long and imposing list of managers, probably more varied and numerous than any other club. From 1883 to 1895 the managers were Jim Mutrie, for nine years; Pat Powers, one year; John M. Ward, two years. During the regime of the late Andrew Freedman, from 1895 to 1902, managers came thick and fast. They were George Davis, Jack Doyle, H. L. Watkins, Arthur Irwin, Bill Joyce Pop Anson, John B. Day, Fred Hoey Buck Ewing, George Smith, and Horace Fogel. John McGraw has been manager for the past thirteen years.

Jim Mutrie's favorite slogan was "We are the People," and in 1885 he had the whole country's attention centred on the Giants. In 1888 and 1889 the Giants won the pennant, and New York was frenzied about the game.

Disaster overtook the Giants in 1890 and the Brotherhood war wrecked the once great team. The Players' League played on the field next to the present Polo Grounds and the competition was very keen. The new club persuaded nearly every member of the Giants to jump. The National League survived the war and some of the old players were taken back.

The National League and the American Association was consolidated into a twelve-club organization in 1892 and Pat Powers was made manager.

In 1895 Andrew Freedman bought the club. In 1902 Arthur Irwin was made manager, and was followed by Scrappy Bill Joyce. Then, in 1900, Buck Ewing was brought back as manager. In 1902 Horace Fogel was manager of the club. It was in this season that Christy Mathewson joined the Giants. During a period of five years, at this time, the Giants tried no less than forty-two pitchers.

It was on July 19, 1902, that John J. McGraw joined the Giants as manager.

BASEBALL IS 77 YEARS OLD

Baseball before the days of the National League dates seventy-seven years back to 1839, when Abner Doubleday, at an academy at Cooperstown, N.Y., invented a game of ball on which the present game is based. Doubleday afterwards went to West Point and later became a Major General in the United States Army. The game as played at the School in Cooperstown, consisting of hitting the ball and running to one base. First it was called "One Old Cat," then with two bases "Two Old Cat," and finally with three bases "Three Old Cat."

Another boy at the Cooperstown school, Alexander J. Cartwright, one day evolved a rough sketch of a diamond and the boys tried it with great success. From that day to this the general plan of the diamond has changed only in a few details.

It was at Mr. Cartwright's suggestion in 1845 that the first baseball club was formed. The organization was effected here in New York by a committee consisting of Mr. Cartwright, D. F. Curry, E. R. Dupignac, Jr., W. H. Tucker, and W. R. Wheaton. The club was formed on September 13, 1845, and was called the "Knickerbocker."

In 1851 another baseball club was organized, called the Washingtons. They played in Yorkville and challenged the Knickerbockers.

The game did not make as much headway as was expected, so the rules were changed doing away with the 21-run rule and dividing the game into nine innings, also adopting Mr Cartwright's original draft of the diamond. An organization was formed called the National Association of Baseball Players at which 25 clubs were represented. From this time baseball took the popular fancy.

In 1860 a team called the Atlantics was the strongest nine in the game. Baseball, however, was little known except in the vicinity of New York. In New England they played what was called the Massachusetts game, with from 10 to 14 players on a side.

During the period of the civil war very little baseball was played, but after the war the game spread rapidly to all parts of the country. In 1865 there was a convention of baseball players, and Arthur P. Gorman afterward United States Senator, was elected President. More than 100 clubs were presented.

In 1867 the Nationals of Washington, D.C., took a 3,000-mile trip through the West. The scores of many of these games climbed up into the 80's and 90's.

The Cincinnati Reds were the first club to come out openly as a professional team and made Cincinnati the home of professional baseball. The famous Red Stockings in 1869 and 1870 made a remarkable record.

The National Association of Professional Baseball Players, the first "big" league, was organized in New York in 1871, with New York, Boston Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Troy, Chicago, Cleveland, Ft. Wayne and Rockford in the circuit.

The formation of the present National League in 1876 was mainly a reform movement. It had to battle with deplorable conditions and had a desperate struggle to rid the game of its objectionable features. The first thing the National League did was to rid the game of the betting evil.

FRED GRAHAM CHOSEN FOR EASTERN ALL-STARS

Freddy Graham, rover of the Peterborough Electric Junior O. H. A. team, has been chosen for the All Star Junior O.H.A., which will meet the western All Stars at the Arena Toronto, on Wednesday night. The teams are largely selected on the reports of the O.H.A. referees, and so well has Graham been recommended that the O. H. A. has decided to play him at right wing, although he is a left-hand shot. He is in classy company as he will have on the forward line with him Art Carew of Lindsay at left wing, Wright of Aura Lee, rover, and Watson of St. Andrew's College, centre. Graham is the fourth Peterborough Junior to get a place on the Junior All Stars—Dwyer, Heffernan and Denison being the others.

Defence of Jess Willard

Tom Jones and Jack Curley Issue Statement as to Champion's Training Methods.

New York, March 15.—Tom Jones and Jack Curley, managers of Jess Willard, have issued a statement in defence of the big boxer, who has been subject to much criticism for the methods employed since he started to train in this city. The managers have no hesitation in assuring the public that on the night of the bout with Moran at Madison Square Garden, March 25, that the champion will be in the best of condition. Many of the old timers who have been criticising Willard's condition are in turn roundly taken to task for methods employed in their own days as boxers. Joe Choynski and Billy Muldoon are made the targets for the two managers' remarks. Willard's managers also come to their own defence concerning the admission charged for seeing Willard train. The statement in part follows:

"During the last week many so-called old-timers have criticised Willard, his manager, Tom Jones, his trainers, and his training methods. In return, we wish to say that the Tom Jones now in charge of the Willard camp is the same Tom Jones against public opinion, conditioned Willard good enough to win the world's championship. Walter Monahan and Jack Hemple are the same trainers who worked with Willard at El Paso and Havana. Willard is training in the selfsame way that he followed to win the world's title.

LAW OLD AND NEW.

A Cynical View of Past Methods and Those of the Present.

Law, more especially criminal law, has usually been an occult science. It is still the practice in Burma, we believe, to give two disputants candles of the same size, to be lighted at the same time. The one whose candle burns longest gets judgment against the other.

Less than 100 years ago a defendant in an English criminal trial appealed to the ordeal of battle, and the court was more or less surprised to find that the ancient law on which he relied had never been repealed.

Determining a man's guilt or innocence by his ability to walk on hot plowshares or carry a hot iron or drink a poisonous decoction or by throwing him bound into water has been practiced for ages among many peoples. The medieval method of letting accused and accuser fight it out with weapons was common over Europe.

Our modest ancestors confessed their inability to find the merits of the cause and so relegated the whole affair to the intervention of supernatural agencies. The main difference is that we are less modest. Instead of the ordeal of battle or the old key and Bible test or the "sieve witch," we have the defendant play a game of trip the court. If he can catch the judge putting down an "i" dot over an "e" he wins and is pronounced innocent.

Halcyon Days.

The expression "halcyon days" originated with the ancient Sicilians. They firmly believed in an old legend that during the seven days preceding and the seven following the winter solstice—Dec. 21—the halcyon, or kingfisher, brooded over her young in a nest afloat on the surface of the water and that during these fourteen days the seas would be calm and safe for the mariner; hence the name "halcyon days," when, according to Milton, "birds of color sat brooding on the charmed wave."

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— May I crave space in your paper to correct a false impression which has gone abroad due to my silence at the Ministerial Association on Monday evening, when Dr. Workman expressed views which were utterly subversive of all I hold dear as a Christian minister and teacher. I wish to say to those who were present and who may have interpreted my silence and the silence of many others as concurring at least in part in what Dr. Workman said, that I repudiate in tote the views to which he gave expression. I think the same might be said of most of the ministers present. I am quite sure not one of them could accept all that he said. Our silence was due, in part, to a feeling of courtesy towards Dr. Workman as the guests of the Association and in part of our unwillingness to turn a social evening possibly into a heated theological discussion. I see now that it was wrong to remain silent, and I have been sorry ever since. No man to whom the Virgin Birth, the Deity of our Lord, and His Physical Resurrection are necessary facts in his Christian experience should remain silent when these facts are questioned or denied.

Yours truly,
R. POGUE.

Editor of The Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—As a soldier of the 93rd and one who is deeply interested in religion, I write to congratulate Mr. Wearing on the able manner in which he conducted the case of the King against Pastor Russell and his followers. Would that we had ministers of the Gospel who would stand up for the King, whom they prefer to believe in so intensely and love so much, as did Mr. Wearing for our earthly Sovereign. What is the matter with the clergy that they do not answer this man, Russell. I read the man's weekly productions, and am amazed that he is able to spread his pernicious doctrines without any opposition on the part of the exponents and defenders of the faith. Rather, will they fight over Ritualism and trivial points of doctrines; hold conferences whether they should bring about a union of the churches and shut their eyes to the vigorous propaganda in the press and on the platform conducted by Russell and his followers; a propaganda which threatens, in its development with time, to cut the ground from under the feet of orthodoxy. Is it that the clergy, as Russell declares, hold with his doctrines, or is it that he has succeeded in confusing them with his "sheah" and "hades" and prison House of Death" with his first death and second death"—and that they can not answer him? The Pastor is an adept in the act of darkening counsel with a multitude of words. If ever a man spoke and said nothing, that man is Pastor Russell. Not one elevating or inspiring thought did he convey on Sunday afternoon. If it is brilliant to talk for nearly 2 hours without pause or hesitation, then the Pastor is undoubtedly brilliant; but to me, for one it suggested nothing more than a novel talking machine.

The flippant way in which he deals with what have been vital dostrines of Christianity must surely be detestful to every Christian. It was said of Emerson that he took down men's idols with the reverence of one who worshipped. This cannot be said of Russell. He talks of men "wasting and toasting in Hell" of "Fire Proof Devils"; he speaks in the language of the scoffer and atheist and would be far more honest if he preached atheism. He is certainly no philosopher; for were Hell and Orthodox as indiculous as he paints, it would call for sympathy and not ridicule. It is time the "Pastor" said he does not believe that the existence of Hell is compatible with the love of God, but the way in which he said it did not suggest that the Pastor had any great acquaintance with a God of love; it did call to mind the politican triumphantly scoring one over an opponent.

The "Pastor" makes a lot out of miserable little coincidences. The Bible for instance, he refers to a battle front at Armagadden of 16,000 furloughs. "Just as we find it", says Russell. But there is a difference between furloughs and miles, and so the "Pastor" after study finds that furloughs mean a standard of measure and so he makes the Bible say that the battle front shall stretch 16,000 miles.

"Pastor" Russell has already been accused of substituting his own writings for the Bible, and in the Opera House on Sunday afternoon he openly admitted that when 17 years of age, he threw his Bible away and thought he could write a better Bible of his own. One can be thankful that no Russell had a hand in the making of the Bible.

As a dilettante in theological matters, but as a believer in Christ and all that Christ stands for, I record the fact that I for one, believe Russellism to be the most damnable set of doctrines that have ever been preached. To me it seems that if Russellism were to obtain any great following, it would be subversion of morality. God knows with the fear of God before mens' eyes, men fall after enough; remove the fear and they will rough shod down the road to Hell.

Yours truly,
KHAKI.

To-those Whom it May Concern.

Dear Sir,—I am the mother of an only son who has been at the front for the last ten months in the firing line and doing his part. His father is ill in bed. Some time ago I, myself, was in the hospital through nervous shock from the loss of my dear boy. Before he enlisted I used to receive $30 per month. Now I do not get the half, and last December, on account of sickness, I applied to the local office of the Patriotic Fund, and to Captain Burnham. They gave me ten dollars and told me they would give me that amount for four or five months, and to come back on the 5th of January. When I went back I was told it was a mistake. So I had no fuel and very little of anything, and it takes all I get from my son to pay my rent. I feel as though I am just as deserving of equal rights as other people who are getting it. I wrote to my son and told him, but the letter never reached him, as the news was too true. I was told my husband was the stumbling block. As I did not think a respectable woman had to separate from her husband just because she had raised a son to be 24 years of age, and to go and fight for his country, and my son threw up a whole year's assignment to go with the second contingent. I am proud to know I raised a man, and he says all he ever received, except what I sent him was a card from ex-Mayor Buller, for which he thanks him very much.

Trusting I am not taking up too much of your time and paper, I am

Yours very truly,
A MOTHER.

Note.—I am and so is my dear son, a member of St. John's Church

"The Minister's Birthday"

Presented by the Young People of Knox Presbyterian Church---A Heap of Fun For a Quarter

And it was all about a hat.

The young people of Knox Presbyterian Church delighted a large audience last night with their excellent presentation of that musical comedy: "The Minister's Birthday." From start to finish it was a decided success, the only thing not in the programme was when Philoman Stump's goatee slipped its mooring.

It appears the minister, Rev. Timothy Matthews, had a birthday, as most good ministers do, and his congregation decided that he must be handsomely remembered, (and he was). Some thought a smoking coat very suitable, but to this the ladies offered strong objection as they had never seen him smoke (in their life), others, less generous, thought a pair of slippers good enough, while a few magnanimous souls suggested an "automobyle," (possibly a second-hand Ford.)

Of the last suggested article the Rev. Timothy got an ingling through the lokuacious Mrs. Jackaway, a most remarkable disseminator of "news." The delight of the preacher and his charming wife—poor thing, she was greatly troubled with lumbago—was only natural, so natural that the far-seeing gentleman proceeded up town to purchase goggles and gloves for himself, and a duster and hat for his wife. Wouldn't the church people be surprised?

But, alas, the surprise———(ah! I came pretty near letting the cat out of the bag).

Indeed the whole thing was full of surprises, so full that the minister nearly got into a heap of trouh——— (there I am again).

Oh, well, you must go to-night and hear it for yourself, for the space at my disposal is so limited, I cannot begin to acquaint you with all the funny things you'll miss if you stay at home.

But, while I'm at it, I must tell you about Riley Cracker, the sexton, and his dapper little dear of a wife, Sally. My, but she was cute, such a pretty little mouth, indeed, one kiss she threw at the audience pulled the house down.

Well, Riley had a birthday, and as luck would have it, it was on the same day as the minister's. Poor Riley got mixed up with the hat too, as anyone could see, when it is remembered that the preacher was a very absent-minded man. There was the hat lying on the table in the church with a card bearing the inscription: "Many Happy Returns of the Birthday." Wasn't it the most natural thing in the world for the man to think the hat was his—anyone with a birthday would think so. But, poor Riley was not to have it long, for the mistake was soon discovered, and he was separated from it. Philosophical fellow that he was, says he: "I didn't want a hat, I'd rather have a mop anyway."

It happened, however, that Riley, during the time he had possession of the "silk top" attended a Vacuum Cleaner's Convention, and on coming home, he picked up the wrong hat (for all silk hats looked alike to him) which contained two circus tickets and a tell-tale letter from a love-stricken soul called Rebecca. Well, the minister got hold of this hat with the letter, and the ladies of the church discov——— there, I'm at it again. I'll tell you what to do, go to-night and you'll be like the young lady who went to the poultry show—she saw so many feathers she was tickled for a week.

In addition to the fun of the complications you'll hear some good singing, particularly that of Rowena Jackaway, daughter of Mrs. Jackaway, a truly ambitious mother, who, next to attending to the "quizzing" of the neighbourhood, sought to secure for Rowena the advancement her magnificent voice demanded. Rowena's rendering of "Il Trovatore" in her sweet (wheel) baritone voice was most fetching. In fact Mrs. Jackaway herself was heard to good effect in that charming little ballad:

"For when a woman once makes up her mind
There's no use trying to change it you'll find
For it can't be changed by all mankind."

Birthday Skits.

Sang by church officials:
"Big men—that's us,
Big hearts—that's us,
Big thoughts—that's us,
Big brains—that's us—
The church depends on such men —that's us."

Sexton: "They always remember the minister, but they never remember me."

Rowena would make a good leading lady in the "Garden of Dreams," for does she not dream every night?

"Birthdays come once a year, only once."

They were all proud of their minister, but he lacked one thing— a hat. (That poor hat).

Did you ever hear girls whistle? No. Well, go and hear the whistling chorus.

Said the church mouse: "I live on the peanuts that members bring to eat."

Riley Crackers, the sexton: "He's full of laughs, you see." (Good stars, who's he, said a lady behind me).

"We are all as different as can be
When the minister comes to tea."

Sexton: "Medium tall man, distinguished looking? That's me."

Mrs. Jackaway: "We have been so careful of Rowena since her voice attracted so much attention."

Squire Dawson to Minister: "We want this to be a birthday you'll never forget." And he never will.

Although 30 Men Have Joined Colors 57th Band Survives

The general meeting of the 57th Band held last night revealed that about thirty men are prepared to keep the home fires burning till the boys come home.

The band was at the call of the officers and of the city from the beginning of the war both for recruiting and sending away of volunteers. Instruments and music had been freely placed at the disposal of the 59th and 93rd Battalions, and the roll of honor of men of the 57th Band, now on active service is indeed a long one. Committees were appointed and instructed to at once proceed to make the necessary arrangements for the season's work.

No Celebration For the Present of Trent Valley Power Purchase

Sir Adam Beck Unable to Attend and Council Felt the Affair Would Be Incomplete Without Him —Party May Proceed on Its Own Initiative.

Because Sir Adam Beck could not come to Peterborough on March 31 nor promise a visit in the near future the Council decided in committee last night to shelve for the present the proposal to hold a civic demonstration in recognition of the provincial acquisition of the Trent Valley power plants and sites. When Mayor Duffus reported the inability of Sir Adam Beck to attend the city's proposed celebration Ald. Edgar suggested that the idea be dropped.

Ald. Stratton—This is something we should feel elated over and we could easily have Hon. Dr. Reid, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Hon. Mr. Graham and Mr. Rowell here together.

Mayor Duffus—I'm not only speaking for myself but I wouldn't hold a celebration unless we had Sir Adam Beck come here. He certainly should be here when any civic Hydro celebration may be held.

Ald Edgar agreed with the Mayor.

It was stated if the city did not hold a celebration. Hon. Dr. Reid and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson would likely be brought here by others.

Ald. Stratton—That just proves my point. The idea was to create a feeling among the electors that the Conservatives have been doing something big in buying a property for which it will be found, a million dollars too much was paid.

Capt. Burnham will likely go ahead and hold a meeting which he proposed to hold under the city's auspices.

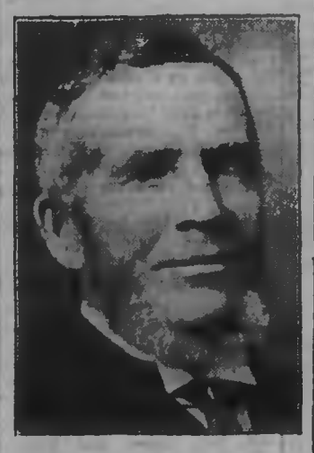
Mayor Duffus read a letter from Capt. Burnham written yesterday in which he agreed to having the two Liberal members join with the Government ministers in a meeting to celebrate the purchase of the Trent Water powers.

However, the general feeling was that no civic meeting should be held here until Sir Adam Beck could be present. Ald Saunders moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar to this effect and the civic jubilee was deferred until a later date.

SEVENTY-THREE YEARS "YOUNG" TO-MORROW

Mr. Andrew Fairbairn of Smith Has Lived on Same Homestead Over Half a Century

Mr. Andrew Fairbairn, of Smith, will be seventy-three years "young" to-morrow, having been born March 16th, 1843. Although he has passed the allotted span of "three score and ten" Mr. Fairbairn is a man who has not lost his youth. Indeed it is safe to say he feels as fit as many a man of fifty. Age does not depend upon years, but upon health and temperament, and Mr. Fairbairn is fortunate in having a cheery, optimistic outlook upon life.



MR. ANDREW FAIRBAIRN

His interest in public affairs is as keen as ever, and we believe we are safe in saying that the thing nearest his heart at the present time is the great wave of temperance which is sweeping over the land, for was he not one of the Peterborough paraders in the great Prohibition demonstration that took place in Toronto last week?

Mr. Fairbairn is also very active in church circles. For thirty-four years he has been on the Board of Management of the Presbyterian Church at Lakefield, and for over a quarter of a century he has sat at the Court of Elders. Besides he is prominently connected with the Laymen's Association, and has had the privilege of attending many conventions both in Canada and the United States. Being a great reader and a close observer he is able to express himself in a clear and forceful manner.

Women Cannot Wear Military Capes in Italy Any More

ROME, March 14.—Military styles may hold sway in America and other neutral countries, but in Italy she who would be fashionable must eschew soldier modes.

Time was when it was difficult to get a chic American out of Italy without one of those swagger military capes which are considered the most graceful and altogether the most ravishing articles of wearing apparel woman has borrowed from male fashions.

Today any woman found guilty of wearing military raiment runs the risk of paying dearly for the affront. It isn't to be done. The result is there is a big business in making over military capes, into cloaks. These military capes, with a fascinating azure amplitude that thrills the feminine heart when wrapped about the form of a dashing officer, may be worn only be these same officers.

Also, the grey-green material for soldiers uniforms, which lovely woman pounce upon in her desire to follow military fashions, is taboo for feminine use in Italy. It's the stunning military cape with its picturesque draped effects which has struck the saddest blow to the feminine American heart, for no matter how hard she may try to smuggle one back home, she simply can't do it.

COUNCIL REGARDS CITY SOLICITOR'S AS AN OFFICIAL SALARY

Notwithstanding Judge Huycke's Finding That Mr. Gordon Was Not an Official

It didn't take the aldermen long to make a joke of their ten per cent. reduction in the salaries of civic officials. Las night when they resumed their attacks on the appropriations the salary cut was mentioned as "the usual discount." For example in the Health Department estimates Ald. Stratton read: "Plumbing Inspector's salary, $600," then added "minus the discount." It worked very smoothly in its application until the Legal committee's sheet was produced. The first item was City Solicitor Gordon's salary of $1,000. Some one said "minus the usual discount," but it was pointed out that Mr. Gordon is not a civic official according to Judge Huycke's finding during the School Board investigation. Ald. Stratton considered the judicial statement as a technicality. "If he is not a city official, what is he then?" It is the Council's intention to include the City Solicitor in the pruning.

Really, the "usual discount" is 8 per cent. rather than 10 per cent. due to the fact that the reduction is not retroactive. Two months' salaries have been paid and the cut will not likely be applied until April. When the municipal government appropriations were reached the $300 salary to Sheriff Jas. A. Hall as city auditor was to be discounted. It would mean a difference of $24 to the auditor.

Ald. Dobbin felt that an exception should be made in this instance. He was hardly an official.

Ald. Weir—There should be no exemptions.

Ald. Dobbin—He's entitled to some consideration.

Ald. Dobbin moved that Mr. Hall's salary be increased $100.

Ald. Stratton—I'll second —. No I won't either, not for any increase.

Ald. Duncan observed that all the salaries would be raised to cover the reductions if they started with one.

No action was taken and Ald. Dobbin's motion went unseconded.

CECILE YEOMANS AS HELEN BLAIR—In "The Winning of Barbara Worth," at The Grand next Saturday, March 18, matinee and evening. The seat sale opens to-morrow (Thursday) morning.

A REMARKABLE COW LIVES AT THE O.A.C.

Holstein There Has Given Milk Production That Breaks Records

A Holstein cow at the O.A.C. Farm Department on March 8th completed a new world's record for milk and butter fat production. From March 9th, 1915, to March 8th, 1916 she produced 20,072.9 lbs. of milk, containing 919.95 lbs. of butter fat, equivalent to 1,042.94 lbs. of butter. This constitutes a record for cows milked just twice daily, for both milk and butter fat. All previous records of over 18,000 lbs. of milk and 650 lbs. of fat in a year have been made by cows milked three and four times daily throughout the greater part of the year. It is interesting to note that but four cows in Canada, three Holsteins and one Jersey, have given more butter fat in a year than has this cow.

This cow was five years old at the commencement of her year's test. She has bred and raised at the College. At no time was she forced in feeding, the largest amount of grain fed being 12 lbs. per day.

The accomplishment of this record is largely due to the painstaking care and regularity of Mr. Sam Shaw, one of the herdsmen of the farm department.

Says Churchill Looks For Death in Battle

Friend Explains His Speech as an Effort to "Make His Mind Easy"

LONDON, March 13.—From a friend of Winston Churchill, in whom I have absolute confidence. I have heard the following extraordinary explanation of the reason which impelled the Colonel to deliver his speech of warning in the House of Commons last Tuesday.

If Mr. Churchill were a Scotchman he might be described as "fey". According to the story told his friend, Mr. Churchill is convinced that he will not come through the war alive."

"I know I shall be killed," he told his friend, "and before I die I want to make my mind easy."

This was before Tuesday's debate, when Mr. Churchill stated the grounds for his uneasiness, prominent among them being the apparent belief that his own actions were responsible for the country's being deprived of Lord Fisher's services at the Admiralty.

Among my own acquaintances I have come across several men who, on coming home from the front on leave, have expressed the belief that they would surely be killed when they returned to the battle line. In all but one case these supposed premonitions have so far proved unfounded.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Loar, Port Plantford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered great. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Don't forget the Social Evening in St. Andrew's S. School Hall on Friday, March 17th. Good Programme and Interesting Games. The best of fishing is promised at the Fish Pond. Come and have a good time.

MRS. WILSON'S
372 George Street

Arts and Crafts Column

In this column, conducted by Mr. Hughson Johnstone, painter and decorator, 519 College Street, will be answered—on Wednesdays—questions of the kind given below, for the benefit of those who, in this period of stringency and enforced and suggested economy, might like doing their own work. Questions relating to painting, sign-writing, paperhanging, furniture polishing, and decorating, may be sent to The Examiner, and will receive attention in due course.

A Reader, Peterborough, Ont: I bought some varnish and paid a good price for it, too, and varnished some dining room chairs, and this is two weeks ago, and they're not dry yet, and we always stick to them and Mr. ——— in the ——— Hardware, said to write to the Examiner, and if you said it was bad varnish he would give me some other kind for nothing. So will you please tell him.

Ans.: It was indeed kind of the gentleman to lay the responsibility of deciding the respective qualities of the varnishes he sells, to the Examiner. But much as we appreciate the tribute he pays us, in so doing, we feel compelled to decline to act as arbitrator between buyer and seller. However, we are inclined to think that the fault lays rather with the varnisher than the varnish. I fear there was a trace of grease on the chairs that should have been washed off before varnishing.

X.Y.Z., Peterborough, Ont.: What can I do to make paint stick to galvanized iron?

Ans.: First wash the surface with muriatic acid or vinegar to clean off the grease. Then with 1-3 white lead, to 2-3 red lead, make a paint, using raw linseed oil five parts, to one of turpentine, with a dash of coach Japan to thin it. Brush out well and spread evenly.

John D., Havelock, Ont.: Will you please inform me through your "Arts and Crafts" column what is the best colours for a ceiling and border, when the walls are green?

Ans.: It is rather hard to be exact when one is not familiar with the immediate surroundings. But if it is paint or kalsomine on your walls, and the green is not too light, you could use a lighter tone of green on the border with a deeper self tone ornamentation of some sort, and an old ivory ceiling. Or any of the tones of cream harmonizes with green, providing it is not too dark. In which case soften the break by making the border deeper than the ceiling, or lighter than the walls, with the same colour. If your walls are papered, your wall paper dealer will tell you what is best for ceiling and border.

Miss T. L., Peterborough, Ont.: My sewing machine has a few light scratches on it. Will you kindly advise whether I should varnish, shellack or what can I do to hide the scratches? They are not at all deep; just a lot of little scratches all over the nicely polished top.

Ans.: Any good furniture polish should do, or rub them over with raw linseed oil and turpentine half and half, allowing it to remain a few minutes. Then wipe the surplus oil off thoroughly with a soft cloth.

Builder, Peterborough, Ont.: I have read with interest every article in this column since its inception and am now to ask my first favour. I have done considerable building, but have never had what I call a satisfactory painter's specification. It was always full of loopholes that the painter could see and I could not until too late. I am sure your many readers would be glad to have a standard specification published in this column as a guide for them for future use.

Ans.: I hardly know how to draw up a specification suitable for all purposes. Any architect would gladly supply you with a painter's specification for a very small fee that would be adaptable to any particular job. There are so many kinds of surfaces and kinds of finishes that a standard specification could be worse than useless. That is where the loop holes would occur. Some of the principle points to specify, however, are a certain grade of linseed oil and turpentine, and specify what make of lead. For instance, say—"All wood work shall be painted with black brand white lead, pure linseed oil and pure turpentine. Then see that you get it. Have the paint made on the job under your supervision, also specify the proportions. For outside work put it like this:

Priming coat—100 lbs. Blanks' brand white lead, 4 gallons pure linseed (raw or boiled) oil, 2 gallons pure turpentine.

Second coat—100 lbs. same lead, 1 1-2 gals. oil, 1 1-2 gal. turps.

Third coat—100 lbs. lead, 4 gals raw oil, 1 pt. turps, 1 pt. turpentine drier.

For inside, specify just what you want. Verbal agreements are unbusinesslike and usually unsatisfactory. Misunderstandings are always prevalent. Specify knotting, dusting, sandpapering rough wood, puttying, and time between coats. Never paint wet wood work, and have each coat a little diffrent in colour or tone. Then you can follow the coats and know whether you get two coats for three or not. Some architects insist on this. Some painters object for obvious reasons.

OVERDOSE OF KISSES.

Mrs. Smedes Asks to Be Released From Osculatory Husband.

Mrs. Alice Smedes of Chicago has filed suit for divorce because her husband Frank is too affectionate. Mrs. Smedes believes it was all right for him to kiss her and hug her now and then, although he made her ribs ache and her head whirl, being a big man—a Viking, she calls him. But when he kept it up and doubled the amount on Sunday, it was another story. Frank, she says, kissed her awake in the morning, kissed her before breakfast, kissed her while she was getting it, kissed her while the breakfast grew cold. Then he interrupted the meal to kiss her. She would protest, she says, and he would kiss her protestations away. Over and over again this happened, she declares.

FEATURES OF MANITOBA PROHIBITION VOTE.

Only two constituencies voted wet, and by small majorities.

Winnipeg gave 3,500 to the drys.

In South Winnipeg the wets carried only four polls.

Every polling place where the soldiers voted gave a dry majority.

In the country no constituency went wet, and the dry majorities in most cases were very large.

There were many divisions in which not a single poll gave a wet majority.

The foreign element voted dry.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription

You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in ¼ glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid, bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy, its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

When The Doctor Prescribes

—he has to exercise great care that the proportions are exact and according to correct pharmaceutical strength

The Druggist who Compounds the Prescription must be equally as careful and well skilled and must know the quality of the ingredients.

Special care in filling all prescriptions, exactness in measurements and promptness in action.

Ald. Duncan Would Provide For Celebration of Victory This Year

Mayor Duffus Was Not as Optimistic of Speedy Termination of the War—Other Items Included in Council's Estimates.

Alderman Duncan evidenced a turn of phophetic optimism last night in his suggestion to include in the estimates a sum to cover the celebration of victory and peace.

Mayor Duffus—I'm afraid we won't need it this year.

Alderman Duncan—I hope you're wrong.

Mayor Duffus—So do I.

The item for unforeseen grants was raised from $800 to 1,000. Last year $1,000 was spent.

Street car tickets for plumbing inspector cut from $25 to $12.50.

"He won't have as much work to do this year," said Alderman Weir.

$800 for City Buildings' fuel was passed. "That means 48 tons," observed Alderman Stratton.

$300 to provide for damage actions against the city also got by.

Lighting of City Buildings $150. The cost last year was $150.30.

Loss on taxes—regular discount, etc., fixed at $8,000. Last year it was $8,181.80.

Lamps and wiring for parks cut from $100 to $50. Last year $300 was spent, including park benches.

Repairs to city offices cut from $800 to $100.

Insurance for town clock—$6.60. Unchanged.

Ice for drinking fountains $100.00. Last year $98.00 was spent.

All the other items in the Board of Health's sheet were passed. Alderman Duncan said it was impossible to tell what sum would be needed for the department.

Collection of dead dogs, cats, etc. —$25. Last year $25 was spent for these unforeseen items.

No Grants to Salvation Army And 57th Bands This Year

Sick Children's Hospital—$50.

Teachers' Institute—$25.

Poultry Association—$75.

Peterborough Health Association—$600.

Salvation Army Home—$200.

12th July Celebration—$200.

BOARD OF WORKS ESTIMATES CUT DOWN TO $26,000

Were Originally $36,840, But Ald. McIntyre Will Have to Scrape Along With Considerably Less

NO SPECIAL WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

The Board of Works appropriations for 1916 have been reduced from the proposed total of $36,840.00 to $26,600.00. Ald. McIntyre's estimate sheet was subjected to an exceedingly close scrutiny last night. Only one or two items escaped the wholesale pruning. Only the imperative and obligatory work came through untouched.

At the outset, Ald. Dobbin inquired whether it was intended to provide work for the unemployed this year.

Ald. Weir—I don't think we should.

Ald. McIntyre—I don't think we will need to provide work this summer as we did last year.

Mayor Duffus was of the same opinion and felt that care should be taken to prevent outsiders coming in here and getting work which should go to residents.

Ald. Edgar—Last year's method of registration with the City Engineer should shut out the outsiders.

Mayor Duffus— It looks as if the teamsters will be in the worst position this year.

Ald. Dobbin—We shouldn't do any work but the most urgent.

And having struck that keynote there was no discord during the paring performance.

Some of the Items.

General street work—1915 estimate, $5,500; this year $5,000; fixed at $3,500.

Gravel and stone—1915 estimate $6,000; this year $5,000; reduced to $3,500.

Culvert repairs—Cut from $300 to $150.

Sewer maintenance—Cut from $500 to $300.

Catch basins maintenance — Cut from $125 to $75.

Street cleaning—1915 estimate $2,500; this year $3,500; reduced to $3,000.

Weed and grass cutting from $400 to $200.

Trimming trees also cut from $400 to $200.

Office supplies, est., 275; reduced to $150.

Salaries reduced from $4,000 to $3,500.

Miscellaneous cut from $2,000 to $1,200.

Boundary roads from $450 to $250.

"That includes the road to the golf links," said Mr. Parsons to Ald. Baratton.

"I have no car this year," replied the chief executioner of padded and obese estimates. "I'll have to walk."

Street watering and oiling, $5,000. This also came through unscathed, in fact Ald. Weir proposed to make it $6,000.

Snow cleaning cut from $2,500 to $2,000.

It will be noticed that nothing is provided for surface drains.

er and he went on to point the discomforts the soldiers at the front were suffering and the sacrifices they were making. He asked the people of Peterborough to see that their boys at the front were not allowed to go without a regular supply of tobacco. "I'd hate to face them when they come back if this isn't done said the speaker.

His plea for the boys at the front was most eloquent, and left a deep impression upon every one.

Mr. R. J. Soden, who made a most efficient chairman, told the audience that the club had been looking after 240 Peterborough boys who were at the front. The number has recently been increased to 600 and the other men must be looked after, and it was up to the people of Peterborough. The chairman made an applicative reference to the fact that the fund in Peterborough had been carried on so far mainly by working men.

An enjoyable programme was given. The orchestra of the 93rd Battalion opened with a well-played number. Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang in excellent voice "Scots Wha Hae" and responded to an encore with "Keep the Home Fires Burning." A double quartette from the Peterborough patriotic chorus sang "The Minstrel Boy" and a quartette composed of Sergt. Miller and Messrs. Jones, Huycke and Stratton, gave a spirited rendition of the Marsellaise. Mr. T. Stratton convulsed the audience with his Harry Lauder numbers and Miss Charlotte Hanson sang "Theres' A Land" charmingly.

At the conclusion of Mr. Jones' address a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, on motion of Messrs F. D. Kerr and R. R. Hall.

The Overseas club wish to thank the members of the Board of Education who kindly gave them the use of the Collegiate Institute Hall, free, for the concert last evening. Also all the entertainers who voluntarily contributed their "bit" to make the concert a success.

MR. REDFIELD SEES SHORTAGE IN PAPER

Declares Price Will Take a Big Jump Unless This Nation Adopts a Saving Method

BALTIMORE, Md March 15—William C. Redfield, with his wife and daughter, automobiled from Washington to Baltimore to-day and dined at the Hotel Belvedere.

"This country uses 15,000 tons of paper each day and most of the rags for the manufacture are imported from Europe," he said. "It can be very clearly seen that unless something is done at once the price of paper will take a big jump. France already has placed an embargo on rags. If this matter will be taken seriously, large quantities of rags and paper that are now being destroyed can be saved and made over into paper.

"If fifty per cent. of the old paper can be saved it will be great help to the manufacturers. Old rags have a good value and waste paper also brings a price, so those who save these articles can be benefited.

"The demand for paper in the United States has greatly increased since the war, and in the face of the increase in demand and the shortage of material for manufacture a famine is threatened."

DIRECT CHARGES ISSUED

In Answer to Challenge of Premier Borden, Pugsley Makes Direct Charges to Effect That Shell Committee Caused Loss of 80 Million Dollars to British and Canadians

OTTAWA, March 14.—Hon. William Pugsley made in Parliament today the direct and specific charges in connection with the operations of the Shell Committee, implicating the Government through the Minister of Militia, which charges Premier Borden said a week ago were the first requisite for the granting of an investigation. Last Tuesday the Prime Minister, in replying to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's motion for a Parliamentary Committee of Investigation, defended the Government's refusal to grant an investigation on the ground that no direct charges had been made against a minister of the Crown. This was supported by the plea that the Government was not directly responsible for the appointment or conduct of the Shell Committee. To-day Dr. Pugsley took away the excuse as to the alleged lack of concrete and specific charges preferred in the constitutional manner against the Government itself. Mr. Carvell supplied last week the circumstantial details of the serious irregularities calling for investigation. Dr. Pugsley summed them up to-day with the specific charge that the total loss to Canada and Great Britain through the improper methods of the Shell Committee was at least eighty million dollars, and that the Minister of Militia and through him the Government was responsible for that waste and deliberately allowed it to continue. And on his ability to prove the charges if a committee were granted Dr. Pugsley staked his reputation and his seat in the House.

Text of the Charges.

At the outset of his speech, in resuming the debate on Sir Wilfrid's motion, Dr. Pugsley read the following charges:

"I, William Pugsley, a member of this House, in support of the motion now under consideration, standing in my place in this House, and on my responsibility as a member of this House, declare and charge that the Shell Committee, appointed by the Minister of Militia and referred to in said motion, fixed excessive and unreasonable prices for shells and for other munitions and goods to be furnished to the British Government (which by arrangement between the British Government and the Canadian Government were to be paid for in part by Canada.)

"That such prices were fixed without competition, and were in excess of what would necessarily have been paid if ordinary business methods had been pursued, thereby involving an unnecessary excessive expenditure of many millions of dollars, conservatively estimated at at least eighty millions, which will be improperly taken from the people of the United Knigdom and Canada.

"That said committee gave large orders at such excessive prices and without competition to companies in which members of the committee were largely interested, and of some of which companies members of the said committee were the directing heads.

"That there has been great and wholly unnecessary delay in furnishing the completed shells for use of the Canadian and British forces at the front.

"That the said Shell Committee neglected and delayed for an undue period of time to provide the fuses necessary to render the shells effective, and, failing to endeavour to provide for their construction in Canada, as they might have done, proceeded to give and award through J. Wesley Allison in the United States contracts for fuses amounting to $22,000,000, on which they made an advance of $3,750,000. That the making of the said contracts through said Allison was unwise and improvident, and was entered into with the knowledge and connivance of the Minister of Militia, and the said Shell Committee failed to obtain delivery of said fuses for an unreasonable time.

"And I do also charge that the Government of Canada had, through the Minister of Militia, to whom the said Shell Committee reported weekly, knowledge of such irregular and imporper methods and acts of the said Shell Committee, and while having the power at any time to put an end thereto the said Minister improperly consented to such irregular and improper methods and acts, and permitted the same to continue."

1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. P. Campbell.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Nesbitt.

CAPT. BURNHAM HAS ARRANGED A MEETING FOR MARCH 31 HERE

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Hon. J. D. Reid Will Be Principal Speakers in Market Hall

Mr. Burnham, M.P., announces that a meeting will be held in the Market Hall on Friday evening, March 31st at which the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Power for Ontario, and the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Canals for the Dominion, will speak. He has invited Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., to speak also. The Mayor has kindly consented to preside. A civic reception will be held at a later date in all probability when Sir Adam Beck will be invited. Sir Adam Beck is the executive head of the Hydro movement, but the other gentlemen are the departmental heads and it is considered by Mr. Burnham inadvisable to have them all here together. The efforts heretofore made to secure the introduction of Hydro into the Trent District and Central and Eastern Ontario have been crowned with success and it is a fitting thing that we should proceed still further and have these gentlemen announce to us what they propose to do with the opportunity to which they have given to Eastern Ontario for the development of power for the farm, the factory and radial railways. This is a matter of such moment to this district that it is felt that no opportunity should be allowed to pass for developing the whole matter, and no doubt the public will be pleased to attend and hear the announcement of these gentlemen with respect to the future. Invitations are being extended to all those of the district who formed the deputations that waited on Sir Adam Beck at Toronto and on the Prime Minister at Ottawa. It is probable that some of those who formed the deputations will also speak.

Street Oil is Much Dearer This Year

City Engineer Parsons states that street oil worth 6 1-2c a gallon last year is now quoted at 10c. Hamilton contracted for its 1916 supply at this figure and the market is bullish. Thus Peterborough's street oiling is going to cost more than ever this year, but the Council regards it as money well spent.

Splendid Work Accomplished By The Norwood Chapter I.O.D.E.

Annual Reports Show What Has Been Done on Behalf of the Soldiers--Board of Education and Village

NORWOOD, March 15.—The following is the third annual report of the local chapter of the I.O.D.E. by the secretary, Mrs. B. W. Squire.

The work of the Chapter for the year just ending has been chiefly along the lines of raising funds for supplying comforts to our soldiers and in the making of the same in this connection some 3,000 articles have been made and shipped, made up as follows: 363 sheets, 538 pillow cases, 200 night shirts, 600 bandages, 200 Red Cross handkerchiefs, 26 towels, 42 handkerchiefs, 29 scarfs, 6 pairs bed slippers, 56 pairs wristlets, 4 sleeping helmets, 6 autograph quilts, 985 pairs of socks, sent direct to France.

We held during the year 11 regular meetings and four special meetings, also met in committee every Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of receiving and giving out work.

We held three successful showers. On the 12th of May we held a linen shower and received 100 sheets, 430 pillow cases, 15 night shirts, 1 dozen handkerchiefs, 9 towels and $3.00 in money. These we sent direct to nursing sisters L. G. Squire and Helen Fowlds on active duty at No. 1 stationary hospital in France.

In September we held a jam shower and from this 207 quarts of jam and 50 lbs. of honey were sent to Red Cross Society in Toronto. A Christmas shower for soldiers' comforts was held in November and donations to the amount of $100 were received.

Money Raised.

A patriotic lawn tea $35.50. From the sale of meals on fair day $80.83. Two concerts brought us $42.40. Several donations in money were received, among which were $50 from Peterborough Cheese Board, $25 from Agricultural Society, $50 from patrons of Norwood Cheese Factory.

We also received a splendid donation of yarn from Col. Birdsall. Early in the summer we adopted a prisoner of war in Germany and subscribed $2 per month to provide him with weekly parcels of food and comforts.

In response to the British Red Cross appeal we donated $80, $50 through the local committee and $30 through the National Executive.

We were also pleased to donate $25 towards the 'Maple Leaf Club' in London, in response to Mrs. Gooderham's appeal.

Our local work consisted of a donation of $30 to Boy Scouts, and looking after the needs of several families. Christmas parcels containing Christmas cake, tobacco, cigars, pipes, chocolates, gum, silk handkerchiefs, paper, envelopes and two pairs of socks were sent to each of the boys who has gone from Norwood and vicinity with the first and second contingents. We also supplied the recruits leaving here with field comforts, etc.

Our first vice-regent was sent as a delegate to the annual meeting in Halifax, and we have endeavoured to profit by her report and to pass along the enthusiasm received at that meeting and to realize the still greater need of more effort being put forth in every way to help our brave men who are engaged in the fearful struggle for right and liberty in France.

We must refer to the splendid work and co-operation of Westwood and surrounding country. They are untiring in their efforts and the number of pairs of socks that come regularly to us tell of brave hearts and willing hands to work for the boys who are facing the enemy, a good many of whom have gone from their own homes.

We also have the co-operation of a Girls' Patriotic Club' who are doing good work and assisting us with splendid donations.

We have on our roll book ninety active members, 11 of whom are working as a branch at No. 1 Belmont, and doing a splendid work.

We close the year feeling we have tried at least to do our duty as true Daughters of the Empire.

Mrs. B. W. Squire, Acting Secretary.

Transient Trader Was Fined $50

Peter John Black Contributed Fifty Iron Men to the Civic Treasury

One man, one license, is the way Police Magistrate Dumble interprets the civic by-law respecting transient traders. In this morning's Police Court, Peter John Black pleaded guilty to a charge of selling goods throughout the town, without a license. Black, together with his brother, operated under one license, whereas the law requires that only one man can make use of one license. The accused was fined fifty dollars with the option of taking out a license at the same price. Black took out a license.

Resignation of Tirpitz Means End of Attempt to Force Ruthless Sub. Programme

News Has Created Great Rejoicing in Those Quarters in Berlin Anxious to Preserve Good Relations With America ---Dutch Liner Sunk.

THE HAGUE, March 16.—The resignation of Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz from the command of the German naval forces means the end of the attempt to force a ruthless submarine programme, according to reliable advices received to-day. The news has created great rejoicing in those quarters in Berlin, anxious to preserve good relations with America. The Von Tirpitz resignation is considered a personal triumph for Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg, advocate of conciliatory policy toward America.

Admiral Von Tirpitz will be decorated by the Emperor and awarded a pension.

SEE AN IMPENDING GERMAN COLLAPSE IN FALL OF MARK

LONDON, March 16.—The absorbing topic among financiers here is the continuance of the fall in exchange rate for the German mark and the Austrian krone. Experts regard the continued depreciation as foreshadowing an impending German and Austrian financial collapse.

The Westminster Gazette, in publishing a diagram showing the rise and fall in the sight bills on Berlin since July, 1914, when the exchange rate was quoted at 97 7-16 in New York, 59.16 in Holland, 89.15 in Scandinavia and 122.15 in Switzerland, directs attention to the exchange value of the mark now, which is quoted at 72.38 in New York, 41.65 in Holland, about 62.50 in Scandinavia and 92.16 in Switzerland.

In explaining the record fall of the exchange rate for the mark last week financial experts agree it was due mainly to the depreciation in the value of German paper money, which has increased more than three hundred per cent in volume since the war began. The continuance of the fall of the exchange rate in Holland, Switzerland and Scandinavia, despite the despatch of large sums of gold and the employment of drastic measures in these countries to maintain the rate of exchange, is said to be due to the fact that Germany's military power seems to be waning and the evidence of a growing belief in all neutral countries that Germany is certain to be defeated.

Her financial position is reported to be so grave now that experts declare the whole world is justified in speculating how much longer she can delay ultimate bankruptcy.

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIFS" IF TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother. See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless, children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt

Thin Men and Women Who Want to Gain Weight Should Try At Once This 10 Days Flesh Building Test

Report Gains at Rate of Three to FIVE Pounds a Week in Many Instances. Full Directions Given.

Most thin, run down men and women would probably be glad to increase their weight with ten to twenty-five pounds of good, firm, solid, healthy stay-there flesh and fat if they believed it possible to accomplish such results by but merely making the materials in their daily meals do a little more work than they are doing now.

This is said to be the chief reason why most thin people do stay under weight. They are so constituted that they fail to fully assimilate the nourishment of their food, a great deal of which passes from the body as waste. Increase assimilation to normal and normal weight follows as a matter of course.

If you are ten pounds or more underweight and believe this can't be done in your case, here is a simple, inexpensive, and really harmless test that is well worth trying.

First, weigh yourself. Then with each meal for ten days and each night as you go to bed take a single Sargol tablet. Then weigh yourself again and let the scales tell the story.

Sargol may not increase your weight as much as one pound a day but with whatever increase in your weight may be shown you can decide what its continued use for a few weeks further may be able to do for you. Sargol does not of itself make fat but consisting of a splendidly balanced combination of assimilative aids and flesh building agents it mixes with your meals for the purpose of making it easier for your blood to accept their strength, flesh and fat-making nourishment and turn it into strength, flesh and fat upon your body.

A great many people have gladly told that it succeeds. There are many reports like the following: "I have increased 18 pounds in less than a month," wrote a man from Colorado. Another man who said that he had been losing over a pound a week and was under 150 pounds, gained two pounds the first week taking Sargol, and "Been gaining ever since." Last report over 170 pounds. Better than 16 pounds gain. A lady from St. Louis wrote, "Have gained 16 pounds and am still gaining." Sargol as a rule should be taken 30 days or more where results like above are desired.

The tablets are small, easily swallowed, produce no disagreeable effects, contain no habit drugs, are harmless and not at all expensive as compared with results said to be obtained.

NOTE—Sargol, referred to above is well known as a flesh builder to many of the leading local druggists who furthermore sell it on the positive guarantee, as found in each large package, of satisfactory weight increase or money back. In view of this liberal offer and the harmless nature of the remedy, it would seem that all who desire increased weight should be glad to give this method a trial

DESTRUCTIVE YOUNGSTERS

HAVELOCK, March 15.—Five local youngsters were arraigned before County Magistrate Langley on Friday afternoon charged by Mr. Wm. Corneil with wilful damage to his property east of the village. According to Corneil the boys broke into the house, the windows of which were boarded up, and broke 40 panes of glass, destroyed two gets of dishes poured coal oil into the well, and caused other damage, all totalling about $100.00. The boys pleaded guilty and the Magistrate imposed the usual penalty, "suspended sentence" and allowed them to go upon payment of $20 and costs of $41.50 in all. Crown Attorney Hatton, while admitting that the $20 would not cover the damage claimed, intimated that Mr. Corneil could bring an action in the Division Court to recover damages

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Why Demanded

"Gin Pills did for my husband and me what no other remedy could. I have advised two other parties to use them, one of them being my mother who has been a great sufferer for upwards of 20 years, and one box cured her, so as to enable her to sleep on her left side, something she could not do for many a year. The doctors told her they could not cure her, but could relieve her by an operation for a floating kidney, but on account of her age they did not think it advisable for her to go. Upon my advice she tried Gin Pills which cured her and for which she is ever ready to speak in terms of praise."

OUR SERIAL STORY

BY LOUIS TRACY

Popple turned a mildly inquiring eye on this testy companion. He thought, "That drop o' spirit has gone the wrong way, my friend." But what he said was, "I was thinkin' of the sea's whims. It'll hide a six-decked liner an' give up a corpse. If Mrs. Carmac was keen set on pickin' up a pair o' scissors, I'd back them to turn up as ag'in' your ten-thousand-pound necklace. Mebbe that's a silly thing to say in this case. Her jew'ls are in a locked box, an' a strong one at that, because I twigged her baggage when it kem aboard, an' the lot was built for hard wear. But there you are! I'll take care she has a look at the stuff we find, an' that ends my job."

"You can count on me, Captain, for all the assistance I can render," said Raymond, and the subject dropped.

"By the way," he went on, adopting the most nonchalant tone he could command, "have you met Mrs. Carmac's niece since we came ashore?"

"Me, Sir? No. Didn't know there was any such young woman"

"You have not been told, then, that Mrs. Carmac found a long-lost niece in Miss Yvonne Ingersoll?"

Popple slapped a stout thigh, and his eyes rounded in surprise. "Sink me! but that explains it!" he cried.

"Explains what?"

"I wondered where I had seen the girl in bib an' tucker afore."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, these here caps an' streamers an' tickle-me aprons do make a heap of difference! Now what in the world will she think of me? I've passed her a dozen times without ever a 'Thank you, Miss,' or a touch of me hat. Dash my buttons! I thought my eyes were sharper'n that' Of course she was drapped in a sou-wester an' oilskin the other day, an' so was Mrs. Carmac; so I piped the likeness then, an' even spoke of it to Mr. Ingersoll. But I must ha been rattled when I was in Mrs. Carmac's room a bit since. Of course I remember now. That was her, right enough."

"Would you mind telling me what you are rambling about, Captain Popple"

Popple grinned. "There's a pair of us, Mr. Raymond," he cried. "You don't seem to know much about the lady, either. You met her on the stairs when you went to see Mrs. Carmac, because I happened to notice that she kem down as you went up."

"A girl in Breton costume?"

"That's it. She's lived here since she was a baby, an' I s'pose she took to the village ways."

Raymond was astounded by a fact that, after all, was not of vital importance, that he put the next question literally to gain time for the readjustment of his ideas. "You have heard something of her history, then?"

"Oh, ay. She an' her father are well thought of in Pont Aven. A lady who's stayin' in there," and he jerked a thumb over his shoulder toward the hotel, "tole me all about the pair of 'em. Mr. Ingersoll is by way of bein' a great hand at paintin'; but he settled down in this little spot nearly nineteen years ago, and has never left it. Miss Yvonne would be a baby then; but she's grown into a damn fine young woman since—an' she ain't the on'y one in the parish, if I'm any judge."

Popple's face creased in a frown of perplexity. "That isn't w'at the lady said," he explained. "Her story was that Mrs. Ingersoll died in Paris, probably when the baby was born. Anyhow, no one in Pont Aven had ever seen her, as she axed particular. Not that it could ha been any business of hers, but a woman likes to ferret out every atom of gossip, an' there's bound to be a lot of talk about any girl as good lookin' as Miss Ingersoll."

Popple little guessed — he never knew—what a tornado he let loose by those words. "Dear me! Dear me! How very curious!" gasped Raymond.

And at that moment Yvonne herself came across the Place from Le Sellin's, having undergone a process of "fitting" to which her mother was unequal. The two were alike even in height and figure. If anything, Mrs. Carmac was rather more slender than her daughter, because the girl's muscles were well developed by long walks and plenty of exercise in an outrigger, whereas the older woman had been self-indulgent and frail all her life.

Both men stood up. She noticed their action, and protested smilingly.

"Please don't rise, Mr. Raymond," she said. "I hope you don't think I have neglected you, but I have inquired from Dr. Garnier several times as to your well-being, and I knew you were in good hands here, while my own time has been occupied in looking after Mrs. Carmac, who was really very ill until this morning. As for you, Captain Popple, I didn't need to glance twice at you to see that a small thing like a shipwreck hadn't disturbed you in the least."

"Miss," said Popple, "you'll believe me, I know, when I say I didn't reckernize you upstairs. Sink me! I couldn't imagine that any young lady could look so pretty in two different ways."

She laughed delightedly, for the first time since the doleful twin sisters, Sorrow and Suffering, had discovered her. "Now I understand why a sailor has a lass in every port," she said. "You cannot fail to be a success with the girls if you talk to them in that fashion."

Popple had never before been accused of being a ladykiller. He grinned, and his red face grew purple. "Me, Miss?" he cried. "Bless your little heart! I was on'y tellin' the solemn truth. You looked like a seafarin' angel when I saw you through the scud an' spray dashin' over that reef. An' now—well, if the folk hereabout want to advertise Pont Aven, they ought to put you on a poster."

"Captain, I must not have my head turned by such compliments. Wait till Tuesday, our market day, and you will meet dozens of girls who put me in the shade. Is your arm fairly comfortable, Mr. Raymond?"

The secretary, whose eyes had glowered on every unstudied poise and trick of expression that stamped Yvonne as Mrs. Carmac's daughter, even to a markedly clear enunciation, and an almost coquettish sidelong glance when specially amused, had been given time to collect his faculties by Popple's tribute of admiration.

"Yes, thank you, Miss Ingersoll," he said, striving to tune his harsh voice to a note of reverential courtesy. "If I possessed Captain Popple's gift of speech, I should try to vie with him in imagery. May I say that I have always considered Mrs. Carmac as one of the most strikingly handsome women I have ever seen, so I can well appreciate the fact that you are her niece?"

"Lorry," cried the smiling girl, "come out here and tell these flatterers how horrid I can be at times!"

Raymond turned so quickly that he wrenched his arm slightly, and was hard put to it to suppress a groan. Tollemache was standing at the open window directly behind the seat that Popple and himself had occupied. How long had he been there? What had he heard? Certainly the path of the evildoer was not being made smooth, and the scheming secretary had experienced various thrills in the course of one short hour.

"Mr. Raymond is a shrewd judge of womankind, I am sure," said Tollemache quietly, "and he would never accept my estimate fo you, Yvonne. Will you be home for tea? And may I come? I have some news for you."

Yvonne simply announced that he would find her at the cottage about four o'clock. Then, with a handwave to her friend and a graceful bow to the others, she hurried to the annex, running into Peridot as she went.

"Ah, bon jour, Ma'mselle!" he cried, smiling broadly and flourishing his cap. "Did Monsieur Tollemache tell you what a fool I made of myself the other night?"

"No," she said. "Nothing Monsieur Tollemache could say would shake my high opinion of you. How is Madeleine? I haven't seen her since the supper party."

"Neither have I, Ma'mselle," and the merry Breton face suddenly became woebegone.

"What, then? Have you quarrelled?"

"She too was vexed with me."

"I'll put that right, Peridot. Kenavo." (Breton for "Au revoir.")

"Kenavo, Ma'mselle," and Peridot strolled toward the quay, but not without a sharp glance at the man whom he had gulled so thoroughly.

"Lord love a duck!" sighed Popple. "I wish my eddication hadn't been neglected when I was a nipper. I wasn't brought up. I was fetched up. Just listen to them two! Well, I'll bear in the direction of the telegraph office. I'm expectin' a wire from Brest about a diver. So long, Mr. Raymond!"

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys feel and act like lumps of lead, and you have stingy pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

CURING BAD HABITS.

Try a Little Self Hypnotism on Your Pet Weaknesses.

In a large eastern city is a professional hypnotist who has a wide reputation for curing the habit of intemperance. His method is dirt simple.

"There is no real hypnotism about it—unless it is a matter of self hypnotism," this professor once said. "I simply observe the mind process of the man that drinks and advise him how to reverse it. The subconscious soliloquy in the mind of the man that drinks runs something like this: 'When did I have my last bull? Whew! Long as that! I don't see how I stood it so long. Wouldn't have thought it possible.' And so on the victim repeats to himself on the principle that he needs this periodical stimulant just as it is necessary to heap coal on to fire to keep it from burning out. In a word, that man self hypnotizes himself into the belief that he needs a drink.

"My advice to cure this craving is not to fight the appetite, but to fight down the cause that leads to the appetite. Let a man repeat to himself over and over again: 'I really don't need this drink. If I take it, it's simply a matter of pouring so much down my throat superfluously, for I could get along without.' Before long he will be surprised how instead of hypnotizing himself into drink he will hypnotize himself out of it."

Simple, isn't it? But if this self hypnotism or whatever you choose to call it is a cure for intemperance why is it not equally a recipe for curing other bad habits?—Chicago Tribune.

FINISHING BIG GUNS IN BRITISH PLANTS

Britain in Forefront in Inventing the Wire Gun—Wonderful Processes Described

When quite cool after the boring and the tempering of the metal the embryo gun is subjected to a second boring. Its outer tube—for there are two tubes—is fixed permanently to the inner tube in a most interesting position. This latter tube is placed upright into a pit made for the purpose, and over it is dropped the outer tube, taken from the furnace at a blue heat, the two uniting by the shrinkage set up by cooling. To ensure, as far as possible, that this important operation will turn out an unqualified success, the bore is measured to the infinitesimal part of an inch.

A little grit in the outer tube may ruin all, but, even when all conditions have been faultlessly complied with, something may still go wrong to spoil the gun. Perhaps, through some unequality in the cooling process, the ends of the two tubes may take grip before the middle part has definitely left the expansion stage, with results which may well be guessed. It is here the value of gas jets as a heating agency enters. Unless regular contraction is assured, the gun may have to be written off as a spoiled one, or, worse still, be passed and certified only to set up a fatal defect when put to actual use.

Rifled to Get Accuracy

By this time a multiplicity of operations have been passed through, yet the new gun is still far from being finished. Broaching, or very fine boring, has to be performed, and the surface lapped with lead and emery, the latter to produce a faultless surface. Of course, the rifling grooves which give the parting steadying twist to the projectile, besides economising the propulsive force, have to be attended to for smooth bore guns are entirely out of date. It is this rifling which brought about a revolution in the accuracy of gun fire. The grooves are cut out by special machinery after the breech of the gun has been prepared to receive it. There then follows a number of lesser operations, mainly connected with the fittings of the breech, and, when all is ship-shape, gutta percha impressions are taken of the bore, which had previously been measured to a thousandth part of an inch. The gun is now a gleaming thing of burnished metal ready to slay its hundreds, but before being passed into the service, it is submitted to a very searching test, much more severe than it is ever likely to be put to in the most fiercely contested battle.

Wire Gun Is Best

Pieces of artillery are sometimes referred to as wire guns. The country which was quickest to realize the merits of wired ordnance was undoubtedly Britain, and the outcome to-day is that the finest guns extant are British made and British owned. The wire gun is the soundest in the world. It could hardly fail to be. The wire—it is almost broad and thick enough to be termed a ribbon—is coiled at the tremendous initial pressure of 50 tons to the square inch, and if any defect is to show at all it must do so in the covering process. The advantage, however, does not end here, as will be realized when it is explained that a 12-inch wire gun, though weighing only a trifle more than the ordinary twelve-inches can throw a shell 136 pounds heavier and pierce 10 more inches of wrought iron than the other. This simply means that the plain or banded gun is no match whatever for the wire gun of similar calibre.

Clergyman Rises Fast

The Rev. Frank Edwards, a Wesleyan minister at Hull, enlisted early in the war as a private in the Royal Fusiliers. In a month he got his corporal's stripes, and two months later was promoted sergeant, then platoon sergeant. Distinguishing himself at the Hythe School of Musketry, he was given a commission as lieutenant, and has been made captain.

If a boy of ordinary intelligence is not sufficiently educated at sixteen to commence regimental work, then his schoolmaster cannot have done his duty.—Major-General Alexander Bruce Fulloch.

Had Palpitation

OF THE HEART

ALSO WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

When the heart begins to palpitate it will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over your whole system, accompanied by weak, fainting and dizzy spells, and if you should happen to wake up in the night with your heart palpitating, and that "all gone" sinking sensation, you feel as if you were surely going to die.

When you feel this way, you may be sure that both your heart and nerves are out of order, and what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will build up and strengthen both the heart and nerve system.

For this purpose nothing can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to take your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better in a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble, ever since childhood, and finds great relief by using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Lakes of Blood.

The name Lake of Blood or its equivalent has been given to places as far apart as England and South America. "Sanguelac"—i. e., the Lake of Blood—was the name given by the victorious Normans to the battlefield at Hastings, where the Saxons were overthrown and slain with terrible carnage.

For a similar reason Lake Trasimene has borne the name "Sanginetto" because its waters were reddened during the second Punic war by the blood of some 15,000 Romans who fell before the troops of Hannibal.

Yet another Lake of Blood, called also "Yaguar Cocha," is situated in the state of Ecuador. It is one of a series of lakes formed by the extinct craters of volcanoes on the towering heights of the Andes range of mountains.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SAVED FROM BANKRUPTCY.

By ESTELLE CLAIRMONT.

Well, they were married and had gone to housekeeping in a cosy little flat, Arthur Lee and Edith Session. It was a love match. Edith knew that Arthur had a thousand dollars and no more to go into the gents' furnishing business in a modest little store, and she knew that she would have everything to learn about housekeeping, as it would be a long time before they could afford to keep a servant.

Everything had gone along splendidly for a few weeks, both at the store and at the flat, when that old maid Miss Headly came poking her nose in one day. She was an acquaintance of both husband and wife and had to be greeted. Of course she promenaded through the five rooms and praised nothing, but neither did she condemn until the bride pointed to a vacant space in the parlor and observed that it was reserved for the piano when they could afford one.

Then the spinster sat down as stiff as a poker with her hands in her lap and replied:

"Well, I expected it."

"Expected what?"

"That you would bankrupt your husband inside of a year by your extravagance. You'll coax him into getting a piano, and then will come a fur coat and opera tickets and rides in a hired auto, and if you tease hard enough he may even buy an auto on the installment plan. I saw the other day that the business failures in the country last month were 478, or 78 more than for the same month last year. The men are not to blame for it, but have been driven into bankruptcy by their wives."

"But we may not get a piano for two years," protested the wife, "and I walk to save street car fare."

"But what are you doing to assist your husband?"

"Why, I'm keeping house."

"Yes, and having nothing to do half the time but read novels. If I was a wife, situated as you are, I'd be earning and saving against the crash."

"Is there a crash coming?"

"Certainly, and it's going to be in the gents' furnishing goods too. I meant to bring along the article I saw in the paper yesterday, but I left home in a great hurry. Edith, do you imagine that men are always going to wear shirts and collars and cuffs? Has it never occurred to you that the time will come when they will make one suspender do in place of two or wear none at all? Are they going to keep on choking themselves with neckties? Are they going to continue to wear socks when all writers on hygiene declare that wearing none at all is the way to avoid colds, catarrh and consumption? I tell you that a great change is coming, and you should prepare for it. Any day your husband may come in and tell you that he is a bankrupt."

"Why, how can men get along without shirts and things?" asked Edith as she turned pale.

"By returning to the simple life. Adam had no use for those things. You may yet see millionaires walking the street, by advice of their doctors, with only a bedquilt wrapped around them."

"And if my husband goes to smash in his business, then—then"—

"Then suppose you had the money in the house to start him in a delicatessen store? There is a business that is not in danger. There are no fashions to menace it. There are no doctors holding out warnings. You simply go in and get potato salad and sausage and come out again. If you are the owner of the store you make 50 per cent profit. Arthur can slice the roast beef and such, while you make the salads. If I were in your place I would not let another day pass without trying to get something to do to save up money for the crash coming, but I wouldn't say a word to Arthur to discourage him and so bring it all the sooner."

Having said her say and been as mean about it as she could, the old maid departed and left the young wife in tears. Something to do? Why, yes. She had always been asked why she didn't develop her talent for painting. She would begin a little picture that very day. She would paint one every day until she had six on hand and then send them to different art stores. Each one would probably be accepted and paid for on sight. She might start her savings account with $200.

The young wife dried her tears, brushed her hair and within an hour had begun picture No. 1. Nothing was said about bankruptcy when her husband came home. She did not even mention that the old maid had called.

Once upon a time, before her marriage, the wife had had occasion to send off a telegram, and a friend had told her that if it was marked rush it would be sent and answered in half the usual time. She remembered this when her pictures were ready to send off. On the wrapper of each she wrote a "rush" in red ink and then waited with bated breath for the checks to come in. The art stores obey the injunction. They rushed the pictures back with a feeling that life and death depended on their haste.

Her artistic career was a failure, and Mrs. Lee had the sense even in her bereavement to recognize the fact. There must be other things at which money could be made, however, and she consulted five or six hundred advertisements and finally found one where persons were wanted to address envelopes at home for liberal pay. That was just the thing. By the time she had addressed thirty or forty millions that delicatessen store would be a sure thing in case of the failure of the other.

She applied at a certain street and number. So did about a hundred girls, fifty old women and a number of boys. The man in the office called her "my dear" and gave her a thousand envelopes to take home that he might see what sort of a hand she wrote. He also exacted a deposit of 50 cents for their return. He also took her for a young widow and remarked on his gladness to see her striving to make an honest living instead of attending champagne suppers at sporty restaurants.

It took the ambitious young wife the best part of two days to address the thousand envelopes, and when she carried them back the man smiled at her in a brotherly way and handed over 20 cents and said:

"My dear, you have only to keep on and you will wear diamonds."

But the striving wife didn't keep on. She was so discouraged and indignant that she left the place without demanding her deposit. Something else must be found. She saw the simple life galloping down on her and shirtless, collarless and sockless men passing gents' furnishing stores with looks of contempt.

That something else was an ad. A bright young woman could make from $3 to $6 a day by calling at such a street and number. Nobody would dare advertise such a thing unless it were true, and young Mrs. Lee called. Lady canvassers were wanted to sell a newly invented corset. It was a corset that would give any woman in the world a willowy form. It would add to her height, straighten the stoop in her shoulders, and she would seem to float in the air as she walked. No canvasser had made less than $3 a day, and some were ashamed of themselves for making only $6.

The caller allowed herself to be talked into the canvassing business and took the rest of that day to study up on points and then made a plunge. "Not at home" met her at the door of the first four houses she called at and "not at home" and "she wouldn't see you if she were" at the next four.

At the ninth house she was admitted, and the lady offered her a job as parlor maid. At the tenth the lady of the house was in bed with headache, but her husband wasn't. He asked the canvasser to sit down for a heart to heart talk and give him her confidence, and when she refused he said that if she had to live on turnips and sleep in barrels all the rest of her days it was her own fault. That ended the corset business.

When the sample was handed in the man in the office threw it down and muttered something that sounded like a swear word—two or three swear words connected by dashes.

There was one more trial for the striving young wife. She advertised to give piano lessons at the homes of pupils. She received postal cards to call here and there, and she called, to be snubbed by servants, winked at by young men and to be told by the lady of the house that her terms were at least one-half too high.

In two cases she was offered castoff dresses in exchange for instructions and called "a stuck up" thing when she refused. Mrs. Lee went home with tears in her eyes to find her husband there, two hours ahead of his usual time. The simple life had come! The shirtless, sockless era had dawned at last, and the furnishing store had smashed and there was no money to open the delicatessen!

"There, there! What is it, pet?" he cooed.

"Oh, Arthur, I—I was trying so hard to get money to meet this calamity, and—and I haven't got a cent!"

"Calamity? What calamity do you mean?"

"Why, the smash! Miss Headly said it would come and that we must open a delicatessen store and sell sausages and salads!"

"Sausages and salads be hanged!" he shouted. "Old maids be hanged! Gone to smash be hanged! Why, sweetheart, business is so good that I bought a piano today and have come home to see it delivered. Here it comes now."

"Lord, yes. The dollar shirt at 48 cents is as firmly fixed as the rock of Gibraltar."

"But Miss Headly—why—why"—

"Why did she talk that way? Oh, just because she had taken a contract to stuff and sew a thousand dolls for market and wanted an excuse if you found it out."

MY TERRIBLE HACKING AND SPLITTING COUGH

WAS ENTIRELY CURED BY

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Clara Jackson, Huntsville, Ont., writes us under date of January 12th, 1915. "I take great pleasure in writing you concerning Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Last winter I contracted a very bad cough which troubled me all through the summer. This winter I started to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking three bottles I can truthfully say that I fell like another woman. The terrible hacking and splitting cough, and the dry sensation in my throat is entirely cured. I would certainly recommend it to anyone troubled with bronchitis or lung trouble. I have not words too grateful to give you."

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, combining as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks.

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and we claim that it is the best cure for a cough or cold that you can possibly procure. The thousands of testimonials we have received prove that our claim is right.

All we ask you is to see that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, and don't accept some no-account substitute.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

ALL OF ONE NAME.

So They Had to Tag Each of the Many Tom Hazards.

Perhaps no community more carefully and frequently set forth its erratic fancy than did the early settlers of Narragansett, R. I., of whom W. B. Weeden tells in "Early Rhode Island." There were so many of one name that the bearer must have a descriptive predix lest he be lost in a concordant multitude. Mr. Updike cites thirty-two Tom Hazards living at one time and thus illustrates a few:

College Tom, because he had been at college. Bedford Tom was his son and lived at New Bedford. Barley Tom, because he boasted how much barley he raised from an acre; Virginia Tom, because he married a wife there; Little Neck Tom, from the farm of that name; Nailer Tom, the blacksmith; Fiddle Head Tom, an obvious resemblance; Pistol Tom, wounded by an explosion of that arm; Young Pistol Tom, his son; Short Stephen's Tom, the father low, against Long Stephen's Tom, the father tall; Tailor Tom needs no explanation.

The Georges were not so numerous, but they were distinguished as Beach Bird George, of little legs; Shoestring George, an opponent of buckles; Wig George, Dr. George and Governor George.

Provoking a Husband.

A Mohammedan woman cannot of herself separate from her husband without his consent. He may divorce her with a few words spoken by himself. If she is clever, however, she will take him by surprise at an unguarded moment and contrive to do or say something which will make him so angry that before he can exercise sufficient self control to stop himself he has uttered the wished for words.

Her View of Art.

An old gentleman who owned a fine estate not far from the country seat of the Duke of Devonshire (which is open to the public when the duke is not there) one day drove with a party of friends to this famous residence, taking with him his housekeeper, Martha, a good old soul who had been with him a great many years.

Arriving at Chatsworth, they passed slowly through room after room of almost priceless pictures. But Martha spake never a word, although it was evident that she was not missing anything. Each and every picture that her eye lit on underwent a most rigid scrutiny, much to the amusement of the rest of the party.

At last her master turned to her and said, "Well, Martha, what do you think of it all?"

Worth Her Weight in Butter.

Curious customs still prevail with regard to marriage. In some parts of Uganda the custom is to offer six needles and a pack of india rubber for a wife. Some of the Kaffirs sacrifice oxen. The Tartars of Turkestan give the weight of the prospective wife in butter. In Kamchatka the price varies from one to ten reindeer. Some savages require a certain amount of labor. Among the aborigines it is said the current rate for a wife is a box of matches, which prompted a Paris contemporary to speculate whether one of the French government boxes would be accepted.

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unequaled

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant-tasting home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instant relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any drug store, pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective cough remedy at a cost of only 54 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough medicine for $2.50. Easily prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes a painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent, loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying hacking.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its splendid effect in bronchitis, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

To avoid disappointment in making this, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

For the Young Cook

It will enable her to get better food at the same cost as her neighbors who use lard, "lard compounds" or butterine.

Her cakes will be a pride because of their richness, their lightness, their easy digestibility—and their economy.

Her reputation as a cook will grow and her pleasure in her work will grow with it.

And in part at least, she will owe it to her use of Crisco from the start.

According to a recent edict of the Canadian Produce Association a new egg-case has to be used every time a shipment is made, and then destroyed. A new case costs about 30 cents and holds thirty dozen or so. This seems a wasteful measure, but it is done to offset the loss of cases owned by produce dealers and the trouble connected with their recovery.

Then a farmer who has sufficient number to ship must buy a new case every time which either reduces his profit one cent a dozen, or adds it to the price to the consumer. It will not affect the produce dealer as he simply receives it and passes it on.

On the local market eggs maintain their usual high price. On the other side of the line they have eggs "to burn," which will have a tendency to ease off the price here.

The market being so small last Saturday on account of bad roads, there was very little offered besides butter and eggs, there being no poultry of any account. There is no change in prices at outside points.

One of the World's Dark Spots.

Even today inland New Guinea is one of the world's dark spots. The country is a nightmare of pinnacle precipices, huge ravines, great swamps and soaking forests. In 1901 the Danish explorer Peterson, with three companions, dived deep into the heart of this unknown country. They were captured by a tribe of savages, who killed their carriers and made them prisoners. For long they were believed to be dead. Then, to every one's amazement, a letter in Peterson's writing was brought by a native to the coast. It told of his miserable plight, and an expedition was at once sent inland to bring him home.—London Spectator.

A Certified Cure of Bilious Headache

Chronic Liver Trouble Was Entirely Cured by the Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills—Endorsement by Justice of The Peace

Many people are habitually bilious. Mode of life tends to make chronic a torpid condition of the liver. The result is spells of biliousness with sick headache, stomach derangements and much irritability and depression of spirits.

To many neglect to take active means of curing biliousness. The bad spell passes over and for a time they are all right. But an unusually hearty menu upsets the liver and consequently the usual discomfort and suffering.

The writer of this letter has broken up this habit of biliousness and is now enjoying the best of health. Her experience should prove of value to many who, like her, have suffered for years from bilious spells and sick headaches.

Miss Cora Cochran, Salisbury, N. B., writes:—"I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and every two or three weeks would have to lose a day or two from school with bilious sick headache. I have taken doctor's medicine and other preparations, which did little good.

"When I had the sich headache I would vomit a lot and could keep nothing on my stomach. My mother got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and I was soon improved, and continued the treatment until entirely cured. My condition generally was greatly benefitted, and I am now in the best of health."

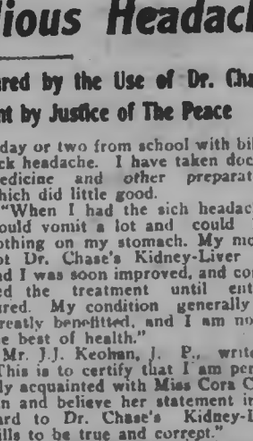
Mr. J.J. Keohan, J. P., writes:—"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Miss Cora Cochran and believe her statement in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct."

Keep the liver active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and you will prevent a multitude of petty ills. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S ROMPERS.

By Anabel Worthington.



It would seem as if no child could ever have too many of these garments, and often it is desirable to make them in different styles, as children appreciate variety as much as do older people.

This model has front and drawers in one piece, with a seam down the centre of the front and a trimming band over the top, which simulates a closing. The actual closing is in the centre of the back of the waist and across the top of the trousers at the waistline.

At the neck is a small flat collar, but this may be omitted and in its place a square or round opening may be left. The sleeves are full length and are finished with a band, but they may be shortened.

These little garments are generally made of something strong which will stand hard wear. Jean is excellent and also hickory after it has been well washed. Gingham, calico and the like are all suitable, and outing flannel for cold or damp days.

The rompers pattern, No. 7,620, is cut in sizes two, four, six and eight years. Medium size requires 2 yards of 36 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Instant Relief! "Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Your Stomach Trouble Forever

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

NOT LIKE BOER WAR

Wounds More Quickly Infected and With More Tearing

Sir Anthony Bowlby, Surgeon-in-Ordinary to King George, has been drawing some interesting comparisons between the present campaign and the one in South Africa. In the South Africa War wounds were not so severe, and there was less smashing than in the present campaign. There bullets had frequently travelled for more than half a mile and lost much of their velocity, whereas in the present war the bullet only travelled a few yards. The ordinary bullet wound of the South African War was quite small, as though it had been made with a bradawl. In the present war there was much more tearing of the tissues, and one thing that has struck Sir Anthony is the extreme rapidity with which wounds become infected.

War Decorations For Women

Foreign countries are most prodigal of feminine decorations. There are in all twenty foreign Orders, and it is said that Spain was the first country to honor the gentler sex by including them in Orders of chivalry. The Legion of Honor, which has been pinned to not a few feminine breasts in the present war, the Russian Order of St. Catharine, and the Austrian Star Cross are a few of the greater Orders which can be accorded to women. In no country does the decoration bestowed on a woman carry any title, as in the case of a masculine knighthood, but in several countries certain female decorations bestow a sort of status equivalent to rank in the army.

Cowardly Fox of Balkans

King Ferdinand is one of the best-guarded of Sovereigns. Day and night he wears a steel breastplate. When he was Prince of Bulgaria he had as a special guard to his own person a sort of Macedonian Hercules named Christo, whose vigilance and physical vigor were legendary in all the European Courts.

Affairs in Germany are very much worse than the papers lead us to believe, and I am convinced that the war is going to crack up when we least expect it.—Mr. Gordon Selfridge, the London retail merchant.

The navy has won the biggest victory of the war.—Mr. Herbert Samuel, M.P.

By taking over munition works entirely we have saved the State nearly $5,000,000.—Mr. Lloyd-George.

BE CAREFUL IN USING SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure, and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

STOLE GERMAN FLAG

Great Determination Shown by English Private. Later Killed

Details have arrived in London, England, of the daring deed performed by Private Charles Sedgwick, of the First Buffs, before he was killed in action. The Germans had stuck a flag over their trench to provoke the English and Sedgwick made up his mind to secure it. Crawling out under a heavy fire one evening, he reached the enemy's trench, but hesitated to pull up the flagstaff, thinking it might be a trick of the enemy and might be connected with a mine. He therefore tied a piece of string to the staff and crawled back to his own trench under fire. While trying to pull the flag into his trench the string broke and Sedgwick, determined to secure the trophy, crawled back again, and this time pulled up the flag in triumph. Some time afterward he was killed while throwing a bomb into a German trench.

Russia Worth Knowing

Russia is something more than either the Czar and the Third Section of Police, or the nihilist and anarchist conspiracies, and she contains vast stores of energy and inspiration in her common people which it is well for those who study foreign politics and international relations to understand.

A Never Failing Way To Banish Ugly Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

No woman is immune to superfluous growths, and because these are likely to appear at any time, it is advisable to always have some delatone powder handy to use when the occasion arises. A paste is made with some of the powder and water and spread upon the hairy surface; in about 2 minutes this is carefully removed and the skin washed. You will then find that your skin is entirely free from hair or fuzz. Be sure, however, to get real delatone.

KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

This Parisian Beggar Realized the Value of New Shoes.

Begging has long been a great art in Europe. By using subtle touches of misery and calculated effects of disease and dismemberment the beggar became a master of pathetic appeal. A delightful story of Dupre, the sculptor, is quoted by Hamilton W. Mable in the Outlook.

Looking out of his window in a hotel one bleak wintry morning in the good old times, Dupre saw an old beggar sitting barefooted on the stone steps below. His heart was moved with compassion, and he began to search for a pair of shoes. He found two pairs, one of them new.

"Do not give the new pair away; you will need them yourself," urged his prudent wife.

"No," said the sculptor. "I shall find the old pair more comfortable. Moreover, if I am to give anything away I am going to give the best I have."

So he hurried downstairs and put the new shoes in the hands of the barefooted old man. The next morning the beggar sat on the steps as usual, and, as usual, his feet were bare. Dupre hurried down to him. "Where are the shoes I gave you? You are not wearing them," he said.

"No," replied the old man. "I could not wear them, excellency. If I did nobody would give me anything. I have pawned them."

SCUTARI

Scutari, whither the Serbian Government was removed, is one of the oldest cities in Europe. The date of its foundation is lost in the mists of time, but it claims to have been the capital of the old Illyrian kings 1,000 years before Christ. Though for centuries ruled by its native kings and always inhabited by the Thrako-Illyrian tribes who are now represented by the modern Albanians, the city has known many a change of masters, and has passed under the domination of Romans, Byzantines, Gauls, Goths, Bulgars, Serbs, Venetians and Turks. Even after its capture by the Turks, however, in 1477, it continued for a long time to be ruled by native Albanian chieftains, and it has always retained a degree of independence.

EASTERN DONNYBROOK

Dialects and Tongues A-plenty in Wartime Salonica

A young British subaltern writes from somewhere in the Eastern Mediterranean as follows: Before you have been in Salonica half an hour you will have learned the equivalent of "Get out of the way" in half a dozen languages. "At-tention!" "Bras!" "Dessour!" "Varda!" "Hey-Oop!" Unless you can interpret the warning in French, Greek, Turkish, Jew-Spanish (a peculiar local tongue), and every British dialect from Western Irish to East Yorkshire, you will not go long without a collision. It may be a great French or English motor lorry, bumping fiercely over the uneven flag stones; it may be a string of wizened little horses, with untidy Greek soldiers perched sideways on their heavy wooden pack-saddles; or a motorcycle, pitching like a channel steamer on the uneven roadway; or a party of officers, who have ridden in from the camps; or a local cab, with two such pitiable wrecks of horses in the shafts that it would be worth a month's imprisonment to their owner to work them in London; or a Jewish hawker, with a bunch of turkeys hanging head downwards in each hand; or a patchwork patrol of French, English and Greek soldiers, looking very self-conscious and awkward in each other's company—the streets of this Levantine Donnybrook Fair are not the place for a quiet stroll.

Acid Keeps Out Cold

A foot covering which proved of great value in resisting the cold in the Alpine fighting is a square of linen, prepared in a solution of salicylic acid and sterilized fat, over which may be worn either a woollen or a cotton sock. The prepared squares are enclosed in small waterproof envelopes, and are thus easily carried in the pocket. Thousands of these squares have been sent to the front.

PILES

Are you a sufferer? Know that terrible aching, dragging-down pain, that robs you of pleasure, even of rest, and makes life miserable? Don't you believe in the law of average? If a remedy has cured hundreds of people, don't you think it likely it might at least cure you?

Just give Zam-Buk a fair trial!

Mr. J. McEwen, of Dundas, suffered from piles for fifteen years. He says: "I tried pretty nearly everything, but got no permanent relief until I tried Zam-Buk. This balm relieved the pain; continued use completely and permanently cured me."

The rich herbal essences of which Zam-Buk is composed, quickly remove congestion, relieve the dull, gnawing, burning pain, and cure.

How Nations Sleep.

If there is one thing one would expect different nations to do in the same way it is to sleep.

With other nations, however, the good old British feather bed would be looked upon as the height of discomfort. The Japanese stretch themselves upon a rush mat placed on the floor, and for a pillow they have a hard square block of wood.

The Chinaman, on the contrary, rises to the dignity of a bed. But what a bed! It is only raised a few inches off the floor, and though it is more often than not elaborately carved in wood, it never has any soft mattress placed on it to take away its hardness. Like his cousins in Japan, the Chinaman is content with a plain rush mat in the place of a mattress.

Russian peasants believe in sleeping on their stoves, especially in winter, but delightfully warm as is his bed, your Russian peasant thinks nothing of crawling off it in the morning and breaking the ice outside for an early wash.

A War Problem.

A puzzle in psychology of the battlefield is suggested by the following question which was recently put to the Under-Secretary for War by Mr. J. P. Farrell, an Irish Nationalist member of Parliament:

"Whether in the case of Private L. Hope, sentenced to death for alleged desertion of the post of duty and executed in August last in France, the sentence was sanctioned in the manner provided by the regulations; whether this man was not told at the time of his trial or until within one and a half hours of his execution of the sentence which was carried out on him; whether his company records show that, so far from being a coward or deserter, he had on several occasions needlessly exposed himself on the trench parapets, defying the German snipers; whether he had the benefit of any advocate in his trial, and whether, in such cases, a prisoner condemned has any right of appeal or is given any chance to defend himself."

Two Women Talking.

"I suppose you really felt it necessary for you to secure a divorce?"

"Well, perhaps not absolutely necessary, but our home"—

"Exactly. You did it for the children's sake."

FRENCH CAPTURE FOE'S TRENCHES AT VERDUN

NO GERMAN GAINS ON THE WESTERN FRONT

TWO GERMAN REGIMENTS ATTEMPTING TO ENCIRCLE BETHINCOURT ARE CUT TO PIECES BY THE FRENCH ARTILLERY

Enemy Lost More Than Two Thousand in an Engagement Lasting Only a Few Hours--French Bayonet Attacks Drove Remnants of Attacking Forces Back to Their Trenches.

HALTS TEUTONIC OFFENSIVE WEST OF MEUSE

LONDON, March 16.—A murderous fire from the French artillery on Dead Man Hill cut to pieces two German regiments which attempted to encircle Bethincourt and halted the Teutonic offensive west of the Meuse, according to Paris despatches to-day.

The Germans lost more than two thousand in an engagement lasting only a few hours. French bayonet attacks drove the remnants of the attacking forces back to their trenches.

The German assault west of the Meuse was planned with great care. The Germans first bombarded violently, concentrating their fire on a narrow sector between Bethincourt and Dead Man Hill. They then attacked first on the northern slopes of Goose Hill, and having been repulsed, made a furious charge against the French front between Bethincourt and Dead Man Hill, approaching on three different routes. Less than 100 yards separated the successive waves of grey-clad soldiers that beat against the French positions. While the French centre was being heavily battered, one German brigade tried to overwhelm the French at Bethincourt village.

Scores of French seventy-fives played upon them. No troops in the world could have stood up under such an infernal bombardment. They fell in rows, and were trampled on by their oncoming comrades.

FRENCH ATTACKS WERE REPULSED SAYS BERLIN

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, March 16.—The French have made heavy attacks against the German positions on Dead Man's Hill, northwest of Verdun, but the assaults have been repulsed, the War Office announced this afternoon. The situation on the rest of the Verdun front is unchanged.

French attacks in Champagne, south of St. Souplet and west of the Somme-Py-Souain road, were also unsuccessful. The Germans took 152 prisoners and two machine guns.

PARIS, March 16.—French troops stormed the German trenches east of Apremant Forest, southeast of Verdun, last night, capturing a number of prisoners, the War Office announced this afternoon.

No infantry attacks occurred on the front north of Verdun last night, the War Office stated. The heavy bombardment continued on both banks of the Meuse, particularly west of Douaumont, where the French violently cannonaded the German trenches. The French artillery smashed the German trench at La Plage, near Nieuport, Belgium, killing a large number of enemy troops. In the Vosges, the Germans made an unsuccessful attack on the French positions near Burhaupt.

AMSTERDAM, March 16.—A later despatch said that the Tubantia, the Dutch steamer which struck a mine, has gone to the bottom. The passengers and crew were saved.

Are British To Drive For Lille?

Berlin Statement Notes a Heavy Bombardment of Lens by British

LONDON, March 16.—The possibility of a new British drive for Lille and a new French offensive in the Champaign are indicated by a section of this afternoon's statement from Berlin, which says.

"Near Neuve Chapelle we blew up an advanced British defence position, with the occupants. British artillery directed a heavy fire on Lens.

"French artillery is very active opposite our new positions near Ville Aux Bois, and opposite various sectors of the Champagne."

Apology to the Writer

The printer didn't 'follow copy" very closely with the ten-line paragraph which was sent in for publication in last night's Examiner, announcing "An Irish Tea." It should have read "An Irish Night"; and a further annoying mistake was made in saying that it was to be held in the "morning" instead of in the evening. With apologies to the Secretary of St. Paul's Mission Band.

CARRANZA COMMANDER SHOT.

MARFA, Texas, March 16.—The reported death of Col. Rojas, Carranza commander at Ojinaga, at the hands of his own men who attempted to mutiny last night, is confirmed. Rojas was trying to control his men, who were drinking and threatening to invade the United States when he was shot from the crowd.

WOMEN WOULD TAKE STREET CAR JOBS

Peterborough May Yet Realize Some of the Experiences Common to London

The registration of women willing to replace men who are physically fit for military service indicates that they are as serious as their English sisters, and that Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal fell upon ears attuned to the spirit of sacrifice. Some are prepared to do clerical work in stores, banks and offices; quite a few would be willing to act as street car conductors, and probably as motormen, and one would even serve as a garbage collector. It may be that before long women will be collecting fares and clanging bells, adding another little touch of the realism of war as witnessed in London. The register is still open for other names.

HON. W. J. SHAUGHNESSY WILL GO OVERSEAS

MONTREAL, P. Q., March 16.—Captain the Hon. W. J. Shaughnessy, eldest son of Lord Shaughnessy, enlisted to-day for overseas service with the 199th Battalion. He will go as Adjutant: an office he has filled for more than a year in the 65th Irish Canadian Rangers. Lord Shaughnessy's second son, Capt. the Hon Fred Shaughnessy, and his son-in-law, Captain Rone Redmond, are "somewhere in France" with the 60th Canadian Battalion.

A STRONG PLEA FOR THE BAND OF THE 57TH REGT.

Mr. W. F. Johnston Points Out What the Band Has Done for Recruiting—Many Men in Two Overseas Bands

"UNWORTHY OF COUNCIL"

Sir,—I see by your paper that our Council proposes, in the interests of supposed economy, to discontinue wholly the annual grant of $500 to the 57th Regiment Band.

It is also suggested that $250 be set apart to hire music to meet the requirements of the city in the musical line from time to time, thus making the total saving in this respect $250.

The 57th Battalion Band is composed of a number of our own citizens who have struggled for years to keep up a Band that has been a pleasure to our citizens and a credit to this city. These men have given of their time and money for that purpose freely. No one of them individually received any money for his efforts (except the leader, from time to time), and it has been a matter of self sacrifice with them for our general good from beginning to end. Particularly has the Band always freely been at the disposal of the Mayor and Council for civic purposes.

Another thing this city has recruited at less expense to its City Council and citizens generally than any other place of its size in Canada the handsomely large numbers of men who have gone from here and to this the 57th Band has as an organization largely contributed. In the early days they played men into the ranks and played them out of town time after time; not only so but since they have been the nucleus from which the Bands of the 59th and 93rd overseas contingents have been recruited. To these Bands they have contributed men and to them turned over their music and instruments, whilst others were being got for them, and in other ways helped along. They have never been asked to do a thing that they did not at once do willingly.

The effect of discontinuing the grant is to put this organization out of business at once and it will be very far from economy indeed to either do without a Band altogether, or having summarily disposed of this one have to start all over again in the future a new organization requiring at least ten times the time and money saved by this grant.

Apart from all other considerations it is unworthy of our Council, as a prominent citizen told me, to put over so raw a deal as this, no matter what the saving may be.

Again, Sir, I have no hesitation in saying that no citizen in this city desire the disorganisation of our Band or the withdrawal of the grant to them and that the Council are mistaken if it is on any such assumption they are proceeding.

If this Council would earn the thanks of the citizens let it take up the matter of placing this city under a commission and let it make an effort to get rid of our present system of doing business which, from no fault of the individual members of the Council perhaps, is of itself inherently, inefficient, haphazard and wasteful to the last degree.

Yours truly,
W. F. JOHNSTON.

Peterborough talent contributed largely to a concert given by the 59th Battalion Band in Brockville the other night. Captain Maurice Park was heard in several numbers, and Bandmaster Perver played a cornet solo, "Land of Hope and Glory."

The Havelock Standard says: Big George Buchanan, Havelock's first soldier hero to return from the battle fields of Europe, will be presented with a gold medal, suitably engraved, at a big public recruiting meeting to be held in the town hall on Friday night of next week, 24th inst.

The gold medal, which is on exhibition in Covert's window, is indeed a handsome one, and a fitting memento from the citizens of Havelock to their returned soldier boy. It is the intention of the organizers of the "Citizens' Recognition Fund for Havelock Soldiers," to present one of these medals to every soldier boy from town upon his return from the front.

The big recruiting meeting on Friday night of next week will be addressed by a member of the Speakers Patriotic League of Peterborough; by Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, commanding of the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough, and others. The 93rd Band, which is said to be a first-class military band, will also be present and furnish martial airs.

Mr. R. J. Devey has received the following interesting letter from Lance Corp. Douglas Eldred of the 4th C.M.R., who left here with the 8th C.M.R.

London, England.
Feb. 21, 1916.

Dear Mr. Devey,—I was very glad to get your letter last week. We came out of the trenches on Sunday and I got your letter on Monday. We came off very lucky again this time—just one Sergeant killed and four men wounded. You will see by the address that I am in London. I have eight days' leave. I have to go back on Saturday morning, but you can guess I am having a good time while I am here, trying to forget about the war. I see a great change in the old city. Women are doing the work of men in every capacity. Women are driving delivery vans, street car conductors, railway porters and all kinds of hard work they are doing. Very glad to hear that you had another great success in the musical comedy line. Wish I could have been there. Our Battalion was reinforced by the 8th C. M. R. last week. So they are nearly all in France now. Fred Dainton and Dick Perry were among the number.

I am glad to hear that your Harold has answered the call. At the same time I am sorry that it should be necessary for him to go. However, it will be quite a while before he

AIM AT BAGDAD FROM THE NORTH

Russians Are Co-operating With the British Forces Who Are Operating in Mesopotamia.

CROSSING THE MOUNTAINS

PETROGRAD, March 15. — The Russian troops in Persia are now so far advanced toward the Mesopotamian frontier that they may be said to be in virtual co-operation with the British at Kut-El-Amara, where General Townsend's forces have been besieged for several months, and the campaign against Bagdad has become two-fold, with the likelihood of the Russians being as important a factor in the Mesopotamia operations as their allies.

Before the Russian penetration through the mountain passes of the Kermanshah region it was generally held that the chief aim of the Russian operations on the extreme southern front was, effectively and once for all, to crush German influence and ambitions in Persia, and only the most visionary critics here conceived the possibility of Russia's successful traversing the Persian mountain provinces and assuming an important role in Mesopotamian affairs.

The latest news, however, of the success of the Russians in working their way through the passes of the formidable range which acts as a natural boundary between persia and Turkey, shows that the Russians are in a position to convert their potential threat against Mesopotamia into a positive menace.

British Pressure From South.

The Turkish reinforcements which were sent from Bagdad and Mosul, by way of Suleimanieh and Serna, to threaten the flank of the Russian forces at Kermanshah and make a further Russian advance dangerous, have been compelled to withdraw on account of British pressure from the south and Russian activity in the north, which some time ago resulted in the capture of Bitlis. The Russians, therefore, are now opposed only by frontal resistance, against which they have advanced through all but one of the difficult passes of the mountains separating them from Mesopotamia.

The road from Kermanshah westward, sometimes narrowing to a mere mountain path, winds between the crests of the high ridges of the Persian mountain province of Luristan. Along this the Russians have already proceeded fifty miles in the face of great odds. A like distance along the same road, which, turning southward, runs between two mountain tributaries of the Dijala River to the Turkish border, stands between them and the last difficult pass near Hankin.

If Hankin is once attained the Russians will have free access to the rear of the Turkish Bagdad army, and to the British pressure from the south-east upon Bagdad will be added Russian pressure from the north. The occupation of the Van region has already facilitated Russian progress in this direction, and the Russian critics now prophesy that the campaign will be carried forward to a successful conclusion. Russia's part will be to strike north of Bagdad and cut the railway, severing the only important line of communication by which the Turkish army is receiving its supplies.

CHARGED WITH BREACH OF THE IMMIGRATION ACT

Charles Lamontia Came to Peterboro' Contrary to Ruling of Immigration Dept.—Allowed Out on Bail

POLICE COURT

Charles Lamontia, late of Chicago, appeared in Police Court this morning charged with having unlawfully entered Canada at Garnia without a permit after being legally rejected at Windsor by the immigration authorities. Lamintia's mother faces a similar charge. Defendants were remanded for one week and in the meantime will be allowed out on bail to the amount of five hundred dollars each. Inspector Reynolds of the Immigration Department was present on behalf of the Government.

Lamontia, who is a brother-in-law of Mr. Joseph Longo, the local fruit dealer, admitted entering Canada after being rejected. He attributed his rejection to lack of funds and claimed to have overcome this difficulty before attempting to enter the second time. Inspector Reynolds pointed out that the second attempt was contrary to the Immigration Act.

Fined Two Dollars.

John Leahy and Archibald Bishop were each fined two dollars for driving over the Hunter Street bridge at a rate faster than a walk.

James Barrie was remanded for a week. He was charged with failing to support five children, all of whom have passed into the hands of the Children's Aid Society. The charge was laid by Mr. William Henry, superintendent of the Children's Shelter.

BECK AND THE GOVERNMENT

In no sense can the Provincial Hydro Electric be regarded as having any partizan associations. The general membership of both great political parties has adopted it and approves of it, with more or less enthusiasm, according to temperament. Though the present and former governments, or the present government, under former leadership, does not seem to fully grasp its importance and regard it with a favour that measures up to popular opinion, it is probably somewhat due to the attitude of the government, that the Hydro-Electric is not a thing of party. The secondary place the Hydro-Electric seems to occupy in the mind and affections of the government, does not argue sufficient enthusiasm to justify the government in making it a partizan rallying point. In his speech in the budget debate, Mr. Rowell brought out the point of the extraordinary fact that the Hydro-Electric accounts—mounting into the millions—had not been audited by the Provincial Auditor. This apparent indifference to the fortunes of so important an enterprise in its developmental stages, is not extraordinary when we remember the fact, as claimed, and supported by no little evidence, that Sir Adam Beck and his great popularity as the king-pin of the Hydro-Electric movement, are not congenial to the members of the Hearst Government. One proof that there is no love lost between them is the fact that Sir Adam is not a member of the government, though for several years he held the dual position of a cabinet minister and head of the Commission. Is there any reason to think that Sir Adam's retirement from the cabinet, was the retirement from a position that was made uncomfortable and perhaps more ineffective, by the neutrality, if not actual hostility, to the fotser father of the Hydro-Electric? Considering Sir Adam Beck's relations, past and present, to the enterprise, it seems remarkable that the greatly important announcement of the purchase of the Seymour Power interests in Eastern Ontario, was made over the head of Sir Adam Beck, as Chairman of the Commission, contrary to the practice of former occasions, but by a member of the government. It was true the matter was within the province of his department, but the absence of courtesy implied in ignoring the head and front, both officially and actually, of the Hydro enterprise, argues a state of friction hardly compatible with the highest interests of the Hydro-Electric. In the relations of public life such evidence of surrender to the "green-eyed monster," or indifferent regard for the provincial interests involved, indicates a more serious condition than the existence of a similar mood of mind would represent in private affairs. It is recognized that Sir Adam Beck had a double task in developing the Hydro-Electric. He had to overcome both the obstacles incidental to the launching of such an enterprise; and do the, perhaps, as difficult work of attempting to infuse his colleagues with his own enthusiasm. Now with success practically achieved, in face of double obstacles, the government seems inclined to ignore Sir Adam Beck and arrogate to themselves the glory of a new triumph.

ON TRIAL.

The Vancouver Province reviewing the defeat of the two ministers in the Bowser Government by the two cities Vancouver and Victoria, professes that they only mean that the people wished merely to emphasize their wish that an opposition be secured in the legislature, and one that is under way the Bowser Government, which has a big majority, will finish up this session, and succeed in the general election. It does not strike us that way: The Bowser Government, and the McBride Government of which it is the heir, is on trial for its record, for its handling of the government resources, for its financial policy, and it will have to show good in all these respects, or follow in the wake of Roblin in Manitoba, and probably Scott in Saskatchewan.—Toronto World (Conservative).

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

St. Patrick's Day, chronologically indicates, broadly, the beginning of a new season, the nominal ending of winter and the nominal beginning of spring. This year it also indicates another season in a national and patriotic sense. The influence of the teachings and life of St. Patrick have exercised their sway almost with the force of a spell upon the character and life of the Irish race—and through them, upon the world—for a dozen centuries.

On no aninversary of Ireland's patron saint has the day dawned as significantly and auspiciously as the present. Ireland and the Irish people have had a chequered history. In ages whose spirit has happily passed, they were the spoil of oppression, but through it all, through all the days of darkness, the Irish people have held aloft, brightly burning the light St. Patrick kindled in his great missionary days. Today, Ireland's woes, her sorrows can be spoken of as we speak of the unregretted dead. They are only bitter memories, chastened by the realization of the fact that Ireland is coming to her own—has come to her own—is once more a nation with potential self-government, which would be an actuality to-day but for Ireland's splendid self-denial in the interests of harmony and unity, in her holding in abeyance the exercise of her national rights to take her gallant share in the fight for which she has striven so long—the fight for liberty. Ireland has redognised that her liberty was menaced by the threatened blow to the Empire, which stands for freedom—though it has been long in learning its duty, now effectively done, towards Ireland in this regard—and is now in the fight for itself, the Empire and the world. For centuries Irishmen have fought brilliantly the battles of the Empire, both in the ranks and in the highest commands, the fighting that has brought the brightest laurels to British valour.

Ireland is in the fight in a new and more significant sense, and is scattering her brilliant record of gallantry, devotion and dash. John Redmond, the great Irish leader, who has won a foremost place among the great statesmen of the Empire, has been a great factor in the splendid contribution of Ireland to the fighting forces for freedom. In a recent writing he pays eloquent tribute to the heroism of the Irish soldiers who are giving of their courage and efficiency—their blood and life in this war. He says:

"It is these Irish soldiers of ours, with their astounding courage and their beautiful faith, with their natural military genius, with their tenderness as well as strength; carrying with them their green flags and their Irish war-pipes; advancing to their charge, their fearless officers at their head, and followed by their beloved chaplains, as great-hearted as themselves; bringing with them a quality all their own to the sordid modern battlefield; exhibiting the character of the Irishman at its noblest and greatest—it is these soldiers of ours to whose keeping the Cause of Ireland has passed to-day. It was never in worthier, holier keeping than that of these boys, offering up the supreme sacrifice of life with a smile on their lips because it was given for Ireland. May God bless them!

"The Irish Guards at Mons, the Royal Irish Regiment at Ypres, the London Irish at Loos (dribbling a football before them as they charged, the boys in the trenches before the charge holding out their matches with which they had lit their cigarettes to show each other that their hands were not shaking), the regular battalions at 'V' Beach, the new 'Service' battalions of the Tenth Division, at Suvla, I name out a long list.

"To General Mahon's Division, composed exclusively of new levies who were civilians when the war began, thousands of Nationalist families in Leinster, Munster and Connaught represented in its ranks—the terrific open fighting at Suvla Bay (which began with the shelling of the lighters at the landing and the bursting of chains of contact mines as they set foot on shore) was their first experience of being under fire. Undismayed, their coolness undisturbed, they formed for attack as if on parade ground."

Redmond's tribute to the courage and fighting qualities of his countrymen gives no new knowledge; it is retelling an old story, but it heatrens every true patriot, to see the long story of history repeated in these days before our eyes, and incites us to more sympathetic remembrance of the festival day of Ireland's and civilisation's Saint. A new lustre is added to-day to the national leaf of Ireland the Shamrock, the symbol of Trinity. It might well in fact, as it is in sentiment, be the leaf of Great Britain, symbolizing the newly cemented unity of the three great races that have made a deeper impress, given a stronger impulse to Christian civilisation and its works than all the races of the world put together.

Failure of Germany's Egyptian Scheme of Empire Division

Strive as she may Germany, is caged. Her incessant hammering will only exhaust and paralyze her and hasten her doom. She tried first for Paris, and failed; then for Calais and London, and failed; then for Petrograd, and failed; then for Egypt and India, and failed. During all this time she has steadily been loosing her foreign possessions until, at the present time there is not one foreign colony, dominion, or protectorate under her flag.

When she had to admit that she could advance no further against Russia she turned to the one remaining forlorn hope—that of forcing her way through Asia Minor to the Suez Canal, Egypt and India. This would give her touch with the outside world and enormous supplies very badly needed besides being a hard blow to the allies and a great advantage to the prestige of Germany in the world markets. But, to do this they must first win over Bulgaria to establish a route to Turkey, and then fight their way foot-by-foot through the whole length of Servia. So after a long diplomatic contest Bulgaria was won to Germany's side and to her own doom. Then the long and terrible battles laying waste the whole of Servia. At the start of that campaign serious activity against Russia stopped the Czar took over command of his entire army and the grand Duke Nicholas was sent to the Caucassus which was then to the layman an unimportant post and might, erroneously, have been considered a rebuke. Here the Grand Duke's exceptional military genious has shown forth again. He has come in through the Caucassus, driving the whole Turkish Caucassian army ahead of him—except the tens of thousands he has slaughtered or taken as prisoners. He is heading up through Asia Minor toward Coustantinople and getting directly across the route of any possible Egyptian invasion. In the meantime, England has placed a large army in Egypt all along the Suez canal, to be doubly sure.

Between them, the allies are now tightly closing and sealing the only possible opening left to their enemies, and their steadily contracting steel ring is practically complete. Their enemy's doom is inevitable, though it will take a while yet.

MR. GILLESPIE'S REMARKS IN THE BUDGET DEBATE

On Tuesday Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., spoke briefly in the budget debate. His remarks were as follows:

On rising to address the House in the Budget debate, permit me first to congratulate the Premier on his return to health so as to be able to lead this House at the present critical time; also to congratulate him on the change of front he was able to present to the House on the temperance question. We, on this side of the House are delighted to see the Government eye to eye with our view of last year and we propose to support the Government on the Temperance bill to the fullest extent; and permit me, Mr. Speaker to hope that the newspaper reports are true that the Government will introduce a bill and procure the enactment of the desired legislation at an early date ,without a vote of the people, at the present time.

I contend that the large deputation that waited upon the Government last week, should be enough to show to this House the trend of popular opinion on this important question; also the vote yesterday in Manitoba of two to one in favor of prohibition should be another indication of popular feeling on the subject. Why cause any difference of opinion at the present time? There is not a man to-day in the liquor business who does not know that if a vote is taken now, prohibition will be adopted by a very large majority.

The money expended in submitting the referendum would be better expended in fighting our enemies—hardly, if at all more injurious to the interests of the people than the traffic in strong drink.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

I also congratulate the Provincial Treasurer on his able address in presenting his Budget he has gone through the fire during the past year in the financial world and emerged a bigger and better man.

I also congratulate him in submitting to the judgment of this side of the House, in eliminating the item of last year's contention on which so much time was spent in the public accounts committee and if he does as we expect he will do next year he will present the public accounts as suggested by the honourable member from Bruce, and also as they were presented in 1906 and previous years.

I also wish to say, Mr. Speaker that if the Provincial Treasure does the right thing by this House he will before this House adjourns bring in a bill to replace the responsibility of making up the public accounts with the Provincial Auditor, where it properly belongs.

AGRICULTURE

On the question of Agriculture, Mr Speaker I wish to concur in the remarks of the Provincial Treasurer that Agriculture last year made some progress, one in some respects to the efforts of the Government, but more especially to Providence. It is quite true the farmers grew a large quantity of wheat and other grains, produced a large quantity of cheese, pork, beef and butter and in this way did their part in helping to fight for their King and Country.

But I also wish to point out that while no curtailment was made in the expenditure on Government House, the Department of Agriculture as usual had to stand the brunt of a reducer expenditure on Agriculture of $95,000 and on colonization roads, $261,000. I wish to point out to this House the the Department of Agriculture is the largest and by far the most important department of the Government and the past year should demonstrate to every citizen of Canada the extremely great importance of Agriculture. Improve agriculture and you benefit all classes in Canada.

The bill brought in by the Minister of Public Works for the benefit of labour is a step in the right direction. While it does not go far enough to satisfy this side of the House, we again congratulate the Honourable Minister on at least a start along the line suggested for many years by the Liberal party, namely a Department of Labour—a department that shall give its whole attention to the interests and rights of the working part of our population.

HYDRO ELECTRIC

No announcement has ever been made in this province with such great possibilities as the announcement of the purchase of the interests and equipments of the Seymour Electric Power Company by the Hydro Electric Commission. We in the central portion of Ontario have always supported the Hydro Electric project, but have frequently felt neglected and unfairly dealt with by the Commission in comparison with Western Ontario but now that the Commission has purchased the entire power development, facilities of the district we look forward to a double action on the part of the Commission in developing the Central and Eastern part of the province. With a thorough development of Hydro power and electric railways we should now be in a position to develop to the fullest extent our power and traffic possibilities and benefit the producer and consumer alike.

NO REFERENDUM.

In closing I again wish to emphasize my previous remarks concerning the proposed temperance legislation and to express the hope that the Government will be convinced that at the present we want no referendum to cause a division of our forces when all parties ar eco-operating to their utmost to bring about a satisfactory conclusion of this terrible war. It has demonstrated that Canadians can hold their own in the battle field with the best soldiers in the world; that Canadians at home can stand up against the strain of finance, shortage of help, and every other obstacle likely to develop before the was is ended, and after the war we want the biggest men, the most conscientious men to readjust and settle the great questions that will arise.

A Bull's Eye.

If an advertiser could make every advertisement, and every word in it, do its best work for him, he would make a record and invariably hit the bull's eye. Perhaps such a score is not possible, but the rifle with which he shoots, may be the best possible, thus enhancing his chances for a perfect score.

The one best rifle, the nearest to perfect in advertising, is the newspaper. Others have been tried and are being tried by new and inexperienced advertisers; but as they watch results and grow in wisdom, they put their faith primarily in the newspaper. The example of these experienced ones is worth following.

MORAN IS CHEERFUL, WHILE WILLARD APPEARS WORRIED

Champion Out Early To-day Doing Road Work in Central Park—Moran, Going to Have an "Off-Day" To-morrow

NEW YORK, March 16.—Both Jess Willard and Frank Moran arranged a stiff programme of work at their respective training quarters for to-day.

The bik Kansan was early afoot in Central Park, which is adjacent to the hostelry where he lives. He intends to take on his three sparring partners, Mouchan, Hemple and Rodel, for extra rounds during the afternoon and has arranged for another tussle with Husane, the big wrestling Turk. In addition, he will have full turns at the gymnastic work and the medicine ball, by which he hopes to reduce his weight to less than 245 pounds before the date for his meeting Moran.

The Pittsburg man was up early this morning, looking fresh and full of energy after his almost complete day of rest yesterday. He mapped out a full quota of road running for to-day, and promised his sparring partner a lively session at the gym. this afternoon. While Willard invariably refers all questions to his manager or trainer, and speaks very little of his plans, Moran has a cheerful greeting for nearly every visitor, many of whom say that Moran does not seem to have anything in his mind to worry him.

Moran said this morning that he would make to-morrow another "off day" so far as work is concerned but that he would buckle down to hard training again on Friday and Saturday in anticipation of a good day's rest on Sunday.

AURA LEE LUCKY TO BEAT BERLIN FOR JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP

TORONTO, March 16.— Aura Lee are what might be termed doubtful champions of the junior O.H.A., for although they landed the honours from Berlin Union Jacks, yet on the showing of the two teams last night at the Arena the visitors looked and acted like a better team. The Jacks simply bombarded the locals' goal all night, but due to the brilliant work of Wilkinson, were only able to play a tie game with the North-enders, the score being 2 to 2, or 6 to 4 on the round.

It was well that Aura Lee secured a two-goal lead in Berlin, as last night they performed like a team not entitled to be called champions. They lacked aggressiveness, speed, and forgot all about back-checking, while their defence invariably allowed the visitors to get right in close before shooting.

Two men made all the difference, and were responsible for the close score. One was Schnarr of Berlin, who was absent from the first game. He was chockful of pepper and kept boring in all through. His methods led his team to do the same thing, and while there are better junior players than Schnarr, yet the latter proved a good leader, and one who will instil confidence into a team. His presence strengthened Berlin greatly. On the other hand, Gouinlock, the clever centre for Aura Lee, who had been in bed for three days, and went on the ice very much weakened, and in place of being the best man was one of the weakest. He played his worst game in two years, so, therefore, Aura Lee were weak at centre ice, while it was just the reverse for the visitors. This difference between the two teams left practically the centre ice open during the evening, and the visitors were swinging down the open space repeatedly.

On the play, Berlin should have scored enough goals to win the round easily, but Wilkinson played a phenomenal game in goal. He was as cool as a cucumber, and the hardest kinds of shots he made look easy. His defence gave him very little protection, as they were bunching around the nets, thus blocking his sight, and it's a wonder that during the many scrimmages the visitors had in front of the nets they didn't score more.

The Jacks started out the first period by bombarding Aura Lee, and they kept them on the defensive for practically the whole game. Neither team counted in the first period, although Wilkinson was called upon to stop a bagful, while Childs did not have one hard one to handle. In the second period Shirk broke the ice with a shot from outside the defence, and this woke up Aura Lee, Gouinlock getting one, when after receiving a clever pass from Wright he drew out Childs and poked the puck into the net. This was all the scoring in this period, it ending 1 to 1. Early in the last session Wright scored for the locals, and although the visitors threw an extra man up on the attack it was not until near the close of the game that the visitors tied it up. Just previous to this Sheldon broke away and had a clear field from centre ice but he banged the puck right at Childs, in place of drawing him out.

It was a clean game, out side of a few petty trips and bumps into the boards. It was also one of the fastest of the season, as the players put every ounce they had into their playing, and were going strong from barrier to wire. Each team tried to work the puck in too close before shooting, and often opportunities were lost in this manner. The score shows there was little to choose between the two teams, although it was Aura Lee's worst exhibition of the season.

HOCKEY

The Toronto News says:

The Sportsmen's Battalion are gathering together a pretty fair bunch of hockey players, and should show some real class in their first game. At the Arena last night they appeared in new sweaters, and you can take one guess at their colours with "Billy" Breen coaching the squad, "Tommy" Daly looking after the training and Capt. Flanagan the man behind. Jim Corkery, the Marathon runner, is also busy running around the promenade at the Arena, and will wear the colours of the Sportsmen's Battalion in a couple of big races.

NIAGARA ICE BRIDGE BETTER THAN EVER THIS YEAR

Those who have visited the Falls this winter have pronounced the ice bridge to be the best in years. It has been well said that those who have visited Niagara Falls in summer have only half seen it, as nature surpasses itself in winter in clothing its wonderful falls with ice formation of undescribable beauty. Spring will soon be here and with its coming you will have missed this wonderful sight. The Grank Trunk Railway System are offering every opportunity for you to see the ice bridge. Parties of ten or more can secure special rates. Why not arrange a party of your friends to spend a enjoyable week end? For full particulars regarding rates and train service, 'phone or call Grand Trunk Agent.

Doesn't This Sound Familar?

Presentations To Rev. Fr. McCarthy By His Parishioners

Congregation of Church of Immaculate Conception Say Farewell to Their Curate—Given a Purse of Gold

GONE TO NORWOOD

The congregation of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, met in the Parish Hall, Ashburnham, last night to say farewell to Rev. Father McCarthy, who since the inception of the Church of the Immaculate Conception has been its curate, and who left to-day for Norwood, where he takes charge of the Parish of St. Paul's. On behalf of the people of this church, Mr. John Primeau, Jr., read an eulogistic address, while Mr. Dan. Hennessey made the presentation of a purse of gold.

Rev. Father McCarthy made a suitable reply, thanking his friends for the kind sentiments expressed in the address, and for the splendid appreciation of his curacy.

On Tuesday evening, Father McCarthy was the recipient of a presentation of a handsome gold umbrella from the altar boys, and yesterday afternoon the school children presented him with an address and reading lamp. The ladies of the Sodality remembered their departing curate with a beautiful chair.

Father McCarthy was popular among his people, and it is with feelings of deep regret that their happy associations have been severed. Father McCarthy is being succeeded here by Rev. Father Scott, of Kingston diocese.

Put pockets on the underside of aprons near the right-hand edge and they will be found just as convenient for use, yet will not catch on doorknobs and get torn.

Music & Drama

GRUMPY.

In the visit of "Grumpy" to the Grand Opera House last night, the theatre-goers of Peterborough had an opportunity of seeing a wonderful performance by England's foremost character actor, Mr. Cyril Maude, whose work in the title role will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to see him. Unfortunately the audience was not as large as it should have been in view of the recognized ability of Mr. Maude and the laurels his play has won. As "Grumpy," an eccentric, grumbling, but altogether loveable old lawyer, he has a much different part to that he was last seen here in, the "The Second in Command." His similation of old age was a remarkable piece of work. The manner in which he solves the mystery of the assault upon his nephew furnishes the action of the play and the interest is sustained until the finish. Mr. Maude carried his audience with him all the way, and he was given man curtain calls. His supporting company was thoroughly adequate and the performance was the theatrical event of the season.

CAMPAIGN IN FULL SWING.

It Takes Official Berlin Statement to Prove It.

LONDON, March 16.—According to an official statement made in Berlin all rumours regarding the cancellation of the postponement of an intensified submarine campaign against armed merchantmen, as announced in the German memorandum to neutrals last month, are untrue. There has been no postponement, and abandonment of the campaign was ever considered. On the contrary, it is now in full swing.

Canadians Have a Good Name Among The Imperial Forces

Driver Morris Montgomery Says Canadian Infantry is Right There When There is Any Fighting to Be Done—An Interesting Letter From the Front

A member of the Examiner staff has received the following letter from Driver Morris Montgomery, Canadian Field Artillery in France.

Somewhere in France
Feb. 23, 1916

Dear Fred,—Just a few lines to let you know how things are here.

There has been nothing but heavy bombardment on these last three days and for every shell old Fritz sends over we give him a dozen in return, although there are not very many places that have not been hit near the firing line and some nice pretty places are all in ruins.

Well we are kept pretty busy here all the time, and sometimes we are on the go day and night, so us drivers are not very idle at any time.

When we are not wanted up at the front, we get orders to stand there in the mean time, and we clean our harness and horses.

There have been some great battles in the air, our planes certainly have done some great work, and you should see them chase one another and hear the machine guns go. I witnessed 25 planes here, and most of them seem to have machine guns. Our enemy's planes dropped a few bombs not far from us, I thought they were trying for our horses but they were too far away, and they were fighting over our heads.

The weather has taken a change, it has been snowing hard here for two days and it is freezing hard, and the snow puts me in mind of Canada, if it keeps on there will be some sleighing it is very cold to-night, but I don't think this weather will last long, the farmers here have been working in the fields up till this last week, as they claim the snow has stopped them. It is amusing to see the women here plowing and threshing, working just like a man, but the way they farm here, would not do in Canada, too slow, and they plow with one horse.

I have met several Peterborough boys, I guess I told you that Wm. Caralnah and Adams are with us. I have also seen the Leal boys and Hanlon Howard and another Indian that is in that battalion. My brother is well and has a good job now he is a sniper, he is welcome to it but he thinks it's a joke, but I can't see it. We have a cinch at times when old Frits gets mad, but he can't beat our artillery when our boys loose a trench they have it back in a day's time or right away. Canada should be proud of her boys and the Imperial fellows give the Canadians a good name. I heard a remark passed about the Canadians and it was that they were not trained as good as the Imperial Infantry, but this same party told them they were right there, when there is any fighting to be done, and I don't stick up for one country any more than another as I was born in England and I have two brothers in the Imperial, but I go by what I have seen, not what I have been told or by paper talk. The Canadians would be over the parapet all the time if they did not keep an eye on them, and they would go through them too. We are well equipped and that is one of the main parts we can't kick on that, although I think the food could be better too much of them dog biscuits. I remain,

Yours truly,
DRIVER M. MONTGOMERY

Guelph Turns Down Pastor Russell

GUELPH, March 16.—Pastor Russell will not include Guelph in his itinerary. The city was billed for his appearance here on Friday evening of this week. The military authorities had received information that his appearance here would not be an incentive to recruiting and they took the matter up with Mayor Mahoney. Chief Randall, of the police department, later stated that he had instructions to advise Pastor Russell that he need not come to Guelph.

PASTOR RUSSELL BARRED IN HAMILTON

HAMILTON, March 16.—"Pastor Russell will not speak here, and furthermore we don't want him," said Mayor Walters when questioned last night as to what reception would be tendered the reverend gentleman, who is billed to speak here this week at on of the local theatres.

640,000 POUNDS OF MEAT SENT TO TROOPS

CHICAGO, March 16.—Orders to ship 790,000 rations of meat, weighing 640,000 pounds, to the Mexican border were received by Colonel A. D. Kniskern, acting quartermaster of the Central Department, U.S.A.; here to-day. The first shipment went to-night.

The order includes 200,000 pounds of bacon, 272,000 pounds of corned beef, 128,000 pounds of roast beef and 80,000 pounds of corned beef hash.

PROHIBITION LEGISLATION FORESHADOWED

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, March 16.—The Conservative party caucused again this morning. At the close of the caucus Sir Robert was uncommunicative. Beyond stating that several matters were discussed and that some legislation might be expected in connection with the prohibition question, he would say nothing further. It is understood that while the caucus was by no means unanimous, it will result in compromises, whereby the importation of liquor shall be prohibited into the province which enact prohibitory legislation against the sale of liquor within their borders.

Lavergne Playing On The Soft Pedal Now

Modifies His Tone, and Asks Quebec English Minority for Help

BUT APPEALS IN VAIN

Legislature Adopts Amendments Which Bourassa's Lieutenant Opposed.

QUEBEC, March 16.—A plea to the English-speaking minority of the Province of Quebec to help the French-Canadian minority in Ontario was made by Armand Lavergne in the Legislative Assembly in a speech which was greeted by the members as one of much more moderation than hitherto pronounced by the Nationalist member on the bi-lingual question for some time past.

The House was considering the amendments made by the Legislative Council to the Galipeault bill, which prevented municipalities from contributing to the funds of French-Canadian organizations in Ontario to enable them to keep up the bilingual fight, giving such power to Catholic school commissions only.

The bill was adopted as amended.

Mr. Lavergne said the Galipeault bill had nothing pernicious in it. It had been changed so that no injustice could possibly be done to the Protestant English minority, and he hoped it would lead them to tell the majorities in other Provinces how well they were treated in Quebec. Continuing, Mr. Lavergne said:

"We French-Canadians want the minority to know that we are too proud, too hight a race to take their money for our fight, for the fight which is for the highest ideals. It was not to the generosity of Great Britain that the French-Canadians owed their liberties, but it was to the noble forefathers who had settled along the banks of the St. Lawrence and taught the French-Canadians of the present day to guard the great heritage they were handing down. I would ask our compatriots of the English language, not those who do not yet know whether their country is Great Britain or Canada, I would appeal to their hearts if we have not treated them as brothers, and we would ask them to treat us as associates in this great partnership called the Dominion of Canada."

Mr. Lavergne referred to himself being called traitor, and said if so, there were others. "While I am a British subject, I am as loyal as those who call themselves 'Lord,' and who say the same things I do."

He touched on the teaching of German in Ontario, where French, the language talked by the men fighting at Verdun to save the British Empire was not permitted, and said that if it could be shown that he was wrong regarding the teaching of German he would resign his seat in the House.

WATCHFUL WAITING AMONG THE FIREMEN OVER SALARY THREAT

One Man Has Gone and Others Have Positions Open For Them If Council Lightens Their Envelopes — Feeling on Street Calls For Comprehensive Application or None at All.

One fireman gone, and others prepared to go, is an ominous evidence of the attitude of most of the Fire Department employees toward the Council's proposed salary cut. A number of them are simply watchfully waiting for the Council's final decision, which they are inclined to believe will not be put into effect. These men, it is stated, have other positions in sight and, in fact, could have been gone before this had they wished to take immediate action. By the way, this is no threat. Sentiment is general that a married man receiving $600 a year, especially firemen, should not lightly submit to this proposed reduction. These men, it is felt, should receive more generous consideration. They can't eat "sapolio" or "bon ami," of which the Council was willing to give them a liberal supply. Some of the firemen were expecting increases and were naturally peeved when a subtraction rather than an addition, was announced.

One prominent citizen voiced this opinion: "I would favour a reduction in civic salaries, but it must comprehend all the employees, not the firemen and city hall staff. If the Police Commission refuses to accede to the Council's request to follow their course, if the Utilities Commission and Board of Education fail to adopt this pruning policy, then I say drop the whole thing. Any cutting should be applied generally or not at all. If the Council would practice real economy, something of a constructive nature, not to mention these trips here and there, this salary attack would appear to much better advantage. In this case no one is deceived in its object."

The Council of Women

The bi-monthly meeting of the Council of Women will be held next Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at a places to be announced later.

TRENT VALLEY POWER RIGHTS

Binding Award Might Not Satisfy Municipalities

Sir Adam Beck, in an interview said that the arrangement for Sir Henry Drayton to act as arbitrator between the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, for the Ontario Government, and the Electric Power Company, in the matter of the transfer of the Trent Valley power rights and plants, could not be carried out because if the price to be fixed by Sir Henry were to be final, such price might not be satisfactory to the municipalities.

As to whether the 8,350,000 to be paid by the Ontario Government for the Seymour interests would cover the bonds, Sir Adam said that would depend on whether the securities had any value, relying on the earnings to meet interest charges.

"WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE"

The announcement is made that "When Dreams Come True," one of the newest musical comedies, which had a great vogue in New York, and Chicago last season, will be presented at "The Grand" next Tuesday evening, March 21.

The action of the play opens on board the immigrant deck of a steam ship on its way to New York. The plot begins to unfold early and the music theme begins when Barrett Greenwood, as 'Kean Hedges', the son of a multi-millionaire, who, on account of having become infatuated with a French dancer in Paris, is recalled to America by his father. Being short of funds he has had to take his passage home in the steerage of the ship, and it is while he is lonely he sees as he thinks in a vision, his dream girl. When the ship reaches the dock, the girl of the dream becomes a reality and romance runs merrily till the end.

A number of tuneful songs are introduced, chief among them being "Come Along to the Movies," "Love is Such A Funny Little Thing," "You ,dear, You," "Who's the Little Girl?" and "When Dreams Come True."

The scenic appointments are elaborate and the costuming of the various members shows the very latest European fashions.

The company numbers fifty people with a large singing and dancing contingent, selected for their youth, grace and ability.

"When Dreams Come True" it is promised will be one of the most enjoyable theatrical entertainments of our local season.

The Hydro-Electric Accounts Are Not Officially Audited

Evidence of the Government's Careless Treatment of the Most Important Provincial Interest

Special to The Examiner:

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 16.—Prominent among the points in Mr. Rowell's speech on the budget were the followng:

Mr. Rowell drew attention to an extraordinary note by the Auditor in this year's public accounts following the Hydro-Electric statement as follows: "The foregoing statement was prepared by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and does not represent the accounts of the Commission as audited by the Audit Office."

It is easy to foresee that much more will be heard during the session about this note.

Mr. Rowell pointed out how deeply interested the people of Ontario were in the Hydro; how anxious they were for its success, and how dear to their hearts was the power project. All the more, therefore, were they anxious to get the fullest statement and the most correct information in regard to the Hydro accounts.

Year after year the Government had refused to bring down the details of Hydro expenditures as is done in other branches of the service, and now this year comes the amazing note from the Auditor to the effect that the Hydro statement did not represent the accounts of the Commission as audited by the Audit Office.

Mr. Rowell vigorously assailed the expenditure on Government House. In 1913 the Government's estimate of the total expenditure was $400,000. Already a million dollars have been spent, with another $172,000 to be spent this year. "Not only is the expenditure in itself extravagant and undemocratic," said Mr. Rowell, "but there is this inexplicable discrepancy between the original estimate and the actual cost."

Mr. Rowell also pointed out that the statement of receipts and expenditures, as presented in the public accounts, was not the auditor's statement at all, but one prepared by the treasury board, controlled by the Government itself. "If we had an auditor's statement," declared Mr. Rowell, "the Treasurer would have had to show us a deficit rather than a surplus on the year's transactions."

Mr. Rowell declared that if the Government in preceding years had followed the advice of the Opposition and had been economical in the expenditure of public money, they would have beep able to meet the expenses in connection with the war without having to levy any extra tax at all for that purpose.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney trouble are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or sickness in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels. Try the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

FURTHER COMMENT ON DR. WORKMAN'S ADDRESS

Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—Having been one of those who were invited to attend the meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. Monday evening, under the auspices of the City Ministerial Association, to hear an address by Dr. Workman, of Toronto formerly a professor in a theologics college in Montreal, and to meet him in a social way, I desire, with the hearty approval of Rev. Mr. Pogue who invited me to attend the meeting, to place myself on record as absolutely disagreeing with the views there expressed as well as my disappointment that members of the Ministerial Association, who were present did not enter their protest at the time Having been an invited guest of the Ministerial Association I have hesitated to even appear to disregard the amenities of such an occasion by public comment and am only led to do so because I have my host's consent and because I have found that others who were there were somewhat bewildered by the circumstances in which they found themselevs, that discussion has arisen since and that the faith of some people may have been disturbed, thus making it seem desirable that an explanation of the proceedings should be given and a protest registered.

Dr. Workman's subject was "Christian Experience and Historic Facts." In opening he warned those present that what he intended to say might seem to be destructive criticism of the scriptures, but if they would be patient he trusted that they would see that his object was to be constructive. In brief he said that of late years the professors in our theological colleges have been asked many difficult and profound questions by the students, not only in the class rooms, but in the quiet of their own homes. They had found it necessary to deal with these difficulties frankly and to answer them in a way that would be in harmony with historical and scientific facts. Possibly the ministers present might not have found it necessary to deal with such doubts, but he would indicate his methods of treating them which was the method that was being followed by most, if not all, of the leading theologians and professors identified with our theological colleges, not only at home but abroad.

Proceeding, Dr. Workman stated that the paper he intended reading was one he had read some years before at a meeting held in Montreal by a select group of ministers and college professors, which had been formed outside the regular ministerial association of the city, partly in order that its meetings might be attended by a former learned Baptist minister, who had later become a Unitarian, and whose fellowship and scholarship they greatly prized. A little later he referred to the last visit he had made to Germany, where he had found that certain of the views he had held were heartily approved. In the light of the moral condition to which it is now seen the people of Germany have been reduced, in part at least, as a result of the higher criticism and infidelity disseminated from her theological colleges, this remark helped to prepare one for the views which the speaker of the evening later on frankly expressed.

It is not necessary that a full account of the speaker's remarks shall be given. In brief they were to the effect that we must recognize that many of the authors of the Bible were limited in their knowledge by the times and conditions in which they lived. What appeared to be miracle to them would not so appear to us. Their account of events recorded in scriptures was coloured more or less by their conditions and therefore, we must recognize the fact that a considerable portion of their records must be looked upon as legendary in character, poetical and even idealised history written long after the events recorded had taken place.

Specific exception was taken to Genesis 6.2, which records that the sons of God saw the daughters of men and took them as wives, although God speaks in Isaiah 43.6 of the men of Israel in the same way. The account of the crossing of the Red Sea was not to be taken literally but was to be looked upon as a popular description of that event written at a much later date. The Book of Daniel was largely idealized history and the book of Job a drama. The fourth gospel was composed largely of idealized memories. It was written by some one of the name of John but who can say what John? The doctrine of the virgin birth was disputed and it was said that the accounts of it given in Matthew and Luke must be looked upon as traditional. It did not constitute a vital issue. Too much faith must not be placed in the account of the crucifixion as given in the 27th chapter of Matthew, especially the 51st to 53rd verses. The actual physical resurrection of Jesus and the accounts of his having eaten a fish and some honeycomb were not to be believed as he had arisen as a spirit and not as flesh and blood. The worl resurrection does not properly appear in the new testament and is an improper translation. In conclusion Dr Workman emphasized the point that if we will once recognize these facts and conditions and lay greater emphasis on the lessons learned from the life of Jesus and the spirit of Jesus and aim to grow in beauty and purity of spirit and union of God just as Jesus did, we will grasp the real lessons that are to be learned from the life of Jesus.

Immediately upon the conclusion of Dr. Workman's address a layman arose— apparently as previously arranged, although it is not to be supposed that it was known beforehand what the speaker intended to say, and moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening for the scholarship shown in his remarks, which so ably expressed what a number at least of those present must have pondered and wondered over during their Christian experience. A minister seconded the vote of thanks, and while apparently recognizing that the ground was dangerous and might not be approved by all present, concluded his comments by complimenting the speaker as one who "studied to show himself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." The chairman, a minister, asked that those present should show their appreciation by a standing vote. There was no comment and apparently all present, with but one exception, stood as suggested.

Dr. Workman expressed his deep appreciation of the vote of thanks, his surprise that his views apparently had met with such general acceptance and said how touched and gratified he was for the reference to his having "divided the word of truth."

Later, while in general conversation, Dr. Workman explained his views more fully. He did not believe that Christ performed the miracles recorded in the gospels as a proof of his divinity, as to have done so would have been contrary to the laws of nature and God himself, could not change the working of his own laws even to accomplish a divine purpose as foretold in the scriptures. It would not make much difference to him if he knew that Christ had not lived in the flesh. There was no such thing as the atonement of Christ or being saved by faith in his blood, shed for us. The word atonement should be at-one-ment. We are saved by working out our own salvation through fait and harmony with God, thereby developing a Christian character. It is our character which will be judged, not our attitude to the cross. When asked how it was that the thief on the cross was saved when he did not have a chance to develop a worthy character, Dr. Workman replied that Christ must have seen something in him which was worthy. Asked how he explained Peter's act in walking on the water he replied that Peter had commenced to sink. It being pointed out that Peter had walked some distance before he commenced to sink Dr. Workman admitted that he could not explain it nor how Christ succeeded in walking on the water.

I have endeavoured to give an accurate account of Dr. Workman's remarks as gathered from brief notes which I took at the time, and since confirmed by others who were present, and to understate than overstate his views. If unintentionally I may have done him an injustice, through misunderstanding, some of his remarks I will hope to be set right by some who were present.

There were some at least in attendance I am sure, as I have been told since, who did not approve of the views expressed and who were at a loss to know just what to do. Others, however, frankly expressed their approval of most, if not of quite all that was said. I regret that I did not have the grace or courage myself to offer my protest at the time beyond declining to stand and thus vote for the resolution of thanks. Should I ever find myself in a similar position in the future I trust that I will be found more faithful to the teaching of the scriptures which I believe are fundamental to our salvation, no matter how distinguished may be the people associated with me.

One thing the Bible makes abundantly clear: We must not put too much faith in men supposed to have greater knowledge and wisdom in scriptural matters than ourselves. The priests among the Jews refused to accept Christ at the time of His first advent, although He pointed out that He had come exactly as predicted in prophecy. Christ then said:

"I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and hast revealed them unto babes. Even so Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight."—Matt 11, 25-26.

Paul has said: "For ye see your calling brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty. And base things in the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen yea and things which are not to bring to nought things that are: That no flesh should glory in his presence. 1 Cor. 1, 26-29.

Paul also said: "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise and bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent."—11 Cor. 1, 18-19.

These are momentous times in which we live, far more momentous possibly than many of us suppose. During the past couple of hundred years many of the leaders in our churches and colleges have let slip the belief in the second and imminent coming of our Lord. When our Lord instituted the Lord's supper he said, "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death, till He come." 1 Cor 11-26. We have forgotten that this ordinance is intended to be in part a looking forward "till He come" and that the great event is spoken of over 300 times in the new testament and over 1500 times in the old testament. Because we have let slip our faith in "That Blessed Hope" (Titus 2-13) higher criticism and infidelity has been creeping into our churches and colleges with the result that we now see almost if not quite the condition predicted by Christ when he said "Nevertheless, when the Son of Man cometh shall he find the faith on the earth?"—Luke 18, 8.

Some of the signs Christ gave us a preceding his second coming were that nation would be rising against nation and kingdom against kingdom. These were to be "the beginning of sorrows." (Matt. 24-5, 7.) That it would be as it was in the days of Noah (Matt). 24-37 when we read, that "the earth was filled with violence" (Genesis 6-13). That there would be falling away from the faith. (2 Thes 2-3.)

"Peter also has given us this warning: "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you who privily shall bring in damnable heresies even denying the Lord that brought them, and bring themselves swift destruction." This prophecy seems to have been fulfilled in Peterborough on Monday night. (Note also 2 Peter, 2-1-4.)

Should remember also that "All scripture is given by inspiration of God" (2 Tim. 3-16) and that "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." (2 Peter 1-21).

Just one more thought in conclusion. While it is unfortunately true that higher criticism is prevalent in our ministry and colleges there are thousands of ministers and college professors the world over, who have stood out valiantly in opposition to it. Did space permit I would like to mention the names of many of the foremost champions of the faith of the earthly fathers. Suffice it to give as one example, the act that the International Standard Bible Encyclopedia, edited by James Orr, M.S. D.D., assisted by John L. Nuelson, D.D., LL.D., Edgar Y. Mullin, D.D., L.L.D., Morris O. Evans D.D. Ph.D., with the aid of almost 200 eminent scholars, has recently been issued and affords a conservative, careful defence of the vital truths of Christianity as they have been taught in our orthodox Protestant denominations.

We must trust that many present Monday night did not approve of the views then expressed and that hereafter, we will all be more on our guard and ready when necessary to bear a good testimony and give a reason for the faith that is within us.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few application all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

A very enjoyable event was carried out at the Y.M.C.A. last evening in the interests of the dormitory men. Twenty-three of our twenty-four rooms were attended a complimentary supper served by the Mother's Club of the Association. Following the supper a programme of introductions was carried out. Gen. Sec. Meserve, presided and spoke a few words of welcome to those present. G. L. Galley, Boys' Secretary introduced the Mother's Club and a few words of response were made by the President, Mrs. C. N. Meserve. Mr. Wm. Richardson addressed the meeting on behalf of the Property Committee.

Mr. G. H. Roper on behalf of the employed staff spoke a few words of greeting, after which the dormitory roll was called by Mr. Meserve and was responded to by each roomer giving his name, room number, where he had come from and how long he had been in the dormitories. Many of the men followed this statement with a few pleasant remarks and a very good spirit was in evidence. The gathering was brought to a close by a short address by Mr. H. B. Cowan a member of the Board of Directors and who for a short time past has been a member of the dormitories owing to illness in his family.

Too much praise cannot be offered the Mother's Club for the excellent way in which they handled the affair and for the menu served. The Association is indeed grateful for its two affiliated womens' organizations the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Mother's Club. The auxiliary at the present time in preparing for the annual banquet which will occur on the 31st of March and the Mother's Club is trying in every way to serve our men. We might also mention that the wives of members of the staff have charge of two suppers here each week. We are glad that the ladies are standing by us and are willing to do their bit.

There will be a meeting of the Y.M.C.A. finance committee this Thursday evening at eight o'clock and the monthly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors will be held at a supper to be served Friday evening at 6.30 o'clock. Business of considerable importance will come before both of these meetings.

PUNISH UNFAITHFUL WIFE.

Paris Tribunal Sentences Woman Who Deserted Wounded Husband.

PARIS, March 16.—Instead of the old tariff of $5 to $10 for matrimonial unfaithfulness, a Paris tribunal passed Blanche Carrion, the unfaithful wife of a maimed poilu, a sentence of fifteen days in prison and a $20 fine.

"I was wounded thrice and they amputated my right arm," said the Infantryman Carrion to the sympathetic tribunal. "When my wife heard of it she exclaimed "Now I am free!" and ran away with a chauffeur ten years her junior."

The prosecutor then said to the respondent: "You've failed in your duty as a wife and a Frenchwoman."

The press welcomes the sentence pointing out the case as exceptional.

WEDDING BELLS

ATCHISON—FIFE.

The wedding was solemnized at the George Street Methodist parsonage, last evening, March 15th, of Mr Wm. G. Atchison of Cavan Township to Miss Lillian I. Fife of Peterborough, formerly of Smith Township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. G. Peever. The young couple who were unattended, will reside in Cavan Township.

ELLIOTT—GIRVEN.

The marriage of Miss Jean Girven, daughter of Mr. James Girven, 598 Sherbrooke Street, and Mr. Alex. Elliott, Bowmanville, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 3.30 at the home of the bride, Capt. Jas. Rollins, of the 93rd Battalion, officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing-room to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mr. Herbert C. Treneer, organist of St. Andrew's Church. She was becomingly attired in a smart tailored suit of navy blue and nigger brown hat. She wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The young couple were unattended. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome diamond ring, and to the pianist, a suit-case umbrella.

After the ceremony the guests, to the number of twenty-five, repaired to the dining-room, where a dainty luncheon was served.

The large number of beautiful and costly presents was a fitting tribute to the popularity of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left on the 5.30 train for Orillia and Toronto, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

MILITARY NEWS

is sent over here, and I hope by that time the war will have finished. I am feeling the cold here much more than I did in Canada. It is so damp Please remember me kindly to Mrs Devey and all the boys, choristers and all enquiring friends.

I am having quite a fill of music while I am here. Do not get any at the front, so I am kind of making up for lost time, and getting some to go on when I go back.

Two well-known citizens of Peterborough County joined the 93rd Battalion to-day, in the persons of Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle of Peterborough, the ex-Market Clerk, and Mr. J. R. McKelvie, of Norwood, well known as a curler. Both joined as privates and were fitted out this morning. Another recruit to-day was Pte. Johnston, whose brother left with the 57th detachment in the first contingent.

In a letter to his wife, Sergt. Archie McBride, of the 4th Battery, C.F.A., says: "I got a slight wound on my head. I got four stitches in it. It is a cut two and a half inches long, but is nothing to worry about, as I am coming around all right. I have my head all bandaged up.

Here are some questions that will be answered at Sunday night's recruiting meeting. Any citizens who think they know the answers can address the said to the Recruiting Rooms, Simcoe Street.

Is it fair for an employer to engage men who are fit to take the place of men who have enlisted?

Why cannot the merchants, manufacturers and professional men of Peterborough take the same attitude towards recruiting as the men in Stratford do?

Why are there still some officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the military age not enlisted?

Why don't you make all single men enlist first and not take the married men?

Are single men justified in taking the stand they do regarding enlistment because they work on munitions?

What do you think of the Orillia girl who said that if she had a young man who would not enlist he could look for other company?

How is it that Peterborough County is still battling to get its battalion with 300 short, when Simcoe County, after sending its complement, to the former contingents, raised its 1,143 men in two months, and now has its second battalion now, under way?

How is it that so many young men without uniforms are seen sitting in the picture shows on afternoons. Have they got the khaki under their shirts?

Windsor Council Drops Some Officials

A Number of Changes Made After Warm Discussion in Council

WINDSOR, March 16.— Following the presentation of a report from a special committee, of which Alderman Blake Winter was chairman, and the purpose of which was to revise salaries of all civic employees, mainly with a view to reducing expenses, the Windsor City Council, after a stormy session lasting until close to midnight, adopted every clause but one in the report. This one exception was a recommendation that the salary of Dr. G. R. R. Cruickshanks, Medical Officer of Health, be cut from $900 to $400. On a vote the recommendation was lost 7 to 5.

Henry Meadows, Plumbing Inspector, is allowed to go, and the City Clerk is instructed to advertise for a suitable man to fill the vacancy. This carried 10 to 2.

William N. Wheeler, Sanitary Inspector, also leaves the city's employ, and his duties will be taken over by Inspector Hillier in the city service.

City Engineer Edward Brian is ordered to devote all his time to the city's work, as provided by by-law. In addition he is given an assistant, Louis Chilver. The latter's salary will be $1,200 per annum.

John W. Hillman, Foreman of Streets, and Henry Siebert, Alley Inspector, are asked to resign as soon as suitable men can be found for their jobs. This clause carried 10 to 2. The resignation of C. L. Harkness as Publicity Commissioner is accepted, as this work is now being done by the Industrial Committee of the City Council.

Dr. A. E. Bowman, City Veterinarian, who gets $800 per year, has his salary increased to $1,000, but will have to perform the duties of Humane Officer, Bread Inspector, Meat and Milk Inspector and one or two other offices not yet decided upon.

All city officials not mentioned in the report will retain their positions and continue to draw their present rate of salary.

Aldermen Eansor and Weir fought hard against the adoption of the report, but the odds were against them.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Dear Sir,—I have read in one of the Toronto papers an account of the raid on the Prohibition Parade by the rowdy element of the soldiers as the parade passed the barracks. As some of the statements made are not true, with your permission, I wish to state the facts as they occurred. Not having the advantage of even a good rural school education, I would wish that some of the more capable than I had written this letter.

The facts are, that the representatives of Peterborough county along with the representatives of several other counties, started out on the procession from Bond Street Congregational Church. When we commenced the march, we were singing "We'll never let the Old Flag Fall." I was in the lead holding the rope, being one of six who we remupporting the Peterborough county banner. In passing along Yonge and other streets, many complimentary remarks were heard from spectators when the Peterborough banner was passing. On the banner could be seen inscribed fifteen thousand and several hundred, indicating the number who had signed the petition in the county. Nearing the end of the parade derogatory remarks could be heard coming from a man clad in khaki.

FIRED SNOWBALLS.

The magnificent parade moved on towards the Parliament buildings. Still coming from the soldiers, I distinctly heard, "Roll up your banners, roll up your banners". A little farther on when passing the barracks where a large number of soldiers were collected, Peterborough county composed of reverend gentlemen, aldermen merchants, farmers and others, all good and true men, we witnessed the company immediately in front of us being assailed by the soldiers, who were firing snowballs and ice at them. Then they rushed in on them, tore down their banner and trampled on it. They attacked the Peterborough county company next, firing hard snowballs and chunks of ice at us, wounding two men near me, one of them an alderman in Peterborough. They tore down our banner into shreds and threw it on the ground. There were too big men in police uniform standing by and while holding on to the rope to prevent the banner being taken away, I called "police, police," but they did not move and did not even say "Boys, behave yourselves". I said, "This is not British." I saw the banner behind us torn down by the soldiers hands.

OFFICIALS PRESENT.

I am a farmer, 73 years old. It will be one of my pleasant recollections that I had the honor of walking Toronto streets helping to bear up the temperance banner. Many men in our company have given their sons and their money in defense of our country and liberty. Our wives and daughters have given their time and talents to procure clothing and comforts for our boys in khaki. Why the soldiers boys of Toronto did assault their friends, is beyond my comprehension. Many Peterborough officials were present at the parade. Although I live in the rural part, I am acquainted with many in the city and can confidently bespeak protection and hospitality to the citizens of Toronto when they visit Peterborough.—A Fairbairn Farmer, Lakefield, Ont.

Editor of The Examiner

Sir,—How long Germany planned to overthrow all nations nearly 46 years back and would be able to do so now were it not for the united power of the allies of Britain. Said overthrow to be caused by anarchy, which is being spread broadcast by the arch anarchist, Pastor Russell, who is using the method. We behold by His distortion of scripture that it is not true in its meaning from Scripture. We use the ten commandments as the basic principle of all our laws, the rest of civilization doing likewise.

We must see the effort of anarchy if we can understand the meaning of such at all. France before the outbreak of this war abolished the church. The next step would be a repudiation of all laws based on the Bible thereby eliminating justice, and France would soon sink to a level with Mexico of to-day, where there is no justice, the law being plain that a culprit is guilty till he can prove himself innocent. Hence the Germans and anarchistic methods of Villa, a Texas negro, whose name in English is Frank Brown.

If we look to a few months before the present campaign to put down Germany, we will notice Ireland was in a grievous trouble caused by agitation, and take it by name of Home Rule, denominationalism or any other it was the time the opponents of Christian principle thought fit to strike at the rest of humanity, planning that when mankind would be engaged in protecting their homes, country and loved ones, anarchy would then rise and strike while the opportunity presented itself, and Germany has its agents abroad in Canada as Pastor Russell being a pastor of leader in truth not of Christianity, but anarchy. His first method, Christian Socialism, so called, second radicalism and doubt, three resulting in complete anarchy, the three steps taken to-day taught from soap boxes on street corners by its exponents.

Can we safely allow an old viper to be strengthened by our own hearts and the moment it feels able to strike us cause our death. This is what Pastor Russell is doing by anarchy, and his champions can not refute his nefarious hypocrisy.

Study anarchy from its founder, Carl Marx, of course a German, fellow it by its students and teachers up to Eugene V. Debs. You will see a church is far better than a street corner or a crowded opera house, more liable to yield a large percentage of its hearers to such as can be persuaded by a fluent talker than a soap box oration.

Emma Goldman unseated herself from its leadership by anticipating her advice to Golgosj, who assassinated President McKinley, and now a more stealthy means, with the Bible as a pretence to blight the manhood of ours, as well as any other Christian land through Russellism and his despotism.

If our nation is fighting against the country guilty of deeds that have shamed the devil himself, as Scripture tells us they fear and tremble at the name of God, (i.e. the devils), let us make sure we do not allow a reprobate that the father of iniquity must take off his hat to, spoil our sights and put the snake out of our breast by a vigorous taboo on all his pamphlets on so called Bible study, and no more conscientious reasons will be given to avoid the call of duty.

Then we can no longer ask why manhood is retarded, nor will it be necessary to ask how long our country will be poisoned. And 1st Peter, 2:17, can be obeyed. Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

Russians Are Now In Virtual Co-operation With British in Mesopotamia

Tsar's Army Advancing Through Persia is Within Fifty Miles of Border, From Where It Can Menace Rear of Turkish Bagdad Forces

PETROGRAD, via London, March 17.—The Russian troops in Persia are now so far advanced toward the Mesopotamian frontier that they may be said to be in virtual co-operation with the British at Kut-El-Amara, where General Townshend's forces have been besieged for several months, and the campaign against Bagdad has become two-fold, with the likelihood of the Russians being as important a factor in the Mesopotamia operations as their allies.

Before the Russian penetration through the mountain passes of the Kermanshah region it was generally held that the chief aim of the Russian operations on the extreme southern front was, effectively and once for all, to crush German influence and ambitions in Persia, and only the most visionary critics here conceived the possibility of Russia successfully traversing the Persian mountain provinces and assuming an important role in Mesopotamian affairs.

The latest news, however, of the success of the Russians in working their way through the passes of the formidable range which acts as a natural boundary between Persia and Turkey shows that the Russians are in a position to convert their potential threat against Mesopotamia into a positive menace.

The Turkish reinforcements which were sent from Bagdad and Mosul, by way of Suleumanieh and Sehna, to threaten the flank of the Russian forces at Kermanshah and make a further Russian advance dangerous, have been compelled to withdraw on account of British pressure from the south and Russian activity in the north, which some time ago resulted in the capture of Bitlis. The Russians, therefore, are now opposed only by frontal resistance, against which they have advanced through all but one of the difficult passes of the mountains separating them from Mesopotamia.

The road from Kermanshah westward, sometimes narrowing to a mere mountain path, winds between the crests of the high ridges of the Persian mountain province of Luristan. Along this the Russians already proceeded for fifty miles in the face of great odds. A like distance along the same road, which, turning southward, runs between two mountain tributaries of the Dijala River to the Turkish border, stands between them and the last difficult pass near Hanikin.

If Hanikin is once attained the Russians will have free access to the rear of the Turkish Bagdad army, and to the British pressure from the southeast upon Bagdad will be added Russian pressure from the north. The occupation of the Van region already has facilitated Russian progress in this direction, and the Russian critics now prophesy that the campaign will be carried forward to a successful conclusion. Russia's part will be to strike north of Bagdad and cut the railway, severing the only important line of communication by which the Turkish army is receiving its supplies.

Roumanians Hostile To the Teutons

LONDON, Friday, March 17.—The Daily Chronicle this morning prints the following dispatch from its special correspondent at Odessa.

"Any doubt as to the attitude of the majority of the Rumanian people toward the belligerents who surround them on every side is daily further dissipated. When the Verdun news appears in the evening papers and the newsboys enter the restaurants customers make a rush for the papers. The smallest French gain is greeted vociferously with cheers and singing of the 'Marseillaise'.

"The German, Austrian and Bulgarian legations are guarded by police.

"The inner history of the absence of a representative of the Kaiser from the funeral of the Queen Dowager 'Carmen Sylva' has now been revealed. It appears that Prince August Wilhelm the Kaiser's fourth son, now at Monastir, was ordered by his father to go to Bucharest to attend the funeral. This arrangement was communicated to Baron von der Busche-Haddenhausen, the German Minister, who, having once already narrowly escaped disgrace over mismanagement of the propaganda funds, was greatly disturbed by the possibility of a hostile reception of the Prince by the populace. His apprehension probably was justified, but being unable in such circumstances to require guarantees from the Government, he spent two days openly discussing the matter with numerous acquaintances. He then telegraphed the Kaiser strongly advising the cancellation of the visit.

"It is reported, but not confirmed that King Ferdinand caused his wishes to be expressed indirectly to Baron von der Busche-Haddenhausen that the Prince should keep away rather than that a Hohenzollern should be hissed through the streets of the Rumanian capital. At the last moment the Minister dispatched messengers in two automobiles to the frontier to get into communication with the Prince and prevent his arrival. Accordingly among the royal messages published was one from the Prince regretting that he was unable to arrive in time in consequence of the shortness of the notice."

GERMAN RAZOR BLADES SUPPLIED

Supplied by Militia Department to Troops at Montreal.

OTTAWA, March 17.—Regarding the "made in Germany" complaint about the contents of kit bags supplied to the 208th Battalion in Montreal, the Director of Contracts of the Militia Department to-day said that it was quite possible that some of the razor blades had been made in Germany. No razors are manufactured in Canada, and they are not now obtainable from England. The department had therefore been obliged to buy them in the United States. Many razors of American manufacture have blades of German make. Brushes, combs and other articles in the kit bags are made and bought in Canada.

Another official drew attention to the fact that up to a few years ago the swords carried by British officers were made in Germany.

Submarine Campaign Fails, Fleet and Army Helpless, Germany Near Exhaustion

LONDON, March 17.—I am informed that the latest campaign of submarine frightfulness, writes a special correspondent, has been a dismal failure. Though the Germans since March 1 have sunk probably a score of vessels, large and small, neutrals, principally Holland, have been the greatest sufferers.

I also learn through a neutral who has returned from Amsterdam that the German press is full of pathetic appeals from the government to subscribe to the new war loan.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says the moneyed class in Germany, invaded by a ruthless foe, must supply the sinews of war, and those who do not subscribe willingly will be made to do so.

My informant likewise says the tremendous attack on Verdun was inspired by the necessity of obtaining a big victory to induce subscriptions. But, as the promise that Verdun would be taken by March 4, as a preliminary to the capture of Paris, was not realized, business men are fearful and subscriptions to the loan are few and far between.

In the desperate effort to obtain the money needed German-American bankers and pro-Germans in the United States have been appealed to to raise funds and save the Fatherland.

The feeling in Amsterdam is that while the hyphenates in the United States would be willing to make sacrifices if they were certain the Fatherland would win, in view of the dubious position of the German army to-day on all fronts and the helplessness of the German Hochseeflotte, they refuse to advance any more funds.

The feeling in Holland, as in the United States, is that Germany has practically exhausted her resources and, though her armies may make further tremendous efforts, the die is cast and the Allies are sure to win.

British Cancel Permits For Shipment of German Goods

LONDON, March 17.—Several permits given to American importers to ship goods from Germany, which were ordered and paid for before March 1, 1915, have been revoked by the British government. One of the most important cancellations is that of an American company which had ordered 400,000 marks ($100,000) worth of German goods before the British orders in council were promulgated.

The British government expressed itself as satisfied the American importers would be compelled to pay for these whether they were delivered or not and gave the necessary permit for passing the shipments through the blockade, but a further delay resulted from the refusal of the German government to allow their export.

After several months' negotiations the German government gave the necessary permits, but meantime the manufacturers instructed the American buyers that they would be compelled to add twenty-five per cent. to the price of the goods, on account of the rise in the price of raw materials. The goods were so badly needed the buyers agreed to this demand and sent a letter to this effect, which was intercepted by the British authorities, who informed the attorney for the buyers that the permit for the goods to pass the blockade had been cancelled.

Another permit, which also represented a valuable consignment, was cancelled on account of an intercepted letter, which revealed the fact that the holders of the permit had placed an additional order in Germany in 1915. Other cancellations have been made on the ground that the government required further proof concerning the ownership of the goods.

The attorney representing several of these consignments says the revocation of the permits was made without giving an opportunity to the buyers to present the additional proofs demanded.

MEN RUSH OUT IN PANIC WOMEN BRAVE DANGER

Fire Scare in Halifax Provincial Building at Prohibition Meeting.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 17.—Smoke from the chimneys of the custom house, pouring in through the open windows of the provincial building, caused a near-panic among the hundreds of people who had gathered to listen to the debate on prohibition for Halifax.

Most of the audience were men and boys, and all but a few hastily donned coats and hats and scrambled over the seats for exits. Only one section of each of the three double doors leading from the gallery of the hall was open, the tops of the other sections being bolted. The crowd of men surged against these doors and burst the bolts with a smashing sound that added to the growing terror.

The women were down in the front and they were forced to remain in their seats until most of the men had managed to get out.

More Men Now at Work in France Than Before War

PARIS, March 17.—Official figures just given out by the Department of Labor Inspection show a revival of industry, and a decrease in the number of idle workmen in France.

More than half of the industrial and commercial establishments of the country closed at the beginning of the war, when an average of 24 per cent of the workmen were called to the colors. Forty-two per cent. were thrown out of employment by the closing of the establishments leaving only 34 per cent. continuing to earn their wages.

In about 70,000 establishments inspected 1,700,000 workmen were employed in time of peace. The figures fell to one-third of that number in August 1914, then increased progressively to 1,300,000 in January of this year, which is 77 per cent of the normal.

MORE THAN BEFORE WAR

Taking into account the 24 per cent mobilised there are actually employed now in French industries one per cent more of workmen than before the war.

These figures would seem incompatible with the fact that many industries are still closed, but it is explained that, though building industries and a few others have less work since the war began, other industries have more.

It costs the Government 3,784,000 francs to support idle workmen in Paris alone during the second half of January, 1915. In the second half of January, 1916, this allowance had fallen to 1,624,000 francs. In some other cities the number of people out of employment has been reduced to ten per cent. Excepting among such employees as garment workers in Paris, and kindred industries, all wages are higher, according to the official figures.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—and stomach—and not, as many folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we belch sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water brash, or nausea.

He tells us to buy some all diges tive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the poisons, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys, and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Look to the Coffee and Tea

"In all cases of so-called neurasthenia, the coffee-drinking of the patient should be inquired into. What has been said about coffee also holds good in regard to tea," said a physician of note.

More and more people are coming to know that the coffee and tea habits are responsible for a large percentage of those nervous disorders classed under the head of "neurasthenia," or nervous prostration.

Both coffee and tea contain the drug caffeine, a powerful irritant of the nerves. They also contain tannin—an astringent—which acts most unfavourably upon the intestinal walls. Headache, "nerves," insomnia, biliousness—these are some of the signs of caffeine poisoning.

Many coffee and tea drinkers are learning that the way to health is by quitting coffee and tea; and for a pleasant, healthful drink, using

Had Terrible Pains in Kidneys and Back.

"Dear Mr. Editor—I want to write you about "Anuric." I was very sick, could hardly be up; I was in bed most of the time. Had terrible pains in my kidneys and back, so much so that I had to scream sometimes when I was sitting down and wanted to get up, the pain was so great. I had tried a well-known kidney medicine but it didn't help me. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets so I thought I would try them. I took only one box of the Tablets, and my back is now free from pain and I can work and take care of my family. I feel I cannot say enough for this medicine. Sincerely, MRS. WM. KELLER.

NOTE: This "Anuric" is adapted especially for kidney complaints and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles. The physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's great Institution, at Buffalo, N.Y., have thoroughly tested this prescription and have been with one accord successful in eradicating these troubles, and in most cases absolutely curing the diseased kidneys.

Patients having once used "Anuric" at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, have repeatedly sent back for more. Such a demand has been created that Dr. Pierce has decided to put "Anuric" in the drug stores of this country, in a ready-to-use form. If not obtainable send one dime by mail to Dr. Pierce for trial package or 50 cents for full treatment.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It thus assists the body to make rich, red blood, which feeds the heart, nerves, brain and organs of the body. You feel clean, strong and strenuous.

OUR SERIAL STORY

BY LOUIS TRACY

"Goodby, Captain. If you want me during the next two hours, I shall be in my room."

Popple lumbered away, and Raymond would have gone to the annex had he not been stayed by Tollemache.

"A word with you, Mr. Raymond. I want to explain that Mr. Ingersoll and his daughter are my closest friends."

The secretary wheeled round slowly. He had no fear of this stalwart young American, whom he classed with the well dressed, athletic, feather-brained "nuts" of British society.

"I think you are to be envied," he said smilingly.

Tollemach did not smile. His frank features were thought-laden and stern. Yvonne would have read his expression unerringly. Lorry was troubled but determined.

"I am not parading the friendship for any other reason than as a warning that I shall not tolerate any prying into their affairs," he said, evidently choosing the words with care.

Raymond affected vast astonishment. "If you overheard the conversation between Captain Popple and me, you must be aware that I knew little or nothing about Mr. Ingersoll and Mademoiselle Yvonne," he retorted.

"That wasn't your fault, I imagine."

"I don't understand what you are driving at. Suppose I have shown some interest in them, isn't it reasonable — people to whom I owe my life?"

"A most excellent sentiment, Mr. Raymond. Don't forget it, and wander into bypaths, where you will most certainly meet me. And I'm a big, hulking fellow, you know, who is likely to block the way."

"Again I say that I have done nothing to deserve the implied threat."

"And again I say that I'll lick the stuffing out of anyone who so much as tries to annoy my friends."

"I have no wish to feel otherwise than exceedingly grateful to them, and I cannot allow you or any other person to dictate to me in the matter. Your remarks are—incomprehensible."

Tollemache gave him no further reply than a steady stare, which discomfited Raymond far more than any words. With an angry sniff he abandoned the contest, and walked unsteadily across the irregular cobblestones that paved the roadway.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Tightening of the Net.

In the ordinary course of events the mortal remains of Walter Carmac would have been inclosed in a leaden shell and transhipped to the United States for burial. But a woman's whim intervened. Mrs Carmac suddenly decreed that the interment should take place at Nizon. Pont Aven possesses no cemetery of its own. Nizon, perched on the plateau of a neighbouring hill, provides a final resting place for dwellers in the valley. Thither was borne in state a huge casket containing the body of the dead millionaire.

Such a funeral had not been seen at Pont Aven in many a year. The village turned out en masse. By that time everyone knew of the extraordinary coincidence that brought Yvonne to the rescue of a wrecked vessel that had her aunt on board. When the news spread that the woman was immensely rich local interest rose to boiling point.

Many and various, therefore, were the conjectures of the crowd as soon as it was seen that the widow, who insisted on attending the ceremony, was not accompanied by her niece. She was escorted to a carriage by her husband's nephew, a tall, slim, dark-featured young man of aristocratic appearance. In the second carriage were seated Bennett, the lawyer, head of the firm of Bennett, Son & Hoyle, an elderly man who had conveyancing and mortgage stamped on his shrewd yet kindly face; Captain Popple, heetic in a suit of black; and Raymond, looking smaller and more dejected than ever in his mourning attire. That was all, in so far as relatives and friends were concerned.

The third and last carriage contained a local notary, the mayor of Pont Aven, and Dr. Garnier.

Mrs. Carmac's unexpected decision that her husband should be buried in Brittany was made known only when it was impossible for others to come from a distance. With one exception, the steward whose ankle was sprained, the crew of the Stella had been sent to England; so the millionaire was followed to the grave by few who were acquainted with him in life. But the village saw to it that the cortege lost nothing in dignity or size. Gendarmes, custom house officials, and various town functionaries marched behind the carriages. Half a dozen sailors of the French marine yielded to the national love of a spectacle, and fell into line. Then came the townsfolk in serried ranks, the Breton garb of men and women adding a semibarbaric touch of colour.

A Paris correspondent of a New York daily expressed the opinion to a colleague that the bereaved wife had acted right in burying her husband within sight of the sea that had claimed him as a victim.

"Ah first," he said, "I thought it a somewhat peculiar proceeding. Now I begin to understand. If I had any choice in the matter, I should certainly prefer to find my last home in this peaceful little spot rather than fill lot number so-and-so in a crowded cemetery."

"Tastes differ," said the other. "Personally I'd like to have my ashes bottled and put in a window overlooking Broadway. Who comes in for all the money?"

"The widow, I'm told."

"Doesnt young Fosdyke get a slice?"

"Don't know. No good trying to worm anything out of Bennett."

"Fosdyke looks like a southern Frenchman. He's English, I suppose?"

"Yes, by birth and residence. But his father was an American, —came over with a racing crowd in the '80's, —and married a pretty Creole."

"Oh, is that it?"

"Well, there's a drop of negro blood in the family; away back, perhaps, but unmistakable. Did you ever meet Carmac?"

"No."

"A tremendous fellow; but years ago he was as thin as Fosdyke."

"How did they make their money?"

"Cotton, and backing the North during the Civil War. That's why they left the States. The pure-blooded Southerners didn't like 'em, anyway, and the men who fought under Lee and Stonewall Jackson would have tarred and feathered the whole tribe afterward."

"What's this I hear about a niece discovered in Pont Aven by the lady?"

"Haven't you seen her?"

"No."

"Then take my advice, and quit by the next train. You're too impressionable. One glimpse of her, and your life's a wreck. She's the prettiest ever."

"Why isn't she here to-day?"

"Ask me another. But if I were Fosdyke, I'd be in no hurry to rush back to smoky London. By hook or by crook I'd keep Uncle's money in the family."

This well informed cynic had not gone an inch beyond the known facts concerning the Carmacs. At twenty-five the man now dead was endowed with that peculiar quality of looks which is often the heritage of men and women of mixed descent, when all other traces of a negroid strain are eliminated save the black and plentiful hair, the brilliant eyes, the strong white teeth, a supple frame, and a definite thickness of skin which makes for perfect complexion and colouring.

As Walter Carmac had been in youth so was his nephew now. Rupert Fosdyke had often been described as "the best-looking man in London society." The tribute came from the opposite sex. Men, for the most part, disliked him because of his egregious vanity. But he was no carpet knight. He played polo regularly at Ranelagh, was a keen fox hunter, and had ridden his own horses in steeplechases at Warwick, Leamington, and other county fixtures. He was a prominent "first nighter" in theatrical circles, and knew a great many musical comedy celebrities by abbreviated versions of their assumed Christian names. This latter weakness had brought him into court as a principal in a somewhat notorious breach of promise case, and his uncle and he had quarrelled irrecocably on that occasion.

Rupert regarded the older man as a philanthropic "muff," and dared to tell him so, though such candor was likely to prove expensive. His own income was ten thousand dollars a year, provided by trustees of his mother's estate. He contrived only to exist on this sum, and would not have been guilty of the folly of alienating a millionaire uncle, who had no heir, but for the onerous conditions laid down for his future career. He was to abandon the "fast set," take Raymond's place as Carmac's secretary, and marry.

Rupert laughed derisively. "Good-by!" he said. "Try again when I'm forty."

After that the two remained at arm's length. And now the nephew was following his uncle's body to the grave, and gazing with curiously introspective eyes at the tiny panorama unfolded by the quaint old village as the leading carriage moved slowly onward.

Singularly enough, he was a prominent figure in Pont Aven that day. Not only was he discussed by the multitude, but he was not wholly ignored by a gray-haired man and a girl dressed in quiet tweed, who had walked to the summit of the lofty spur that separates Nizon from the Bois d'Amour, and were watching the long procession climbing the Concarneau road.

Ingersoll had returned from Concarneau early that morning. Yvonne, troubled in spirit because of certain hints dropped by Mrs. Carmac, had written to her father an urgent request to come home.

"Yvonne," said Ingersoll, breaking a long silence, "why is Mrs. Carmac burying her husband here?"

"She has not told me, Dad, but I am beginning to fear that she means to remain in Pont Aven."

The girl's voice was low and unemotional; but her father was not deceived by its studious monotone. He looked down at the village in which they had passed so many peaceful years, at the cluster of sardine boats,—among them the Hirondelle, laid up near the quay,—at the tortuous river, thrusting its silvery bends ever toward the open sea, at the favourite paths over the gorse-clad shores, leading on the one hand to the Chateau du Henan and on the other to the Menhirs and the hamlet of Rosbras. Those riverside walks abounded in beauty spots. He had painted them all, in many lights and in most seasons. They held a perennial charm. He could have sketched each secluded dell from memory with almost photographic accuracy, and hardly made an error in the type of the surrounding foliage, whether of lordly and treacherous elms, or close-knit firs, or blossom-covered apple trees.

"It is hard!" he said at last, almost unconsciously.

Yvonne heard, and her eyes grew dim. "It is more than hard," she murmured. "It is thoughtless."

A fierce joy surged into her father's heart, yet he only said softly, "We must find another hermitage, my dear one."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Rehearsal.

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Gerald Brabrook was the typical social bachelor. He played with equal grace the role of guest and host, and hence was exceedingly popular. It struck him suddenly, however, that such little functions as he was in the habit of imitating were too formal, too elaborate. They lacked the personal, intimate charm of hospitality in a domestic setting.

He decided to do something quite different from the conventional theater, restaurant dinners or automobile parties upon which his reputation had been built.

After some little meditation he decided to entertain a very few guests at dinner in his bachelor quarters. The first thing, of course, was to gravely consider those to be invited. For some time Madeline Gaylord's name headed an imaginary list in complimentary isolation. Gradually, however, other names to the number of five were added. The date was next arranged for and the invitations to "a most informal dinner" issued.

The most important feature being thus dismissed, Brabrook turned his attention to the minor details incident to a simple house dinner party. The inventory of his household assets proved appallingly negative:

No dining room table.
No table linen.
No dishes.
Plenty of wineglasses.
No silver.
Two candlesticks.

Well, he could hire the table linen, the dishes and the silver from a caterer, but he preferred to buy it. It was a pity he had not allowed himself a little more time for preparations. A week furnished a narrow margin.

Realizing that no time must be lost, Gerald first purchased a mahogany dinner table, round and large enough to seat six coolly. Elated over its acquisition and congratulating himself upon having had the remarkable foresight to invite just the right number to surround it, Brabrook attacked the next item on the list with a vim bordering upon enthusiasm.

"I'll ask Madeline Gaylord to help me out," he said to himself confidently and then immediately retracted the decision. No; he must do this thing all himself. Simple as the affair was to be, no woman should have the credit of having engineered it.

With the help of a very affable clerk Gerald selected a dinner cloth, napkins and appropriate centerpiece. It quite astonished him to find out how really expensive such everyday essentials were. He appreciated now for the first time why brides were supplied with "linen chests" as well as trousseaux.

It must be a great help to a young husband not to have to buy a lot of such things all at once. The purchase of the silver Gerald thoroughly enjoyed, and with very conscious pride he ordered his initials engraved upon each piece.

Gradually everything upon the list was checked off, and he was free to give his attention to the menu. This being quite in his line, all arrangements were soon concluded and left in charge of an expert chef.

As a master stroke of informality, however, Gerald decided to serve the dinner himself. To this end he considered a rehearsal necessary. Accordingly on the night preceding that for which the dinner was scheduled he rolled the new mahogany dining table into the middle of his not overspacious living room and reluctantly hid its polished surface under the damask cloth.

A cut glass cigar holder, punctiliously placed on the center, represented floral decorations. (He should have American Beauties for the dinner itself. Madeline liked them.)

In the midst of sorting out the shining silver into sets of six Gerald was called to the telephone.

"Hello!" he answered. "Who? Miss Gaylord? Well, send her right up."

There was no time for trying to understand this most extraordinary happening. Gerald could only conclude that Madeline in an impulse of generosity had come over to offer her assistance. But Madeline unchaperoned!

"This is awfully good of you, Madeline," he said, with warm cordiality, ushering her in. "I am really in a hole over the arrangement of the silver. Do the spoons go here at the right or at the top or"—

"Just wait till I get my things off, Gerald, and I'll help you," Madeline interrupted gayly. "Oh, isn't it going to be fun?"

"A dream!" he murmured softo voce.

Madeline blushed becomingly.

"Well, you certainly act as if you were in one, Gerald," she commented lightly. "Come, let's set the table. Oh," she broke off, laughing, "how awfully funny that cigar holder looks in the center of the table! You certainly aren't going to have it there. This isn't a stag dinner, you know."

"Oh, that's just a dummy," Gerald answered condescendingly. "There are to be American Beauties."

"Where are they?" demanded the mistress of ceremonies.

"Oh, let's not put them on now. They'd wilt," said Gerald whimsically. "And, anyway, they haven't come!"

"Then for the time being I'm going to use these I'm wearing," Madeline announced.

Gerald, entirely forgetful of the unshared glory that he had coveted, stood watching Madeline as she deftly distributed the silver on the table. Her small, shapely hands seemed fairly to twinkle.

"Come, Gerald; make yourself useful," Madeline chided laughingly as she looked up suddenly and became conscious of his attitude of idle admiration.

Gerald obeyed.

"I hope the others won't get here before we're ready," she added excitedly. "Wasn't it lucky I happened to come a little early? You see, Mrs. Sinclair was delayed by"—

But she got no farther with her explanation.

Gerald's belated gasp of "The others!" startled her into abrupt silence. She stood staring at him in painful embarrassment.

"It isn't possible," she finally managed to ask him, "that I've come on the wrong evening?"

Gerald made a heroic effort to put Madeline at her ease. Of course it was her mistake.

"Well, this was just intended for a rehearsal, you see. The real thing I had planned for Thursday, tomorrow night. But I'm awfully glad that you happened"—

"Gerald," interrupted Madeline dramatically, "this is tomorrow night. I mean it's Thursday night. Ask any one—ask the hallboy."

For a moment Gerald looked stupefied, but in a flash his natural social tact furnished a way out of the dilemma.

"Finish setting the table, do, Madeline," he urged. "Just hunt around till you find things. I'll go telephone the chef to get something over here in the way of food. It's lucky I planned an 'informal dinner,' isn't it?" he added, appreciating to the full the humor of the situation.

It was some little time before Gerald and the chef were able to come to an understanding.

"Hang it all!" Gerald finally called over the wire. "Never mind what's happened. I want a dinner served at my rooms tonight no matter when I ordered it."

"But you ordered it for tonight, sir. This is Thursday," thundered back the chef. "Of course it will all be there."

So it was his own mistake. In his enthusiasm he had lost track of the days.

When Gerald came back to Madeline he found her surveying the table with an air of very evident approval.

"I like your tablecloth, Gerald," she commented admiringly. "It's a beauty."

"It has one drawback," Gerald said solemnly. "It's the only one I have. I shall be forced to starve while it's being laundered. By the way, have you a linen chest, Madeline?"

"Why, of course not," Madeline replied. "Only engaged girls are interested in those."

"I should think it would be great fun getting one ready," Gerald ventured courageously. "Shouldn't you, dearest?"

Madeline did not answer, but she felt that Gerald must hear the mad beating of her heart as he stood there behind her chair.

"Look up, little girl," he asked tenderly, "and tell me that I haven't waited all these years in vain, watching you grow up adorably sweet and beautiful. You do love me a little?"

Madeline looked up, and Gerald bent over to kiss her smiling eyes and lips.

All too soon the insistent telephone brought the lovers back to reality.

"The others," exclaimed Madeline, jumping up. "Goodness, how does my hair look?"

HAD SALT RHEUM ON HANDS.

Could Not Do Her Work.

Eczema or salt rheum is one of the most common of all skin diseases. It may centre itself on any part of the body, but there are certain places where it most usually begins, such as the bends of the elbows, the backs of the knees, the groove behind the ears, the scalp, on the palms of the hands, between the fingers, or on the soles of the feet.

It is, as a rule, not dangerous, but is very irritating and annoying to the sufferer on account of the terrible itching and burning sensation it causes.

It is impossible to eradicate this trouble from the system by external applications, as it is caused by the blood being in an impure state. What you need is a good blood cleansing medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. A medicine that will drive out all the foulness from the blood and make it pure and rich.

Mrs. Adelard Theriault, Theriault, N.B., writes: "Some time ago I was troubled with salt rheum on my hands, and it was so bad I could not do my work. I tried several medicines, but they all failed to help me. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle, and before I had taken it my hands were better. I am not afraid to recommend B.B.B. to anyone."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GIANTS' WAR IN ALPS

Italian Alpine and Tyrolese in Terrible Combats

A Swiss editor who was called to the colors and is attached to one of the regiments guarding the Austrian and Italian frontiers, writes: "From our lofty positions in the neighborhood of the Stalvio Pass we daily can watch the bloody battles of the Austro-Hungarian and Italian troops. The Italian artillery does admirable work, but its shells often fly across the border and explode dangerously close to our observation posts. The combats between the Italians and Austrians are terrible. Recently the Italian gunners succeeded in throwing four shells of large calibre into the position of an Austrian battery, which was literally blown to pieces so that hardly a man escaped alive. Two days later the Austrians took their revenge. They brought up thirty large guns and began a terrific bombardment. After two hours ther was nothing left of the Italian batteries.

"On the same day we witnessed a terrific infantry battle. Two hundred Italian Alpini attacked an advanced Austrian position which was held by only twelve Tyrolean sharpshooters. The Tyroleans calmly waited until the Italians approached their trench and then fired. Every one of their bullets took effect and within ten minutes, more than sixty dead or wounded Alpini lay on the ground. The rest of the Italian detachment had to turn back.

"The Alpini are the most daring mountain climbers in the world and reckless fighters, but as marksmen they are no match for the slow, deliberate Tyrolean hunters and sharpshooters, who never fire a shot without careful aim and are always sure to hit their man."

There is no more efficacious way of removing finger marks from woodwork, window panes or porcelain than by wiping them with a cloth moistened with kerosene.

ARTILLERY USELESS IN VOSGES BATTLES

Land of the Machine Gun and Bayonet—Sniping a Fine Art Among French Alpines

H. Warner Allen, who is official representative for all the British newspapers with the French armies, sends the following description of the desperate struggle in the Vosges Mountains: In the mountains of the Vosges men still fight in the open, with the cold steel, as they fought in the days before machines of scientific destruction drove them underground. The Vosges are the country of the bayonet and the machine gun. Among their precipitous pine-clad hills the obstacles set by Nature in the way of the invader from the East are proof against the puny artillery of science. A 17-inch shell makes no more impression on a mountain than a raindrop on a paving stone, and under cover of the forests and the rocks whole armies can lie hidden in perfect security from the enemy's guns. The aviator's eye cannot pierce the dense canopy of evergreen foliage, and the guns, as a rule, can only fire at random, blindly wasting their shells among the trees and boulders. The rifle has its part to play in the fighting, but it is handicapped by the abundance of cover, and it is with the bayonet and the machine gun that the issue rests. It is only in the valley that the guns are dangerous.

Helping Nature

For half a mile our road lay exposed to the view and shells of the Germans, just a thousand yards away and the cars worked up to full speed to get past the danger zone as quickly as possible. The enemy maintained a prudent silence, being well aware that the French in this section had definite orders to reply to every German projectile by four shells of the same calibre, aimed unerringly at his most vulnerable points—his depots and cantonments in the rear. Sometimes one may catch a glimpse of a pale blue uniform, but an instant later it has faded away into the all-pervading green, and the mountain seems as lonely and as peaceful as if there were no war. Yet if one looks more closely, one sees that human ingenuity has been hard at work doing its utmost to reinforce the obstacles that Nature has set against the German. Blockhouses built of stout pine trunks, with deep loopholes, are dotted all about the woods.

Sometimes a great boulder has been pressed into service, and, topped with a breastwork of tree trunks, it makes an almost impregnable shelter. These rustic trenches and shelters are as much a part of the forest as a woodman's hut, and the poilus who built them have adorned their work with soft beds of bright green moss. The main defence is the barbed wire, which is twined in an inextricable network round tree trunks, fallen branches and wooden stakes. It runs along the hill slopes, and down into the ravines, extending in all directions its impassable barrier. On the other side of the barbed wire it is debatable ground. The French sentries lie hidden in shallow holes with their rifles at their shoulders, listening intently for a stir or a rustle that might betray the approach of a German patrol.

Sometimes a French patrol will make their way through a narrow zigzag passage in the barbed wire entanglement and cautiously glide down the hill towards the enemy. Perhaps they will reach the German line of wire unnoticed, and watch there for a while to see what the Germans are doing, and if occasion serves, risk a shot or two at any of the enemy who may show themselves. The most propitious moment is when the German sentries are being relieved. Everything is silent, and not a leaf is stirring. One German, glad that his duty is over leaves his shelter and turns back towards the rear; the other, who is taking his place shows himself incautiously for a second. There is a little movement behind a rock on the hillside, the silence is cut by two rifle cracks that echo through the valley and there are two Germans less in the world.

GRAND OLD KING OF GRAND LITTLE COUNTRY

Nicholas and Montenegro Play Worthy Part in Europe's War—A Picturesque Ruler

Although it numbers but 60,000 men, the Montenegrin army, which has taken the field with King Nicholas at its head, will probably effect a big, final influence in the Balkan situation. For every one of those men is a sturdy, strenuous fighter. For five hundred years the Turks have tried to conquer this hardy race. Austria, too, has tried, with diplomatic trickery, to bring about a union with this gallant little nation, but without success, for the Montenegrin loves his freedom.

A Great Warrior

King Nicholas himself is the most picturesque Royal figure in Europe. He is a magnificent soldier, and for half a century has guided the destinies of his land through war and peace. It was in 1860 that the King, then barely nineteen, succeeded to the rulership of Montenegro, owing to the assassination of his uncle Daniel. And since those far-off days he has become the father of a numerous family. In the same year that he ascended the throne he married a daughter of a Montenegrin landowner, to whom he had been betrothed since infancy. His bride was barely thirteen, and seemed very delicate; but they have had a large family—six daughters and three sons—several of whom have made brilliant marriages.

A Royal Author's Joke

One of King Nicholas' daughters is Queen Helena of Italy, and the King is said to have laughingly referred to her as "Montenegro's most valuable export." Another daughter is the wife of Prince Joseph of Battenberg. The marriage of Prince Danilo has somewhat nearly allied the Montenegrin and the English Royal families, the Crown Princess being Queen Mary's cousin once removed.

King Nicholas is not only a strenuous soldier and a great patriot, but he is also a polished linguist and litterateur, blessed with a full share of the poetic fervor which is characteristic of his race. He is author of many fine stirring war songs and at least two plays. Prince Danilo has inherited the warlike qualities of his father, and is a fighter first and last. He has been brought up on very Spartan lines by a father who has a great belief in the patriarchal system.

Admiral and Kilties

Apropos of the Boer War, Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux tells a good story: "An order was issued that all men of the Highlands regiments must cover up their uniforms, as it was thought they made too obvious targets for the foe. The late Sir George White, who believed the order would not prove popular, had an idea. 'Let them,' he said, 'cover the front of their uniforms. The enemy will never see the other side!'"

Millionaire as Private

Bristol has discovered that a soldier who has been paying out the State's two-and-ninepences to Derby recruits is a millionaire. Private Brian Cavanagh, aged twenty-four, was a voluntary helper at Colston Hall for three days. He owns 250,000 acres in Australia, was wounded in Europe, and has been in hospital at Bristol.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's stepsister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. Lowery, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Old-Time "Gooding."

St. Thomas' Day (December 21st) was formerly devoted to the custom of "gooding." This ancient custom, which seems to have been practised only by women, is now almost dead; but it can be traced as late as 1813 in Kent, 1854 in Northamptonshire, and 1857 in Staffordshire. Representatives from each of the poorer families of the parish went round to their more fortunate neighbors asking for alms. The clergyman was expected to give a shilling to each applicant.

Sometimes the gifts were in kind, and if a farmer gave corn the miller would grind it gratis. In some places the money collected was distributed in the church vestry by the clergyman and church-wardens on the next Sunday, which was called Doleing Day, the fund being known as St. Thomas' Dole. The women generally presented their benefactors with sprigs of evergreens for the decoration of their houses at the ensuing festival.

In Belgium the custom of keeping St. Thomas' Day is rather different. Children on that day shut and bar the doors against their parents, who can only gain readmission on giving a promise of sweetmeats. In like manner apprentices close the doors upon their masters, who bargain with their employes as to the granting of the concessions which they demand as a condition of opening the doors.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

LIFE WITH AN INSPIRATION.

Stick to your dream, boy. Let nothing swerve you from the path that leads upward toward the fulfillment of your life's ambition.

You will meet with difficulties and discouragements, but when you do, just think of the man, Herreshoff the boat builder, who died the other day in Rhode Island. In his life you ought to find inspiration enough to lift you over any obstacle.

A writer in one of our exchanges says that when John B. Herreshoff was a boy his ambition was to design and build the fastest boats in the world. He became blind while yet a boy. That would have discouraged any ordinary boy, for how could a blind man design a model that he could not see? But Herreshoff was no ordinary boy. He stuck to his dream. The heavy handicap of blindness only made him press on all the harder.

The blind boy sat in eternal darkness and whittled out his boat models. Gradually there developed in his fingers a muscle sense that was worth more to him than eyesight would have been. Slipping the model of a boat through his hands he could tell how it should be shaped to slip through the water with the least resistance. Other designers figured out their models by complex mathematical calculations. But the blind boy felt with his sensitive fingers and his models were the best, for when he was twenty-four years old he built the fastest yacht the world has ever known and, while he could not see the boat go, he felt the dash and plunge and swiftness of it, and he wept when they told him his boat had won the race.

He built the yachts Vigilant, Defender, Columbia, Reliance that conquered the series of Shamrocks in the races for the American cup. He built up a great constructional industry. The government of his own country went to him for torpedo boats. The fame of the blind designer of fast boats spread round the world and England, Russia and Italy gave him contracts for their fastest torpedo boats. He died a few days ago, a wealthy man and, better than that, a successful man, for he had stuck to his boyhood's dream and achieved it fully.

A PROFITABLE VACATION.

In the August Woman's Home Companion appears an account of a husband who recently spent $375 in travel. From the standpoint of culture the travel probably did not do any good, but from it he gained one thing of importance—a better appreciation of his home. Following is an extract from article:

"He and she had reached that state of mutual boredom that comes sometimes to people who have lived too close together and know each other too well. It seemed before he left as though they could not go on together, and she saw him leave without regret. But to her surprise the place seemed very lonesome after he had gone; and to his surprise he found himself roaming hotel corridors restlessly vaguely yearning for the companionship that had so long been his life. And when at last he came home it was to discover that his home was the neatest, her cooking the finest, and she herself the most beautiful woman in the world.

"We sometimes wish that the position of 'travelling salesman' were not conferred on one man for life, but could be passed around, so that the lawyer, the doctor, and the preacher who have lived at home forever might each be separated from home at least once in a lifetime. It would add a wonderful freshness and zest to the comforts that too often become commonplace."

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My boy, Frank, seemed weak chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Here is a Certified Cure of Chronic Salt Rheum

By Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Also a Bad Case of Eczema Just Reported Cured

Eczema and Salt Rheum are different names for practically the same disease. Small pimples or vesicles form in groups, break and run watery matter, a crust is formed, itching is intense and the disease shows a strong tendency to spread over the body.

Whatever may be the cause, Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure, for it heals and dries up the sores and leaves the skin soft and smooth.

Mr. Geo. P. Compton, Brooklyn, Lot 61, P.E.I., writes:—"I suffered for two years with Salt Rheum. Though I consulted three different doctors and tried many medicines, it was all to no effect. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say that when I finished the sixth box the Salt Rheum was all gone. There can be no doubt that the cure was entirely due to the use of this ointment, and I want other sufferers from Salt Rheum and Eczema to know about it."

Mr. Geo. Hume, J. P., Brooklyn, Lot 61, P.E.I., writes:—"This is to certify that I know Mr. Geo. E. Compton and believe his statement to be true and correct."

Mrs. Allan Weber, whose husband is proprietor of the Manitoulin Woollen Mills, Sheguiandah, Ont., writes:—"I have had a bad case of Eczema on my right leg below the knee. I tried all kinds of ointments and liniments, but to no avail, and was pretty well discouraged. Hearing of how Dr. Chase's Ointment is curing Eczema, I decided to give it a trial, and I am glad to say that it made a complete cure. The sore healed up completely and I have had no trace of the old trouble for over a year."

It takes a little patience to cure a severe case of Eczema or Salt Rheum, but you soon obtain relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you can see with your own eyes the benefits obtained once the healing process sets in. EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISSES' DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Charmingly youthful is the frock shown in this illustration. The simple blouse has no ornamentation except the bias line of the closing, which begins at the base of the throat in the centre of the front and passes over to the left side at the waistline. The neck is neither high nor low, but follows the shape of the throat, and is outlined by a wide, flat collar, which takes a rounding shape in the back. The sleeves are made in the new manner, with a little fulness at the shoulder. They are quite full below the elbow and are finished with a deep cuff.

The skirt offers a distinct novelty in form. It has three gores to form the upper portion, and these are fitted at the top and attached to the blouse. A trifle below the knee this skirt ends and is joined by a flounce of circular cut, which is attached beneath the wide hem of the upper skirt in such a manner as to give the impression of a wide tuck. The closing of the skirt is at the side of the front.

So simple is this design that it may be used for almost all materials. In woollens, serge, gabardine and novelties it will be pretty, and then we have taffetas and some new soft silks, and last and most important just now are the wash materials, poupee, linen, duck, heavy gingham, cotton voile, &c.

The dress pattern, No. 7,592, is cut in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Medium size requires four yards of 44 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25c.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone-phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentation, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

Reception to Pte. Noel Clark and The Presentation

Of Band Instruments to the 109th Battalion by Lady Eaton at Omemee —Omemee News

OMEMEE, March 16.—Great excitement prevailed in our village on Friday last. The 109th Battalion bugle and brass bands from Lindsay arrived on the eleven train along with Lady Eaton and party, and were met at Sturgeon street by the local soldiers, who escorted them to the Temperance House for dinner. After dinner the bands played several selections in honour of Mrs. Eaton and at 7 o'clock the bands marched to Coronation Hall where they were greeted with a crowded house in spite of the bad condition of the road.

On account of the six o'clock train from Port Hope not arriving in Omemee until about 10 o'clock the chairman Mr. Wm. Eaton, did not arrive to fill the chair, so Reeve Mulligan ably filled his place.

The first on the programme was the address and presentation to Pte. Noel Clarke, Reeve Mulligan reading the address, while Mr. Harry Lamb made the presentation of a gold watch.

Pte. Clarke made a very suitable reply, saying he was very glad to get back and although he had seen some very nice places, Omemee stood highest in his estimation. He spoke about the trenches, how they were built and how entered. War isn't all glory, but not all hardships. "Are we downhearted," says Noel and the answer came back from the boys in khaki, "No!" In conclusion Noel said he had great faith in the Canadians holding the trenches as well as any.

Lieut. Clifford Mulligan was next called upon. He felt greatly honoured to be able to take part in the celebration. Being a chum of Noel's he was glad to welcome him back. He then made the usual appeal to young men of this community to don the khaki and with a few further words hoped his remarks would have an effect on even one young man and he would be gratified.

A solo by Lady Eaton, "Somewhere in France," with Mrs. Blight playing the accompaniment, was excellently rendered.

Capt. Williams, in his remarks, said he was very glad to welcome one of the lads who had upheld the flag that had been waving for over 1,000 years. One couldn't help feeling sorrow for the mothers whose sons would never return. Mrs. Clarke was certainly proud to think her son was one of the first to answer the call. Noel went out to fight for the flag, therefore we'll talk about it. Trafalgar was a great day, but August 4th, 1914, will be a day never to be forgotten. He explained the three colours of the flag. When we can kneel down and ask God's blessing upon it, there we know. He is with our cause, God is God, and right is right. He also made a personal appeal for recruits.

Presentation of Instruments.

Lady Eaton then presented the instruments to the band. In her few remarks she said nothing would do Col. Fee and the band but that her name be on the instruments, so she did so, just because it was in connection with music, which she loved. She hoped they would produce the finest that music can inspire, no matter what they meet across the ocean.

Col. Fee made the reply for the 109th, saying he hoped they would all endeavour to live up to the model she had given them and amidst all the hardships and tiresome journey, they would march to Berlin with Bandmaster Heffernan as leader. He also hoped the boys of Victoria and Haliburton counties would follow Noel's example. Mrs. Fee then presented Lady Eaton with a beautiful bouquet of roses on behalf of the officers and N.C.O.'s of the 109th.

A solo, "When Jack Comes Back," by one of the band members and chorus in unison by band, which was very much appreciated.

A collection was then taken up for the Soldiers' Aid Society, which amounted to $92.80.

Rev. Mr. MacInnes, Rev. Mr. James and Rev. Mr. Downs also gave short rousing addresses.

Lady Eaton then gave the closing number "Till the Boys Come Home."

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, Lady Eaton having brought a number of large silk flags to be left in the hall. Three cheers were then given for her and the band played, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," and "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall."

Mr. Dixon of Toronto, was to have taken part in the programme, but was delayed by the storm.

NEW REVOLUTIONS IN CHINA.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—New revolutions have broken out in China, according to despatches received at the Navy Department today from Admiral Winterhalter, commanding the Asiatic fleet. Rebels, he reported, are planning an attack in force on Luchow, and fighting is in progress in the provinces of Chichiang and Hunan.

"Three Sheets in the Wind."

"What was the origin of the phrase for drunkenness, 'three sheets in the wind?'" a landsman asked a sailor the other day. "Well," said the sailor, "I'll explain that matter to you. The two lower corners of a ship's sail are held taut by two ropes, one called a tack and another called a sheet. The tack is always kept very tight, but the sheet is loosened according to the wind, and the looser the sheet is the more freely the sail swings. If the sail is quite free its sheet is said to be 'in the wind.' Now, suppose that all three of a ship's sails were quite free. They would then fly about very crazily, and the ship would wabble. The course of the ship would be a zigzag one, and the reason for this would be that she had 'three sheets in the wind.' That, I guess, is why a man when he zigzags in his course is said to be 'three sheets in the wind' also."

He Was Not Laconic.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells the story of the statesman's examination for admission to Oxford university when he was a youth. The examiner, having utterly failed to floor the candidate on some point of theology, said, "We will now leave that part of the subject." "No, sir," replied the candidate; "if you please, we will not leave it yet," and proceeded to pour forth a fresh stream. The dean in Mr. Gladstone's day was Gaisford, famous among other things for his trenchant brevity. "This laconic gift," observes Mr. Morley slyly, "the dean evidently had not time to transmit to all of his flock."

Genius and Goodness.

I have had sometimes in mine the gloved and white palm of the upper class and the heavy black hand of the lower class and have recognized that both are but of men. After all these have passed before me I say that humanity has a synonym equality and that under heaven there is but one thing we ought to bow to, genius, and the only thing before which we ought to kneel, goodness.—Victor Hugo.

Saving.

Saving produces a peace of mind unknown to him who in time of misfortune must depend on the bounty of his friends. Determine to save, for will power is the prime essential. Deposit regularly. Lay aside some portion of each week's or month's income. Deposit extra and unexpected receipts.

Worse Than Hard Words.

"Why did you kill your parrot? The poor bird meant nothing by its profanity."

"I could stand its profanity, but it learned to imitate the lawn mower last summer."—Washington Herald.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Hissing and Encores.

Hissing in playhouses had its origin in Paris in 1680 on the occasion of the presentation of Fontenelle's tragedy, "Aspar." Prior to that time suffering audiences were wont to yawn audibly and fall asleep when the apathy of the actors and performances justified that course. But on this occasion the indignant audience, driven to desperation by the platitudes of Aspar, voiced their anger by hisses which drove the actors into temporary retirement, according to the testimony of the poet Rol, who alludes to the incident in his "Brevet de la Calotte." Hissing thereafter became fashionable.

The first encore noted in the annals of the stage was accorded to Livius Andronicus, a Roman actor. He was popular with the masses and was called back so often to repeat his speeches that in self defense he brought a boy to declaim for him while he himself applied the gestures. While encores became the rage in subsequent ages, it is known that Andronicus' plan of having an understudy before him before the audience to share his honors has not generally been adopted by Thespians.—Show World.

Lord Dudley's Reminiscences.

Sydney Smith narrated a number of stories of the absentmindedness of Lord Dudley, a warm friend and parishioner. In the street one day Smith was amused by Dudley's overtaking him, linking his arm in that of his pastor and telling him in all earnestness that he should like for him above all things to meet Sydney Smith. Without revealing his identity, Smith returned that he had met the man on several occasions and hastened away.

One Sunday Dudley occupied a seat almost directly under the pulpit where Smith was delivering one of his strongest sermons. Glancing down, he was forced almost to laugh outright as his lordship, grasping his heavy cane, knocked on the door and ejaculated "Hear, hear!" evidently thinking he was in the midst of a parliamentary session.—New York Tribune.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

The Germans Lose Heavily In Verdun Attack

Five Assaults Are Repulsed By The French

FIVE HEAVY GERMAN ATTACKS ARE COMPLETELY CHECKED BY THE FRENCH

Enemy Transferred Their Activities to East Bank of the Meuse---Germans Suffered Very Heavy Losses in All Five Attacks---Broken Up By the French Curtain of Fire

FRENCH ATTACKS FAIL SAYS ENEMY

PARIS (French Official Communique) March 17.—Transferring their activities to the east bank of the Meuse the Germans last night launched a series of violent attacks against Fort Vaux, and the Village of Vaux, the War Office announced this afternoon. Two attacks were made against the village and two against the fort, five miles east of Verdun. Failing in these attempts, the Germans attempted to debouch on the sunken road southeast of the village. This attempt, like the others, was broken up by a French curtain of artillery fire. The Germans suffered very heavy losses in all five attacks, the War Office reported. In the region of Bethincourt and Cumieres, on the west bank of the Meuse, the bombardment has slackened. In the Woevre rigion, east of Verdun cannonading occurred last night. West of Pont-a-Mousson, 45 miles southeast of Verdun, the French troops attacked a German trench in Mortmare wood, capturing some prisoners. Elsewhere the night was calm.

Desperate Fighting Northwest of Verdun

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 17.—The slopes of Dead Man Hill are strewn with the bodies of thousands of German and French dead, cut down in three days of fierce fighting northwest of Verdun.

The plateau has earned its sinister name, despatches from both Paris and Berlin agreed to-day. The slaughter on the northern ridge, where the Silesian troops gained a footing, has not been equalled since the desperate fighting around Douaumont and Vaux.

Paris and Berlin reports to-day continued flatly contradictory in the accounts of the struggle for Dead Man Hill, the bulwark of the French lines west of the Meuse. The French War Office, after first denying the Berlin claim that the Silesians captured the position, reported the repulse of fresh German assaults against the prateau and announced that the Teutons have been driven off to the north.

Heavy artillery fire along this whole sector yesterday has convinced military critics that the Silesian regiments have not abandoned their attempt to take the plateau. Unless the French are driven from the hill by frontal attacks or are forced to evacuate by an enveloping movement, the Teutons cannot push nearer the northwestern forts of Verdun. From Dead Man Hill French guns swept the German columns eastward to the Meuse, blocking any advance through Comieres in the direction of Fort Marre.

Ready To Pay If Guilty Says Berlin

Examiner Special:

BERLIN, March 17.—The German Government will make prompt disavowal of the act of its U-boat commander, and pay full compensation, it was stated to-day, should it be shown that the Dutch liner Tubantia was torpedoed and did not strike a mine.

Admiralty officials would not comment on the possibility of a German submarine being in the neighbourhood where the Tubantia struck.

LONDON, March 17.—One of the Tubantia's boats, carrying fifteen persons is missing, and it is feared has been lost, the Evening Standard declared this afternoon.

PARIS, March 17.—An important War Office announcement at noon to-day reports five terrific German attacks east of Verdun have been repulsed by the French troops.

PETROGRAD, March 17.—The following official announcement was issued by the War Department: "West front, in the region of Dahlen Island, southeast of Riga. A violent artillery duel has taken place, below Dvinsk, in region of Illoukst, the enemy threw hand grenades loaded especially with high explosive."

BERLIN, March 17.—The Repulse of two French attacks against Dead Man Hill was claimed in an official statement from the War Office this afternoon. The first attack reached the German lines, it was stated. The second attack was stopped by Geaman artillery.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The investigation of the sinknig of the liner Tubantia with Americans aboard, and the reported attack upon the liner Patria, has been ordered by the State Department, Acting Secretary Polk announced to-day.

LONDON, March 17.—Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, may follow Admiral Von tirpitz into retirement, according to a despatch from Geneva, quoting Berlin reports, which also state that Prince Bernahrd Von Buelow, former chancellor, will soon leave Lucerne for Berlin.

LONDON, March 17.—The Dutch Admiralty states that 377 survivors from the Tubantia have arrived in Holland, out of 381 persons aboard. There were undoubtedly some casualties as the result of the disaster. Men from the crew say that the vessel was struck amidships in dense darkness owing to the mist on the high sea. The explosion was so terrific that some of the life boats on the deck were shattered to pieces.

Evening skating until 10:30 o'clock.

There has been more skating this week at Brock St. Rink than at any other week during the season, and no doubt there will be a good crowd to-night. If you have not skated in the afternoon try it to-morrow.

EAST CITY GETS NEW FACTORY TO EMPLOY GIRLS

Will Manufacture Women's Dresses and Will Begin Operations in Two Weeks—Quietly Secured

LOCATED IN TOWN HALL

Ald. Weir landed a new factory for Ashburnham yesterday when Mr. Fred Paul of Montreal, after looking over the old west ward school and the East City town hall, chose the latter building as a manufactury for cotton, gingham and other dresses for girls, misses and women. Mr. Paul pays $100 a year and his own business tax. The City Trust pays the tax on the property. It was stated at the Council meeting last night that the factory will be in operation within two weeks, employing twenty girls and two men. It is expected that this number will be increased to 40 girls during the year. Mayor Duffus congratulated Ald. Weir as chairman of the Manufacturers committee, and Mr. S. R. Armstrong, the city's industrial commissioner. Work was begun yesterday on the installation of twelve machines and a two horse power motor.

HULL EXPECTS A BIG HARVEST

Value of Licenses There Has Increased Ten-fold.

Ottawa, March 17.—From present appearances fifty Ottawa hotels and twenty shopkeepers will go out of business this year. Residents of the Capital will have no place to quench their thirst, at least in their home city. Just across the river, though is Hull, connected by two interprovincial bridges and two lines of street railway. Hull has twelve licensed places, and the value of a license there has increased about tenfold since it became evident that Ontario is likely to go in for prohibition. The local option system in Quebec, however, is more easy of adoption than in Ontario, and temperance advocates in Hull are taking steps to have a vote there on local prohibition.

CUTS NEIGHBOUR WITH A KNIFE

Canandaigua, March 17. — Judge Horace W. Fitch in County court today signed an order committing Mrs. Maria Musciato of Niagara street to the state hospital at Willard.

Mrs. Musciato went suddenly insane Sunday evening She attacked a neighbour, Mrs. Frank Musciato, and inflicted a serious knife wound in the left breast near the heart. Mrs. Musciato had to be placed in a straight jacket in Canandaigua hospital yesterday. Mrs. Musciato is at the hospital and the attending physician, Dr. Frank A. Brockmyre, looks for her recovery.

WITH THREE SONS IN 93rd BUCKHORN MAN ALSO TRIES TO JOIN

A fine example to the men of military age, who have not yet enlisted, was furnished last night by Mr. Elijah Windover, of Hall's Bridge, who came down to Peterborough to endeavour to join the 93rd Battalion. Mr. Windover has three sons in the Peterborough Battalion, but he was not satisfied with that great sacrifice, but wanted to go himself. Major Eastwood, however, had to tell him that he was unfit physically for active service, greatly disappointing the Buckhorn man who is returning home to-day to endeavour to get some of the young men of the neighbourhood to take his place.

93rd GUARDS ARE WITHDRAWN FROM MUNITION FACTORIES

Hereafter Local Battalion Will Only Have to Do Guard Work at the Armouries---Presentation to Sergt. Jay ---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

An order was received from Kingston to-day by Lt.-Col. Johnston, Officer Commanding the 93rd Battalion, to the effect that the guards furnished by the Battalion for the munition factories are to be withdrawn. The news will be received with undisguised joy by both officers and men, as the guard work during the past few months has not only been arduous, dreary work for the men, but has interfered seriously with the training of the battalion. The 93rd has been furnishing guards for the C.G.E., the Wm. Hamilton Co., the Peterborough Machine Company, and the power house and dam at Nassau. The guarding of these places will henceforth be carried on by the manufacturers affected. The new order goes into force to-day.

The total expenditure for the 3rd Division for the month ending February 29th was $728,895.19. For the month of March the expenditures will reach fully one million dollars. When it is remembered that this large sum of money is handled without one dollar going astray, it is a compliment to Captain Turner, the Divisional paymaster, and his efficient staff.

The Norwood Register says:

The banquet tendered the members of the local platoon of the 93rd Battalion on Friday evening last by the Methodist Church proved an enjoyable and interesting event. About sixty persons, including the soldiers ad their wives and civilian speakers, sat down to the well-prepared tables the menu being oysters, fowl, fruit and other delectable edibles. The assembly room was suitably decorated for the occasion. Following the supper the programme was commenced, Rev. A. Mansell Irwin acting as toastmaster.

In a recent letter received by Mrs. R. Hopkins, 577 Bolivar Street from her son, Pte. E. W. Hopkins, prisoner of war in Lillilagn, Germany,

He wishes to thank all those who sent him parcels of Christmas cheer. He received them all in good condition and enjoyed each one very much.

He also received a number of greeting cards from friends in the city, for which he is very grateful. As he is only allowed to write home, he cannot write to thank each one personally.

Pte. Hopkins says he is enjoying good health. Mr. and Mrs. R. Hopkins are very grateful to all those who have taken such an interest in their son.

The Kingston Standard says It seems to be the policy of some portion of the press to continually drive at military officers, particularly such as have very recently donned the uniform, and commenced to do their 'bit' for their country. Whilst it is true that some of these have not all the knowledge, the military brains and experience, of Lord Kitchener, or soldiers of "wide and long experience," it is not true in general that the young men Canada is furnishing from farm, school, college and other walks of life, and making officers out of, are fools, snobs or tyrants. The average Canadian boy is possessed of brains, decency and courtesy, and knows his place in life, and knows how to play the man in military as well as civil life. Occasionally, there is an exceptional case, but even with this it is grossly unfair to be continually stabbing a poisoned pen, or jabbing a vitriol-tipped tongue into the very hearts of young officers who are doing the best that any boy can do with a very limited experience and brief military training. To be perpetually harping about the failings of officers, is a detriment to recruiting, and an impeachment to the tremendious efforts that Canada and Sir Robert Borden are making to give to Britain 500,000 men for the firing line. As long as the history of Ypres, Langemarck, St. Julien and other battlefields live, telling the story of the bravery of young Canadian officers, the lie will be given to such as seek at every opportunity to libel and traduce Canadian manhood.

Proposed Tax Rate is Reduced to 26.74 Mills

But Council Will Have Some Difficulty in Holding It at This Figure —Statement and Comparison With Last Year's Rate—Local Improvement Debenture Increase

NOT FINALLY ADOPTED

The Council has hacked its way to a 26.74 mill tax rate as compared with 26.30 mills last year. This is contingent upon the final adoption of the recent radical reduction in appropriations, salary and otherwise. Last night there were no clear indications of what the final decision will be. It was mentioned that the work accomplished so far in cutting the estimates is still open to revision, that up to the present the Council has merely been in committee carefully considering under the many demands of this critical year the apportionment of the city's finances and the amount required therefor.

The Council is still holding its front trenches, but there may be slight withdrawals from certain salients for strategic reasons, what military tacticians call straightening out the line. But Mayor Duffus observed last night that whatever action was finally taken it should not be said that there was a "backing up" as the considerations thus far have been to a certain extent preliminary. If a business man changes his mind upon the receipt of additional information he is credited with taking a wise course.

Ald. Saunders moved, seconded by Ald. Galbraith, that the estimates as prepared be submitted to Ald. Stratton's Finance committee for further consideration and that they be returned to the committee of the Whole.

Comparison of Rates.

The following are not final figures, but they are the present result of the Council's attempt to reach the irreducible minimum in mills:

	1915.	1916
Gen. Rate	11.50	10.05
Coll. Inst.	1.80	1.76
Pub. schools	5.43	5.625
Protestant Home	.19	.11
Pub. Sch. Debentures	1.41	1.35
Coll. Inst. Debentures	.41	.40
General Debentures	2.10	2.70
Local Imp. Debentures	1.54	2.50
Protestant Home Deb.	.08	.08
Prov. War Tax	1.00	1.00
Garbage Collection	.70	.70
	26.30	26.74

This is an increase of .54 over last year's rate of 26.30.

Mayor Duffus stated that he had been anxious that every member of the Council would be familiar with the estimates.

"If we had realized last year the growing state of the debentures I doubt whether we would have built the Bonaccord street bridge."

Ald Duncan: I don't think so.

Ald Weir: If we only had control of some of these other items we'd cut some ice.

Ald Stratton stated that the salary reduction proposed by the Council represented 26 mills. It also figured out to 1-12 of the individual's salary, or approximately one month's pay. The general rate had been cut from 11.31 mills as proposed for this year to 10.05. Over most of the other items the Council had no control.

During the past two years, Ald Stratton continued, the Board of Works had spend four or five times more than in any other two years in Peterborough's history. The whole Council was to blame. All the members were on that committee. The reason would be advanced that the money was spent to employ labour, but the Council went beyond themselves. The fire department incidental expenses exceeded those in Kingston, Guelph and other towns of Peterborough's size. The Finance Minister suggested that a stock sheet be prepared for the fire hall to be certified by Ald Evans and Chief Howard. When any article is wanted the exact amount on hand is shown on the sheet. Every good business house employed this system.

The largest increase this year is the local improvement debenture item. Mayor Duffus said he had opposed the pavement on Park street last year, although he lived in that district, but had received no support.

S. A. Band Asks For Grant If 57th Get It

Adjt. McKinney wrote the Council last night requesting that if any band grants were made this year that the Temple Band be not overlooked. If there were no grants the Salvation Army Band, which had given largely of its members for overseas service, would endeavour to give the usual series of concerts.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

All hail to St. Patrick, on the Day that will be honoured by Irish hearts as long as the answer to the prayer, Erin go bragh!

SPASMODIC ECONOMY.

Our civic rulers are suddenly obsessed with the idea of keeping down the rate of taxation and, in turn, to effect this, with the necessity of reducing the estimates of expenditure. This is a laudable ambition, whose only fault is that it comes rather late in our civic history. The aldermen seem to be intent on undoing at one stroke, the accumulated evil of past years of extravagance and the neglect of having courage to fix a taxation rate sufficient for to meet the demands of the time.

If, for the past ten or fifteen years, our aldermen had made as heroic efforts as this year's aldermen are making, to keep the expenditure and taxrate on friendly terms, there would now be no need for the spasm of economy that has seized them with the grip of an intestinal convulsion, or an over dose of strychnine; nor any need for the somewhat drastic proposals made. If our aldermen, more power to them, do not achieve what they desire in scaling down expenditures to a comfortable level of relation to the tax bills, they will have learned a good lesson in the matter of civic expenditure; the lesson that the time to economize is the everlasting now; to make to-day, except in the matter of capital outlay, take care of the expenditures of to-day—in other words to cut the garment according to the cloth.

We have spent money on necessary and proper improvements with lavish hands; if we have in all cases got good value for the expenditure made, very well. But, if the whole slate were carefully explored, it would perhaps be found that in all cases full value has not been received for money expended. If, say, two dolairs are spent for work, that with foresight, proper planning, proper supervision, could have been done for one, there is an explanation, without excuse, of improvident expenditure, and inevitable higher taxation.

A multitude of little leaks are more dangerous to a ship than a big punch in her hull. The big hole demands and gets immediate attention; while the multitude of little leaks keep on unnoticed, and before the skipper realizes the condition, the craft is deep in the water. Many little leaks in civic expenditure will in time bring serious conditions, such as seem to confront us now. The time to economize is now, every day. But if this is neglected, we have to come to extraordinary efforts, and extraordinary expedients.

The necessity for heroic measures of economy is not caused altogether by the war; it arises from causes that have been operating from year to year for years. The increased taxation measures, the casting about for new revenue by the Ontario Government, does not arise altogether from war demands. It is the illegitimately legitimate result of extravagant expenditure. For instance—ex uno discomnes—spending a million on building a foolishly magnificent vice-regal residence, when $300,000 would have been ample for a lieutenant-governor of this democratic province, is a sheer waste of $800,000, enough to build 200 miles of first-class highway. Isn't the moral plain?

SHIPBUILDING, NICKEL, ETC.

Never in the history of commerce was there as much need of shipping as at the present time, when thousands of ships are diverted from commercial carrying work to war purposes. Scarcity of shipping is one of the problems to be solved in the interests of the prosperity of the exporter and the farmer, whose impulses to the greater production demanded at this time, are slackened by the idea that lack of shipping will prevent getting their products to market and reaping the advantage of their enterprise. Mercantile shipbuilding in Canada has been sadly, if not, ruinously neglected. Time was when Canada's shipping had third place on the register of the world's merchant marine. We have not done shipbuilding from any other reason than not having done it. Everything was favourable. Canada had the raw materials, the building skill and all that.

What she lacked and still lacks, was leadership—the encouragement of the government. This encouragement would have come from the adoption of a national policy of self-reliance; a policy of domestic development of industries and resources. This development would have resulted naturally and inevitably. If Canada had implemented the policy of building a Canadian navy in Canada, which was adopted with enthusiasm and wisdom by both parties in Parliament if we had erected plants for the construction of war ships we would have developed a capacity and skill in shipbuilding that could easily have been directed to the building in Canada of a merchant marine. In this regard we have been shamed by the example and achievements of Australia, which has a fine dominion navy — of ships built in her own yards. Could not Canada have done, cannot Canada do what Australia has done with half the population of Canada and half the wealth of resources and half the natural and other facilities Canada possesses?

What Canada needs is the adoption of the real national policy of home development of her resources. We have magnificent pulp wood resources; we should do the whole work of development — manufacture of these resources to the ultimate merchantable form, ready for the consumer; we should refine every pound of nickel ore contained in our largely exclusive deposits. We should build of ourselves the shipping to take these and other products to markets abroad. We should thus give employment in larger measure to Canadian labour, Canadian capital and Canadian enterprise and thus reap the greatest wealth, the greatest advantage from the the bounties with which Providence has endowed us.

On the contrary we are neglecting these things. We are shipping our precious nickel in the raw state to be refined abroad; to be immensely increased in value and at the expense of the home labour and home enterprise, which would have saved this increased value and the inevitable advantages to Canada, the country that has the exclusive right to this increased wealth. We not only do that but we are providing facilities for our nickel—a most important if not indispensable ingredient in the production of war munitions— reaching the enemy, to be in turn used against us. While we are sending soldiers and doing other things at great cost and sacrifice, to defeat Germany, we are, by doing nothing but neglect our duty, putting arms in the hands of the enemy to defeat our other efforts. At the same time we are robbing our home labour, our home capital of the right to the fullest benefits from our nickel deposits.

There may be practical difficulties in the way of breaking the monopoly we have permitted to fasten upon our nickel. There are great obstacles, too, to crushing Germany, but that does not deter Britain and the Empire and her allies, from undertaking the work. Now is the best time for our Dominion government to get our nickel interests back into our own hands and provide for its complete refinement in Canada. This is war time and extraordinary expedients are expected. If it requires unusual action, unprecedented action, to give us back our nickel, now is the time to take such action.

This war furnishes an excellent opportunity for the adoption of a national policy that will provide for the home manufacture of all our natural products. This can simply be done by decreeing, on the part of the government, that none of our chief raw materials, shall pass out of the country in an unmanufactured condition, but that all the resulting wealth from this policy should be kept in the country.

This may seem a serious step to take; it would temporarily disarrange if not disorganise, existing conditions and would throw a great burden of effort on Canadian capital and enterprise. But we could show ourselves equal to the demand. We must have faith in ourselves. If any one had told us three or four years ago that Canada could do what she has done in war preparation and war accomplishment, he would have been laughed to scorn. We certainly can do as much to help ourselves as we have done and are doing to help the Empire.

FINAL GAMES FOR THE ALLAN CUP.

WINNIPEG, March 16.—The Allan Cup hockey series for 1916 will be wound up this week, when the 61st Battalion team, champions of Manitoba and holders of the cup, will meet the Regina Victorias, champions of Saskatchewan, in a two-game series to-day and Saturday night. Doubtful ice and weather conditions and tardiness of the Toronto Riversides in making up their mind prevented the O.H.A. champions from getting a chance. To have waited for them would have held up the competition for over a week, possibly ten days, when the ice and also the cup holders (the 61st Soldiers) would be gone.

CANADA'S FOUR YEARS OF NAVAL INACTIVITY

Sir Robert Borden gave an interesting piece of information in the House the other evening, when he said the Government had arranged, just previous to the war, for Sir John Jellicoe to come to Canada and consult with them regarding a permanent naval policy. This, it will be noted, was three years after the Borden Government had taken office, and was just prior to the arrangements the Government then had under way for a general election. Apparently the Government were to endeavour to exploit an Empire hero for political purposes by planning to spring the Jellicoe report on the people, and then trying by means of it to sweep the country in a wild spasm of flag-flapping.

Both Sir Robert Borden and the Hon. Mr Hazen indulged in unfair attacks on the Liberal leaders in the course of the discussion in which this announcement was made. They charged that the Government had made them acquainted with convincing information as to an "emergency" in the relations with Germany, and that the Liberals deliberately refused naval aid to Britain in spite of this knowledge. To play such petty politics as this is unworthy the Premier. A complete answer to the charges is to be found in the records. Those records show that the Laurier Government, with the full approval of the Conservative party, had planned a navy on the same model as the Navy of Australia and that if the tenders for the building of the ships which the Borden Government handed over to the Asquith Government had been awaiting Canada, at the outset of the war, would have had a fleet as efficient as Australias to aid the Empire.

But what happened? Sir Robert Borden, for political purposes, repudiated the policy to which he had given such cordial assent, and promised to repeal the Laurier Naval Service Act — this as a sop to the Nationalists, with whom, at the last election, he was in alliance. With such convincing evidence as he claims to have had that matters were nearing a crisis with Germany, he tried to save his face by advocating a thirty-five million dollar contribution to the British Admiralty. He had not the courage to go to the people and let them approve or disapprove of this radically - changed naval policy. He had not the courage to repeal the Laurier Naval Service Act, Knowing, as he claims to have known, that every instant was drifting Great Britain nearer and nearer to inevitable war with Germany, he allowed three whole years to elapse without raising his finger to make any kind of naval provision to aid the Empire. He refused to carry out the Laurier policy, because he had promised the Pelletiers, the Blondins, the Sevignys, and the Lavergnes, the leading Nationalists, that he would wreck it, and he refused to ask the people to approve the alternative proposal which he was forced out of very shame to make.

While he is reproaching the Opposition for the naval inactivity of Canada, he knows full well that but for the unholy alliance that he made with the Nationalist party in Quebec, and the promises that, for political purposes, he made to men who talked about "shooting holes through the British flag," Canada would to-day be on a par with proud Australia in the matter of naval aid to the Empire. Instead of that the men who talked of "shooting holes" through [illegible] have been elevated to some of the highest positions in the State, and, in order that they might be sustained there, the Canadian people have been prevented from either having a navy of their own like Australia's, or saying whether they would or would not approve Sir Robert Borden's makeshift proposals in place of that Navy. — Montreal Herald.

A PROPHET IN OUR COUNTRY.

About three years ago, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Pedley, of Montreal, published a book entitled "Looking Forward." In the course of this he pictured the time when aeroplanes would be in common, every-day use, and described a voyage from Montreal to Winnipeg. Looking out on Ottawa, as the aeroplane passed over that city, he pictured the passenger as being delighted at the way in which the city had been made "the Washington of the North." He proceeded: "The Ottawa, the Rideau, and even the Gatineau had all been included in the scheme. Park, and drive, and terrace, well-paved streets lined with trees, handsome residences, and, crowning all, the magnificent new Government buildings, which a devastating fire had rendered necessary." Now, here we have a real case of prophecy which anybody can verify. Might we suggest that Dr. Pedley should now get busy and see what he can do in the way of war prophecy?—Montreal Herald.

GERMAN GOODS FOR CANADIAN TROOPS

MONTREAL, March 16.—Three hundred kit bags were received this week from the Department of Militia, Ottawa for the men of the 206th French Canadian overseas battalion now being recruited by Lieut. Col. T. Pagnuelo.

Each kit was neatly packed and contained the usual soldier's toilet haberdashery, consisting of a military brush and comb, tooth brush, razor, service shirts, etc. But to the surprise of the commanding officer upon examining the articles it was found that many of them were marked, "made in Germany."

"I was never more digusted in my life," said Lieut. Col. Pagnuelo to a press representative. "It is the exercise of gross negligence on the unscrupulous manufacturers to unload part of somebody in permitting German-made goods upon the government, particularly for the use of the Canadian soldiers. I only hope that my men will be given the opportunity of using these same razors on the despicable Hun, and it cannot be too soon to suit me."

THE SHAMROCK.

Once, so the ancient legend sung,
When this old world, was fair and young;
In the first dawn of time,
E're yet the serpent ventured in,
Or withering taint of deadly sin,
Dimmed Eden's sunny clime.
There flourished in those beatneous bowers,
Fed by soft dews, and balmy showers
Entwined bright flowers between,
Emblem of the Blest Trinity,
Of truth and spotless purity,
A three leafed Shamrock green.
Tended with care, and tenderest love,
By angels from the realms above,
In a sequestered dell,
Until by subtle hate betrayed,
Weak man, the tempters voice obeyed,
And rum o'er them fell.
Then swift the angels winged their flight,
Plucked the loved Shamrock from the blight,
Escaped to Erin's Isle.
Set it in that sacred sod,
Where foot unhallowed ne'er had trod,
'Neath skies that cloudless smile.
No evil influences might share,
With it the pure and vital air,
Nor venomed reptile come,
But Ireland's circling shores around,
Honor and pious faith abound,
And virtue finds a home.
Where e're the modest Shamrock springs,
In toilers lot or courts of kings,
A mystic charm is there.
Sweet solace for the cares and fears,
The sorrow, sickness, smiles and tears,
Which prince, and peasant share.
Still on Saint Patrick's fatal day,
We wear a simple little spray,
Of Shamrock to unfold,
That fancy still fond mystery weaves,
Around the fragile emerald leaves
As in the days of old.

A PRACTICAL VIEW.

Mr. Gilleapie of Peterborough takes a thoroughly practical and unbiased view of the questions arising in the Provincial Budget debate. In adding his protest to the many already made against dividing the Province by a liquor plebiscite, he showed the absolute waste and inevitable mischief of the threatened disturbance.—The Globe.

ORANGE PUDDING.

1 cup of boiling water; 1-2 cup of sugar; 4 tablespoons of cornstarch; whites of two eggs; juice and rind of two oranges. Mix cornstarch, orange juice and sugar; add hot water gradually; cook until clear. Then add rind to the mixture. When cool, fold in the beaten whites of eggs. Put in one large or individual moulds to set.

Sauce.—2 yolks, 1 cup of milk, 5 tablespoons of sugar; flavouring.

Add sugar to the yolks, heat milk, blending each together gradually and cook until smooth, but do not boil as this breaks the custard.

To serve, turn out Orange foam, and pour over the sauce.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Raised $93 For Patriotic League of Ashburnham

Skating Party and Tea Proved a Big Success

The Woman's Patriotic league of Ashburnham scored another big success last evening when a skating party at the rink at Hunter and Mark Sts., and a tea and social hour at the home of Mrs. F. Whitehouse, 135 Hunter street for those who didn't skate, were held. The cushion donated by Mrs. C. H. Moore was donated to the one holding the lucky number, Mrs. Jas. Garrow, Downie street being the winner. Over fifty dollars was realized from the cushion together with forty-three dollars, the result of the combined rink party and tea last evening, making a total of ninety-three dollars.

Fully two hundred people were present at the rink and to the strains of splendid music provided by the members of the 93rd Battalion, enjoyed the best evening's pastime that has been held here this winter.

Following the skating, the skaters adjourned to the home of Mrs. Whitehouse where they enjoyed a dainty luncheon.

For those who only attended the tea, a good programme was given those contributing being Mrs. James McDonald, Mrs. Locke, Mrs. Nicholls, Miss Scott and Miss Anderson.

The ladies of the league take this means of expressing their heartfelt appreciation to all those who helped so materially to make the evening such a success, including the Boys' Club of Mark Street Church for the free use of the rink, the 93rd band, Mrs. Moore for the cushion, Mrs. Frank Whitehouse for the use of her home, and Mr. R. B. Rogers for his efforts in securing the band.

Six Degrees Below Zero

The thermometer was down to six degrees below zero this morning—the same as yesterday.

Although this is St. Patrick's Day and spring usually makes its appearance by this date, there are exceptions:

In 1915—St. Patrick's Day was quite mild; snow was practically all gone; some of the roads were dusty.

In 1914—Mild (44 days); ditches running; more snow came later and several quite cold days.

In 1911—Four inches of snow that afternoon. A few robins around.

In 1910—No sleighing in town, fair in country; mild.

In 1909 and 1908—Cold and stormy day.

In 1907 and 1906—Ground bare.

In 1904—Four degrees below zero; 2 feet of snow. This was a particularly severe winter.

In 1901—Good sleighing; quite wintry.

HOW RUSSELL PEARCE MET DEATH AT FRONT

"I Wish I Could Have Died in the Trench Boys and Saved You This Long, Hard Trip," Was Last Words of Norwood Boy Who Was Killed in France

NORWOOD, March 16. During the past week Mrs. J. B. Pearce received the following letter from "Somewhere in France" from Pte. M. W. Harris, a soldier comrade of the late Russell S. Pearce, in which he relates the last sad and interesting details of her son's death:

Somewhere in France,
Feb. 13, 1916.

"I wish I could find words to express my sympathy to you all in your sad bereavement, but I can say this much, and then you will understand how deeply I feel, that when you lost your son, I lost the best chum I had in the battalion, and all of us feel very much his absence from amongst us here, and all the boys send their deep and sincere sympathy to you all. As perhaps you have not had a detailed account of what happened I will tell you the circumstances as fully as I can.

There was a partially demolished brick building standing right on the edge of the trench and Russell was lying reading in what had once been the cellar of it. Some of the most dangerous projectiles against which we have to content, the 'aerial torpedoes,' fired from some kind of a trench mortar, started to come over, but Russell with his characteristic disregard for danger, remained there quite unperturbed, until at last one struck the cellar wall, blowing it all in and wounding him in several places. The stretcher bearers carried him to the dressing station, but on arriving there he was almost gone and died a few minutes afterwards. He was quite conscious and his last words were typical of him: "I wish I could have died in the trench boys and saved you this long hard trip."

At the same time a great friend of his, Sergt. Kempt, was instantly killed by a similar projectile. They were both in South Africa together, I believe, and Kempt too was a great chum of mine. From the first mobilization of this battalion we had been in the same tent and barracks until on arriving in France, I was sent away with some other old bush men to a big forest to take out bridge timber, trench posts, etc., and though I did not like to leave the bunch I had no option in the matter and only by repeated applications managed to get back at the beginning of the New Year. If Russell had managed to get down there too I would not have minded so much, but none of the boys who went down there ever belonged to my section, so it was like being amongst strangers. However, I'm back here to stay."

THERE IS A VAST ARMY

of men and women who really never know what it is to enjoy sound, vibrating health—who would be surprised to suddenly gain that exhilarating vitality that robust health brings.

Literally thousands without any particular sickness live in "general debility", as the doctors call it—have headaches, are tired and indifferent. To all such people we say with unmistakable earnestness—"Take Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month and allow its rare oil-food to enrich and enliven your blood, quicken your circulation, stimulate nutrition, and aid nature to develop that real red-blooded life that means activity, enjoyment, success."

Scott's Emulsion is not a drug, but a pleasant food-tonic—free from drugs. One bottle may help you.

Find Pieces of Steel in Allied Horses' Oats

War Office Issues Orders to have all Supplies Carefully Examined.

LONDON, March 15.—The War Office has issued an order directing cavalry officers to have examined carefully every bushel of oats used for the feeding of their horses. This order is explained by the morning newspapers as being due to the discovery that several consignments of oats from the United States contained little pieces of steel shaped and colored like oats, and which if a horse swallowed them would be almost certain to kill the animal.

ONTARIO LEADS THE EMPIRE IN GIVING TO THE RED CROSS

TORONTO, March 17.—It is not alone in the trenches in France or on the rocks of Suiva Bay that the unity of purpose of those diverse elements forming the British Empire is disclosed. The call of the British Red Cross Society and of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England for money to aid in carrying on their work, sent forth last fall to the different parts of the Empire, evoked such a response as to convince everyone that not only was the spirit to do strong but also the willingness to give. The call went forth for Trafalgar Day, 1915, and one of the countries to make a handsome contribution to the fund was Egypt, near which the hero of Trafalgar won one of his famous victories. Its contribution was $560,939.

From that far outpost of the Empire, the Falkland Islands, near which Admiral Sturdee destroyed the squadron of the German Von Spee in the present war, came the sum of $456.

St. Helena, the place of Napoleon's enforced residence, sent in $729, while from friends in foreign countries as far removed from as China, Chili, and some others, was received $2,651.

From the Empire, outside of the British Isles, the amount contributed reached about $3,750,000. Of this our own Province furnished the magnificent sum of $1,492,992, which places Ontario in the enviable position of having contributed more than half of the total amount raised in the whole Empire. Nor was Toronto's part any the less significant. Over a half a million from Toronto makes the city's loyalty and generosity loom large in the eyes of the British people.

The Commonwealth of Australia is credited with the sum of $71,311, but it is only fair to state that a previous appeal made by the British Red Cross to the people of Australia produced over $1,000,000, about equally divided between goods and money.

Minister Gave Pint of Blood to Save Woman's Life

TORONTO, March 17.—Hearing that one of the members of his congregation would die unless a considerable amount of blood was transferred into her body, the Rev. F. E. Powell, rector of St. Barnabas' church, offered to make the sacrifice, and yesterday Dr. Reginald A. Jones transfused a pint of his blood to the patient, Mrs. M. A. Southgate.

The operation was an unusual one, but was successful, and late last night Mrs. Southgate was reported to be progressing nicely and entirely out of danger.

Mrs. Southgate is staying at Wellesley Hospital, where the operation was performed.

WILL BOYCOTT GERMAN RESORTS

Russians Already Planning to Give Preference to French.

PARIS, March 17.—The Russians are already planning to boycott German watering places after the war, says the Figaro, and as a means to this end are even now sending out information concerning French resorts. An information bureau has been established in Paris and soon a party of Russian physicians will visit all the French watering places outside the war zone.

The propaganda just issued states that one of its reasons for existence is the harsh manner in which Russian visitors at German watering places were treated when war was declared.

Although this movement appears to be independent it belongs in a general sense to the proposed anti-Teuton trade alliance under which the Entente Allies intend to give one another the preference in all dealings after the war.

SUGGESTION TO WOMEN

Who Are "Just Ready To Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help. You can get it just as Mrs. Maxwell did. She says:

"I keep house for my little family of three, and became completely run-down. I was weak, nervous and could not sleep; finally I was unable to do my house-work. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and improved rapidly. It toned up my system, I regained my strength, am no longer nervous, sleep well, and do all my housework." Mrs. J. C. Maxwell, Montgomery, Alta.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success to the medicinal extractives of fresh cod livers, tonic iron and beef peptone, the oldest and most famous body-building and strength-creating tonics.

So many letters like the above are continually coming to our attention, that we freely offer to return the money paid for Vinol in every case where it fails to give satisfaction.

Unusual Case At Havelock

Campbellford Woman Claims Damages For Alleged Assault

HAVELOCK, March 15.—A most unusual case heard before Judge Huycke here on Thursday last, was that of an action for monetary damage brought by a Mrs. Ida Johnston of Campbellford against Mr. John Elias Thomas of town. Mrs. Johnston's action was based on an alleged assault said to have occurred at her mother's home at Healy Falls in November last, and which, she swore, was for the purpose of improper relations. The evidence of the fair plaintiff contained interesting statements that Thomas hugged and kissed her so strongly that the imprint of his teeth were left in her cheek for an hour afterward. All this occurred, she swore within a few feet of her mother and sister-in-law, but she did not cry for help, nor did she tell her husband until three weeks later. Thomas denied her story emphatically, and recounted an attempt of plaintiff and her husband to force him to pay for the alleged kisses, which he said he never gave, as he wasn't that kind of a man. Judge Huycke in summing up, said that a case of this nature was unusually a matter for a criminal instead of a civil court. The defendant, he said was very fortunate in having some evidence to corroborate his own, which usually is not the case. The case must fall from the evidence of the plaintiff as he could not reconcile her statement of the events she swore to. The object, apparently, Judge Huycke said, was blackmail. C. A. Ghent appeared for the plaintiff and F. D. Kerr for the defendant.

LET'S EAT ORANGES

Good Housekeeping Magazine Gives These Suggestions—Orange Day March 18th—A Good Day to Try Them

Good Housekeeping for January, 1916, says.

"Probably the reason many of us consider the orange a luxury rather than an every-day food is because we still cherish memories of the time when the fruit was high-priced and not widely distributed, and an occasional orange was a surprise often reserved for the toe of the Christmas stocking.

"Many of us are more or less slaves of our habit of thought, and in face of the fact that oranges can be purchased from December to April at almost any price, and the rest of the year at prices which are moderate when the value received is considered, we do not take advantage of their wonderful dietetic properties because we consider them too expensive.

"It is generally known that the orange contains citic acid, which is a liver stimulant, and that it is a gentle laxative. But its wonderful supply of phosphates, a direct nerve-food, is usually overlooked, and the fact that oranges therefore have a most beneficial effect in cases of insomnia is practically unknown. In short, the importance of the orange as an every-day food the year round can not be too greatly emphasized.

"As a breakfast fruit it is unequaled, but to obtain the greatest benefit it should be eaten a half-hour before the meal, so that the juice may leave the stomach and commence its rapid upbuilding and general cleansing while the digestive tract is comparatively open. If this is done, a cereal with light cream and sugar may be eaten at breakfast, but if the orange figures as the breakfast fruit, the cereal with sugar and cream should be omitted, as the combination sometimes causes nausea and gas.

"The necessity for washing oranges and, indeed, all fruits, can not be too strongly insisted on, for no matter how clean they may look they are no more free from bacteria than unwrapped bread or candies sold from open cases. If to be eaten with a spoon, the fruit should be cut in halves, crosswise and if they do not stand level, thin slices of skin may be cut from the ends. The pulp around the edge and the membrane between the sections should be loosened by a curved grapefruit-knife.

"To prepare the orange flower-fashion, cut down the skin in quarters and then in eigths to within an inch of the blossom-end. Then strip down in points and fold these over. To serve orange-sections on a strip of peel, cut an inch-band crosswise entirely around the orange at the middle. Remove the remaining skin, slit the strip open, and spread out the sections. Another method which may be used when the orange is to serve as the first course at luncheon is to make a mound of powdered sugar in the centre of a plate surrounding it with sections of orange and some cluster-raisins. When sections are to be used for garnishing or for fruit-cups, the best way to obtain them is to pare the orange with a sharp knife till the juice runs, and then cut out each section separately. If plain sliced oranges are desired, they may be prepared in this way, or they may be pared, sliced crosswise, and arranged in dessert-dishes or a bowl, with a little sugar between each layer; or if there chances to be at hand some well-sweetened pineapple-juice or the juice from other canned fruit, it may be poured over the orange slices, the whole being allowed to ripen in a cold place for at least an hour. A quick luncheon dessert may be made club sandwich style of dry sponge-cake and oranges. Toast the cake, put together with sliced and sweetened oranges sprinkled with cocoanut, surround with orange-sections and decrate with halved marshmallows and nut-meats.

"As a general rule oranges are used mostly as a breakfast or desert fruit, but they are also well adapted to salad-making. The more substantial salads should be used for deserts with coffee, crackers and cheese. When to be used with fish, the French dressing should be made with lemon-juice.

"The following are some suggested orange salads and meat combinations and the dressings to be used: Orange and celery, French dressing with meat or game. Orange, mint, and celery, French dressing with lamb. Orange, chestnut, raisin, and celery, French dressing with game or chicken. Orange and grapefruit, French dressing with fish of roast pork, Orange, cress and apple, French dressing with fish or game. Orange, prune, nuts, and celery, mayonnaise as a dessert. Orange, grapes, celery, and ginger mayonnaise as a dessert. Orange, pineapple, grapefruit, French dressing as a dessert.

FARMS IN WEST FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

C. P. R. Have Decided Upon a Huge Plan of Colonization ---Improved Farm Colonies to Be Established in the West on Easy Terms For the War Heroes.

MONTREAL, P.Q., March 16—While much discussion has recently been carried on at Ottawa and elsewhere on the best method of dealing with the soldiers who return after the war, both our own Canadian soldiers and the British veterans who according to general opinion, are not unlikely to come here in considerable numbers, few practical suggestions have been made with the object of finding whether the Canadian Pacific Railway had any proposal under consideration, a representative of a Montreal newspaper approached Lord Shaughnessy The visit was evidently opportune.

"As a matter of fact," said the C. P. R. President, "we have been giving this question the most careful consideration and have just decided on a comprehensive plan of colonization which will be the largest of its kind in the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and as you know, we have done more colonization work probably than any other transportation or other corporation in the world. The details of this colonisation plan are being worked out just now, and when I tell you that it involves the preparation of perhaps as many as a thousand farms in Western Canada for occupation next Spring you may realize the size of our undertaking. Our duty, however, demands that this great problem be met with the energy that it deserves. One of the most serious problems facing Canada to-day is the matter of handling the hundreds of thousands of returned soldiers after the close of the war. The military service will have unsettled and unfitted many of them for a return to ordinary life and something will have to be done to enable them to obtain outside employment. The problem is further complicated by the fact that without doubt a very large number of men who will be mustered out from the British army will want to emigrate to the overseas Dominion, and provision must be made to properly take care of them and colonise them in suitable employment. The problem is one of such magnitude that item must be faced ad solved by the Dominion Government. But the provincial governments and the large Canadian corporations must also do their part. Realizing that the necessity must be met, and desiring to take its share of the burden of trying to solve this problem and assist the men who have fought the battles of the Empire, the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. has decided to establish in Western Canada colonies, which for the moment, we are calling returned Veterans Colonies, where men who wish to go in for farming can obtain improved farms on terms which will in time enable them to become land owners and create homes for themselves and their families. These colonies will be given distinctive names, probably with military associations, and will contain a sufficient number of families in each to ensure social, school and Church facilities, and in each case will include a central instructive farm under a competent agriculturist, so that advice and instruction may be available for the colonist.

Our experience in connection with the ready-made farms has been invaluable, and will enable us to avoid mistakes which are inevitable to new undertakings the burden which we propose to carry will be no light one as human nature is such that there are always fault finders; always square pegs which will not fit into round holes. We have had such cases in connection with our ready-made farms, but on the whole, the colonies established under the ready-made farm scheme have been highly successful. For instance, Sedgewick, which has a group of settlers of which Western Canada may well be proud; but we are prepared to face all the troubles, all the petty annoyance which may occur in connection with this still greater scheme realising that it is our duty towards the Empire to which we are proud to belong."

ATLANTIC SUGAR CLOSES BIG ORDER

Secures Contract for 5,000 Tons of Refined Sugar From the British Government

Mr. D. Lorne McGibbon, president of the Atlantic Sugar Refineries, announced last night that an order for five thousand tons of refined sugar had been received from the British Government. The value of the new business is well over the half million dollar mark and means that with its domestic trade the St. John refinery is assured of capacity operations until the end of May. Since operations were inaugurated in 1915 the Atlantic plant has been operating between sixty and seventy per cent.

Mr. McGibbon said that full shipment of the contract would be made before June 1. He expected that the new order would be the first of several, as British Government agents had satisfied themselves that the quality of Atlantic sugar was equal in every respect to the refined products of American sugar refineries.

The location of the company's plant on the Atlantic seaboard is advantageous for competing against American manufacturers. As the British Government is desirous of giving the preference to manufacturers within the Empire, Mr. McGibbon believed that the management's hopes for further business were well justified.

The acceptance of the order marks a new extension to Canadian trade this helps the first large export order received by any Canadian sugar refinery.

Flaxseed as Food.

Flaxseed has been known throughout historic time to possess wonderful food and medicinal properties The Romans fed it to slaves to keep them in condition and health. The civilized palate has generally rebelled at its linseed odour and taste. It has remained for a physician to discover a method of driving oxygen out of the linseed oil by electricity, changing the oil into a resin, odourless and tasteless as starch, yet leaving food and medicinal properties unchanged This is now used in Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal, claimed to be the most nourishing food sold and a positive relief to dyspeptic and constipated Most grocers sell it.

TWO DEPUTATIONS ASKED $500 EACH FROM COUNCIL

Citizens Object to Withdrawal of 57th Band Grant, and Speakers' Patriotic League Requested Aid in Another Recruiting Campaign Throughout the Country.

MAYOR DUFFUS' REPLY

Two deputations waited on the Council last night, one representing the 57th Regimental Band, asking for the usual grant of $500, and the other from the Speakers' Patriotic League, requesting assistance to the extent of $500 for another recruiting splurge throughout the County with the object of speedily and finally filling up the 93rd Regiment. The following gentlemen were present: Messrs. A. E. Coulthard, J. A. Aylmer, R. J. Devey, R. Gliddon, Fred Miller, F. D. Kerr, R. B. Rogers, R. R. Halt, D. O'Connell, W. F. Johnston and Col. W. J. Miller.

Mr. Fred Miller, President of the 57th Band, stated that the withholding of the band grant this year would be a very serious blow, and would practically mean the passing of the band, one of the oldest organizations in Peterborough.

Citizens Wanted Band.

Mr. O'Connell said he did not think the city was in that financial position that it had to be economical to the extent of cutting off the band grant. He also felt that the Council's action in this particular case would not meet with the general approval of the citizens when they became aware that their band did not receive the necessary assistance for the summer's work. The citizens perceived that the Council was actuated in its pruning of the estimates for 1916 with the proper spirit of economy, but they respectfully requested that this item of the band be given further consideration before the Council reached a decision.

Girls Would Miss Band.

The 57th band had loaned their instruments to the 59th and 93rd Battalion Bands, said Mr. A. E. Coulthard, and had just received them again on Wednesday of this week. The 93rd had used them all winter and had also used the 57th music library, worth $3,000. Had the 57th charged a rental for these they would have received a tidy sum. The summer band concerts were particularly welcomed by the girls of the city, and, speaking for those at the Colonial Weaving mill, Mr. Coulthard said they would be deprived of one of their chief sources of music. These girls had given liberally to various funds, but the rich girls, who had all day to play pianos in their homes had not been reached by the collectors of these funds.

This battalion would be followed by another, and it would be advisable to have plenty of band material here.

Mr. R. J. Devey mentioned the fact that the 57th Band has assisted local musical productions by supplying the reed parts. While the Council was scraping close to the bone where there was no need of amputation, especially in this case. The use of the 57th instruments by the 59th and 93rd Overseas Bands, two hours a day for practically eighteen months would affect them as much as seven years' ordinary use. The same applied to the music library. It was easy to destroy a band, said Mr. Devey, but it was not easy to rebuild it.

Has Been an Advertisement.

Mr. F. D. Kerr referred to the fact that the 57th Band had been a great advertisement for Peterborough. He also felt that during this year of stress and trouble the Band's soothing influence would be most welcome to the citizens, especially those with relatives at the front.

Col. Miller recalled the many occasions on which the band had given its services free, especially when the soldiers were leaving for overseas. They were also willing to turn out for church socials and affairs of that kind without pay, simply considering themselves at the service of the city. It is now felt that this old organization should be maintained since it was enjoyed by all the citizens without exception.

Mr. W. F. Johnston stated that he had found the men on George street all anxious that the band be continued.

Mr. Gliddon Remaining.

Mr Gliddon said he had been connected with the band for twenty years. He had recently considered a chance to go overseas, but had been pressed to remain in Peterborough, anticipating the formation of another battalion. The 57th band had given many men to the 93rd and 59th Battalions, but they still had 27 players. They had had no practice during the winter for the reason that the 93rd Band used their instruments.

Mayor Duffus' Reply.

Mayor Duffus reminded the deputation that the Council was elected by the people to transact their business. This year it was found necessary to give more serious attention than ever to the striking of the rates. If similar attention had been paid in the past the present close pruning might not be necessary. The Mayor mentioned some of the debenture issues that had helped increase the taxes and stated that the Council had not gone crazy on economy, but they wished to keep the rate as far as possible from 30 mills. The work done so far was not conclusive. It was only tentative, and it was likely that the Finance Committee would follow up the Council's work by a final revision of the list. Some of the appropriations might be increased some of them might be more closely pruned. But the Council had not finally committed themselves.

The Patriotic League.

Mr. Aylmer, Mr. Hall and Mr Rogers presented the request of the Speakers' Patriotic League for a grant of $500. A big effort is necessary to secure the remainder of the 1,100 men for the local battalion. If it is filled up quickly it may be kept here in camp this summer. Otherwise it may be broken up and placed with other regiments. It is therefore desirable that the full complement be quickly enrolled.

Mayor Duffus replied that the Council had set aside a sum of money which they had intended to give the Battalion when leaving Peterborough. It is from this fund that the $500 will likely be taken. No action was decided on last night, but the Speakers' Patriotic League may feel assured that their request will be granted.

"AMERICA'S TURN" IF VERDUN FALLS

Remarkable Theory Expressed Unofficially By One British Official

Gossip About Germany's New Submarines—None Said to Have Been Captured.

LONDON, March 17—The remarkable theory was expressed to-day in an official British quarter having access to confidential information that the chief object of the attack on Verdun was to force an early peace in Europe, "so that the German Government would have its army and navy free to attack the United States. The official in question whose identity cannot even be hinted at, went on to supplement his assertion about as follows:

"The aim of the War Office in Berlin is to attack the United States without giving the Administration at Washington time to raise a trained army to repeal the invaders or bring the navy up to its full fighting strength. Desires for loot plus hatred of the Government, engendered through the shipments of supplies and ammunition to the Allies are probably the impelling motive for this plan.

"An early peace in the coming summer would leave the German fleet intact for the voyage across the Atlantic to convoy a fleet of transports filled with troops. The vessels to be used in the expedition are the Imperator, Europa, and other big steamers of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd companies which for some time have been fitted up as transpodts, coaled and stored ready for sea at Hamburg and Bremen.

'In addition to torpedo boat destroyers the Germans are rapidly completing a new type of submarine of 2,500 to 3,000 tons displacement. These under-water craft will have a speed of twenty knots on the surface and about twelve knots below water, and will be armed with 4-inch and possibly 6-inch guns. Two of these new craft, but of smaller tonnage, are known to be in the English Channel, where they have been strewing mines in the track of merchant steamers. This is their method of procedure:

'Two to three dozen floating mines are carried in a chamber aft, equipped with special releasing gear to shed them a few cable lengths ahead of an approaching vessel. Two of these mines can be shot out at once, linked together with a short cork-cased line. When the bow of the merchant passenger liner hits the line with her stem she draws the two mines together on the port and starboard sides and has her whole forward part blown out.

"The new type of submarine is like an Indian club in shape. Within the outer casting is a framework containing sealed-up compartments to hold gasoline. That they would have no difficulty in crossing the Atlantic has been demonstrated by the fact that much smaller British submarines crossed to Plymouth from Canada last summer.

Naval officers here believe that ship for ship, the American navy would be a match for the Germans, but do not exactly know how the American battleships would be able to cope with the German submarine

No one in any position of authority of course, can be induced to back with his name such a statement as quoted. It is interesting, however, as showing what one section of official dom here is talking about.

From reliable official sources comes the information that there is no evidence of a single German submarine having been captured during the war. Probably thirty-five German submarines have been sunk by light cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and patrol boats, or caught by fishing nets and left at the bottom of the sea. This disposes of the tales related by Canadian doctors and others arriving in New York of how they have been captured submarines in Dover Harbour and other places on the English Coast, whose crews had blown their brains out rather than be suffocated. Apart from the expense, it would be practically impossible for the Admiralty to raise even a 700-ton submarine to the surface after it had been sunk through becoming entangled by the specially constructed nets designed by an old Scotch fisherman from the Firth of Forth, or had met disaster in other ways. In 1904 two big Swedish salvage vessels were occupied one month in the Solent off the Nab buoy in raising the unfortunate submarine A-1, which was less than 400 tons in size, and the costs ran into thousands of dollars. In deep water the task would be impossible.

There was great excitement in the clubs and leading hotels last night over a rumour that a German raider had been sunk by a British light cruiser off the Orkney Islands after a fifteen-minute battle and that 160 survivors of her crew had been landed at Leith from three torpedo-boat destroyers and sent to the military prison in Edinburgh Castle. The arrival of German prisoners started the report of the sinking of the raider, which was not confirmed at the Admiralty. The report had it that the vessel had slipped out of Kiel in the fog early this week and was on her way to the North Atlantic.

The P. and O. passenger liner Maloja, in the opinion of Captain C. E Irving and his officers, expressed in the report of the disaster to the company, was torpedoed. The engineers on watch at the time are said to be positive on this point. The commander pointed out that it would have been impossible for a mine to strike the steamer abaft the beam, as the swell forward, caused by the vessel going through the water at high speed, would have washed the mines away on either side of the bow. The time at which the Maloja left Tilbury docks was known, and it would be an easy matter for the German submarine to lie in wait for her, as was done in the case of the Lusitania last May.

St. Patrick's Day In Parliament

The Shamrock Shows a Solid Front

OTTAWA, March 16.—Parliament is ablaze with the Shamrock to-night in readiness for to-morrow. Fair hands have bedecked the chamber and buttonholed the members. Hon. C. J. "It is the pride of Irishmen the Empire over," said Hon. Mr. Graham, "that once war was declared all acrimony vanished, and that there ceased to be a Redmond or a Carson, but all became as one in the face of a common danger."

Success of St. Andrew's Soprano at Lindsay

Miss Helen McLaren, soprano soloist of St. Andrew's Church choir, is to be congratulated on her expected success at a patriotic concert in Lindsay given by the noted Masonic Zelland male choir of Toronto. The concert was under the patronage of Sir Sam and Lady Hughes. Miss McLaren was the soloist, and had a splendid reception. Speaking of her singing, the Lindsay Post says:

"Miss Helen McLaren, the soprano, earned a triumph by her exquisite work in the singing of Woodman's, "An Open Secret," and in her encore number, "Annie Laurie." This young lady possesses a voice of great range and purity and entranced the audience by her singing. MILITARY NEWS

COBOURG, March 17.— Word has been received that Private Alexander Comego of Rice Lake, has been wounded in action at the front. This is the third casualty in the Comego family. Early in the winter Sergt. Sampson Comego, who was with the 21st Battalion, was shot dead, but not before he himself had accounted for a number of the enemy, being a crack shot and a sure sniper. It is stated of him that if he failed to get a German sniper himself he would make a rude chart of the position as nearly as he could and the artillery would turn their guns on the place. At the same time that Sergt. Sampson Comego was killed his brother, Private Peter Comego was wounded.

STRATFORD, March 17.—In the hope of promptly securing the four hundred men still needed to complete the 110th Battalion, a joint meeting of merchants, professional men, manufacturers and military officers was held here. The upshot was a decision to have a canvass made of all the eligible young men of the city, the names thereof to be placed before a public meeting and the older men to do all possible to point these eligibles to the path of duty. To carry out this campaign a representative committee was named.

Pte. Harold A. Henry, writing home from the front to his father, Mr. Wm. Henry, said he had been recently down in France with an officer on a sniping trip.

Hamilton, Guelph, Stratford, North Bay and other places, have given "Pastor?" Russell to understand that his religious propaganda which includes the giving of an excuse for his followers not to rise to a sense of their manhood and defend their country and freedom, that he cannot use their cities for such a purpose. Is Peterborough less loyal than the above places?

What is the matter with the young men in the Toronto Loan and Savings Co.?

Why should not parents receive a small sum in the form of separation allowance as consideration for the sacrifice made when their sons enlist?

There is a family living opposite the old Cordage Building on Lake St. with five sons, the youngest nineteen years old. Why don't they enlist?

What service has been rendered by the leading contractors of this city, most of whom have more or less sons, and have had their full share of public work? One of them is reported to be practically pro-German.

One reason why recruiting is slow in Peterborough, it is said, is because so many are prejudiced against the young Peterborough lads as officers. This seems a great stumbling block. Why not exchange officers with another unit similarly placed?

Why is it that returned soldiers are not allowed to wear any colours or show any kind of distinction to show they have done their bit?

How is it that the C.G.E., and the Wm. Hamilton Co., have mostly young men (single) in their employ on munitions, the latter firm in particular. The tool-maker is the principal asset on munition work, any one with ordinary intelligence can do the rest, manipulate the machine, as it is simplicity itself. How then for a weeding out in the two places?

Miss Dorothy Allan Decides to Stay and Sing in Peterboro'

Miss Dorothy Allan, soprano soloist of St. Paul's Church, has, the Peterborough public will be delighted to know, declined the very hearty and unanimous invitation from Chalmer's Presbyterian Church, Toronto.

Miss Allan desires to acknowledge with sincere thanks the many expressions of hope that she would stay in Peterborough, and it has been a real pleasure to her to realize how many friends she has amongst the general public.

The managers and musical committee of St. Paul's Church have shown in a most practical manner their desire to retain her services, which she appreciates greatly.

It should be the best game of the year.

BELLEVILLE'S PROTEST IS NOT SUSTAINED

Alleged Offence of Hillman of Sarnia Not Violation of Rule

The Ontario Hockey Association Executive gave several hours to the hearing and consideration of the Belleville protest against Sarnia yesterday, for the purpose of bringing out all the facts, though the matter alleged in the protest was not of itself a violation of the rules at all. In the end it was found that the protest failed because of that fact, and because even the incident alleged was not sustained by the evidence.

It was charged that Hillman of the Sarnia team, who hails from Ottawa, was in the latter city one day during August, and broke his right to play as a resident of Sarnia where he had taken up residence and employment before the first of August, the limit date under the residence rule. The evidence of the Belleville trainer was the only thing offered in support of the charge and this was denied on oath by Hillman, whose declaration and personal statement were that he had not been there in August, or at any other time after going to Sarnia

Fails to Prevent the Willard-Moran Bout

ALBANY, March 17.—The attempt of Assemblyman Martin G. McCue, of New York, to prevent by legislative action the Jess Willard-Frank Moran boxing contest met with failure. McCue, who last week was refused unanimous consent to introduce a resolution calling upon the State license for the contest, moved to-day to suspend the rules to permit its introduction, but the motion was defeated.

McCue then rose to a question of personal privilege and assailed a sporting writer on a New York newspaper who had questioned his motives. Referring to the fact that he was formerly a prize fighter, he said "that is the proudest hair in my pompadour" and he repeated his charge of last week that the Willard-Moran contest would not be an honest one.

Peterboro' Forfeits Baseball Franchise

Hamilton Does Not Think it Is Very Well Used

HAMILTON, March 17.—The Hamilton club has received a letter sent them by President Fitzgerald of the Canadian League, telling them that unless they make a move by Saturday of this week the franchise will be taken over and operated by other parties.

Secretary Eddie Frid received the missive yesterday morning, and immediately called a meeting of the directors for this afternoon. He stated yesterday that he would recommend that the club ask for a year's lay-off, the same as has been granted to Ottawa, and he thinks that the other directors will see eye to eye with him in this. He cannot see how baseball will go this season, even with the amalgamation with the South Michigan League clubs.

The action of President Fitzgerald in giving the local directors until Saturday to make up their minds as to what they intend doing does not meet with the approval of the men at this end. They figure that other clubs in the league have been allowed to drop for a season or more without losing their franchise, and they think that Hamilton should be shown some consideration at a time when the local club have a bad financial storm to weather.

Peterborough has waived its claim to territorial rights in the Canadian League through its failure to have a personal representative or a written qualification at Wednesday's meeting.

The league is now without a sinking fund, although the majority of the clubs that were in the league last year still owe it money. The money was spent in running the league last season.

BRANTFORD'S SUGGESTION AS TO CANADIAN LEAGUE

BRANTFORD, March 16.—President T. J. Nelson of the Brants favours an eight-team league this year, with Brantford, Guelph, London and Hamilton as the Canadian teams, and Saginaw, Bay City, Flint, Lansing or Jackson of the South Michigan League.

Contracts have been returned signed by Pitchers Close and Walker, Catcher Cooper, Shortstop Dunlop, Mullin, third, and Burrill, centre, of last year's team, so that the nucleus of the team is on hand. Warner is likely to be manager again.

Honoured On Eve of Departure For Peterboro'

On Monday evening a large number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Fitzpatrick of Asphodel to spend a social evening with them before taking up their home in Peterborough. During the evening they were presented with an address accompanied by a valuable present to Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick and each of the family.

Asphodel, March 13th, 1916.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitzpatrick.—We, your many friends and neighbours, have heard with regret that you are about to leave our midst and bid adieu to the dear old farm and its surroundings.

The farm that was settled on first by your grandparents who cleared it from a virgin forest, improved and modernized by your parents, and equipped with the present attractive buildings by yourselves.

The parting with those who have lived in a home around which have gathered associations most stirring and amusing, grown up side by side with us, touched its life in a mixture with ours at many a bright point cannot but be felt and felt bitterly.

Your kind and generous spirit, your honest and forgiving life, your social and neighbourly qualities have made you friends who could not allow you and your estimable wife and your young family to leave us without in some way showing you that we honoured you as friends, loved you as neighbours, and hope you will accept this present as a token of love and respect, not for its real value, but as a slight reminder in days to come of the place you held in our confidence, as well as the respect with which we regard you.

And the sincere wish of all is that God may be with you and spare you many long years of happiness in your new home.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours—G. A. Barton, Thos Heffernan, M. English, Wm. Garvey Charles McNulty.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, replying on behalf of himself, his wife and family, said he could scarcely give utterance to the intensity of their feelings.

He was delighted with the gifts but especially to know that such desirable harmony existed between themselves and their neighbours as clearly manifested on this occasion. He enumerated some past joyful happenings filled up with uncontrolable emotions, which spoke more effectively to those present than words and assured them that his happiest recollection swill be the many happy days spent with his friends and neighbours in his native settlement.

Messrs. P. McNulty, G. A. Barton and others spoke of Mr. Fitzpatrick's sterling qualities, after which all sat down to a splendid repast and continued the evening in animated games and music.

Editor of Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The letter of Mr. Fairbairn's in yours of Thursday (re attack on parade- induces me to say I saw a bunch of about 20 soldiers, after proclaiming for personal liberty, make a dash at the parade, lifted a man and carried him away. The last I saw he was struggling to get free. He was denied personal liberty.

Yours,
Ed. Courtney.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I am going to try you again once more, as I often sent a piece to put into your paper.

I want to ask some of the best poultry men around Peterborough to answer, through your paper, if it is true what some of the farmers in Ennismore have told me what to do to get a hen to lay two eggs a day. Mike told me to put up window blinds in the hen house, and to keep the blinds up till the hen lays one egg, then pull down the blinds for three or four hours, then put up the blinds and the hen will lay another egg.

And here is Paddy's plan. Get a box, put a little straw in the box for the nest, make it so the egg will roll off into a hole, and when the hen looks back to see the egg she had layed, and does not see the egg, she will go back and lay another egg.

I am puzzled. I do not know which to believe.

Dan Whetung, Sr., Chemong.

P.S.—I am not too old to learn.

Peterborough, Ont., Mar. 17th, 1916.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Editor,—Will you allow me the space in your paper to say a few words regarding Dr. Workman and his address at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening.

In the first place, although a member of the Ministerial Association, I had no voice in bringing Dr. Workman to Peterborough to address the Association; that matter was wholly arranged by the Programme Committee.

In the second place I was not present at either the morning business meeting of the Association, or the social meeting in the evening. Having some knowledge of the views entertained and taught by Dr. Workman I did not go to hear him. But had I been present when his statements in question were made, I should certainly have registered my objections to such critical teaching on the Word of God.

I agree with Rev. Pogue in saying it was wrong, yea I would go farther, I would say it was cowardice on the part of any body of Ministers of Jesus Christ to remain silent when the great Cardinal Doctrines were being so misrepresented, and particularly so when they were responsible for his being there, and when it was within their jurisdiction to stop it. This if not the first time that such teaching has been aired in Peterborough by invitation of the Ministerial Association, and it is high time the Churches that stand for these sacred Truths raised their voices in a vigorous protest and forever settle the question.

Yours in defence of the Gospel,
March 17th, 1916.

F. A. Conners.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I notice Mr. Cowan remarks that some of the listeners to Dr Workman's address were bewildered by the circumstances in which they found themselves. Surely listening to a professor of theology putting forth a modern trend of thought before the Ministerial Association was well within his jurisdiction. Is it not time the Church arose to her responsibilities, and set people's minds at rest on such subjects as mentioned by Dr. Workman, for they are common enough in this reading age of reason. To suppress such thoughts and questions, the ministers most critical of most of our modern talented authors. A lot of people have looked to the Church to settle such questions that they may reasonably understand —therefore believe; but so far the Church has failed as a body to rise to the occasion. Therefore the people have started thinking for themselves which has set up more self-reliance and self-respect, showing a development of both body and soul; as a modern author remarks, such thoughts are likely to cause anarchy in the Church, but the Church has split and split again over their creeds.

Now that the Ministerial Association has been awakened by Dr Workman to the stronghold of modern thought, it is up to that association to deal with such questions from the pulpit; also questions asked by members of their different congregations. As truly remarked by Dr Workman, some questions will be difficult and profound, but ministers as teachers must rise to the environment of the times.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, if you can see your way clear to publish this.

THOS. TOOMS.

POLICE COURT AT BOBCAYGEON

BOBCAYGEON, March 17. — His Worship Magistrate F. D. Moore dealt with a charge of assault preferred against Carman English of Galway, by Carl D. Bardeau, of Harvey. The accused, on being called, pleaded guilty. It appears from the evidence presented to the court that on Sunday evening, March 5th, the people of Silver Lake had gathered at the Orange Hall for service, but the minister did not come along. On coming out of the hall a brother of the complainant got out the horse and cutter, complainant getting into the cutter he received a kick from behind from the accused. A whip which was under his arm was drawn out by English and he received a blow from it as well. There was a tussle in which Bardeau went down and English was pulled off by Meldrum Graham, whose finger got into English's mouth and was bitten. After Bardeau got up he got into the cutter and drove up the road, followed by English, who stopped the horse and said he could fight the two Bardeau's, but nothing further happened. English said that while in the hall Bardeau was making fun of him and had struck at him with the whip on coming out of the hall, and also the brother in the cutter had run into him while standing in the road, the shaft striking him in the breast. It also appeared that English had signed the Government service roll for the 109th Battalion, but had afterwards changed his mind and refused to go any farther. In summing up His Worship said as English had already pleaded guilty and as he still refused to join the colours he fined him $20 and costs, including witness fees, amounting to $32.41, which was paid.

A REAL MUSICAL COMEDY

Here Next Tuesday—Many Catchy Song Hits

"When Dreams Come True" which comes to our city on Tuesday next, March 21, is by Philip Bartholomae author of the two farcical successes "Over Night" and "Little Miss Brown."

The author has indicated the same originality in the book of "When Dreams Come True" as he did in his farces. He recounts the story of a wealthy young New Yorker who awakens to find his allowance cut

LORAINE LESTER

The first act is on ship board, and shows the boy returning for the parental scolding as a steerage passenger. This setting lends itself to many singing numbers, the first ensemble showing a chorus of immigrants of all nationalities indulging in their native songs and pastimes.

A smuggling plot is interwoven in the story, to which the "Dream Girl" is an innocent party. All sorts of trouble is heaped upon the pair until 'dreams come true' in the final act.

A musical comedy cast of more than ordinary ability will be seen in the principal parts, and a chorus of twenty four capable and sprightly young women, will sing, dance and lend an air of youth and gaiety to the performance. They will also wear some of the most elaborate gowns ever shown on a local stage.

To whiten ivory knife handles cut a lemon in half, dip it into common kitchen salt and rub it over the handles. This will remove the dirty yellow look and make the ivory as bright and white as new.

BERLIN EAGER TO TAKE VERDUN AS PEACE PRELUDE

Baltimore, March 16.—That the Germans planned to reduce Verdun and then publicly announce their plans for peace was the information contained in a letter received in the last few days by Cardinal Gibbons, from an authoritative source in one of the Continental countries now at war.

The Cardinal said he had heard that conditions in Germany were depressing the people somewhat, and that the Government felt that after it had put its Verdun campaign through successfully it would be in a better position than ever before to announce to the world on just what terms it would accept peace.

Says War Cost Is $17,400,000 To France Daily

PARIS, March 17.—The credits required for the second quarter of 1916 amount to 7,800,000,000f. ($1,500,000,000), according to the statement prepared by Mr. Raoul Peret, reporter of the Budget Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, and presented yesterday in the Chamber. This is equivalent to a daily expenditure of 87,000,000f. ($17,400,000). The figures showed that the cost of carrying on the war is steadily increasing, as the total expenditure for the year 1915 amounted to 22,000,000,000f. ($4,400,000,000), whereas that of the first six months of 1916 amounts to 15,500,000,000f. ($3,100,000,000).

The total national expenditure from the beginning of August, 1914, to the end of June, 1916, will be nearly 47,000,000,000f. ($9,400,000,000), of which 37,000,000,000f. ($7,400,000,000) are for purely military purposes.

LONG DISTANCES TROOPS MUST COVER IN MEXICO

Some idea of what it means to patrol the Mexican border and the distances that must be covered in an invasion of Mexico is gained in the accompanying table. Of course, an army travelling along the easiest routes would in some instances cover about twice as many miles as the distances given below.

From the eastern to the western end of the Mexican border the straight line distances are:

From Brownsville to Laredo, 225 miles.
From Laredo to Del Rio, 150 miles.
From Del Rio to El Paso 350 miles.
From El Paso to Bisbee, 225 miles.
From Bisbee to Yuma, 300 miles.

El Paso to Chihuahua (by rail), 472 miles.
Chihuahua to Torreon (by rail) 735 miles.
Torreon to Zacatecas (straight line) 270 miles.

SING SING HEAD IS EXONERATED

Famous Prison Reformer Not Guilty of Perjury.

White Plains, N.Y., March 17. — Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, was acquitted of the charge of perjury by direction of Justice Tompkins to a jury in the Supreme Court here.

Justice Tompkins held that Dr. Rudolph Diedline, a State prison commissioner, was without authority when he investigated Osborne's administration of Sing Sing. It was before Dr Diedling that Osborne last October committed the alleged perjury by swearing, as charged, that he was without knowledge of certain cases of immorality. Justice Tompkins held in his opinion that there was no lawful perjury committed by Osborne inasmuch as the warden had the right to keep inviolate the pledges which he had given to the guilty convicts who had confessed to him their immorality.

Osborne's counsel moved that the jury be kept sitting, and that the trial be begun immediately on the other indictment pending against Osborne, charging neglect of duty and immorality.

District Attorney Weeks announced that he was not ready to proceed with the second trial, but would call it during the April term.

TRIES UNDERMINING TRACK TO MAKE RAILWAY PAY

GALT, March 17.—Ever since the G. P. and H. Railway went through his property by expropriation proceedings, George B. Howes, Raymore Street, has been endeavouring to get the Railway to buy all his property, and while offers of settlement for the land taken have been made, Mr. Howes has refused to accept any of them.

He has brooded over the matter and finally, to stop the railway, commenced to undermine the track where they pass through his property, with a pick and shovel, but before he had accomplished much, was arrested.

To a charge, laid under section 517 of the criminal code, he pleaded not guilty this morning, and was remanded to Berlin jail Tuesday, and in the meantime will be examined by the jail physician as to his mental condition.

Just A Word About That Room You Are Thinking Of Doing In White

Satinette WHITE ENAMEL

solves the problem. In homes of every degree where elegance and refinement are part of the atmosphere Satinette will be appreciated. Its pure whiteness and soft lustre suggest nothing more or less than perfect taste.

"Satinette" enamels flow like varnish, work easily and set slowly, leaving that rich lustre that Satinette alone can accomplish.
